to the Delegates Winds Up Labors of the Biennial

The seventh blennial conference of the New York State Council, Catholic Knights of America, met in St. Charles Four Church, Sidney place and Livingston street, Brooklyn, yesterday. There were fifty delegates present, representing thirty-five branches of the PRESIDENT T. J. LARKIN. conference was formally opened conducted by Rev. Thomas F. Ward, who acted as celebrant. After the mass the delegates proceeded to the debating hall, which had been tastefully decorated. Brother T. J. Larkin, Chairman of the State Council, called the meeting to order. that its membership now numbered nearly 50,009.

The reports of the presidents of the several branches of the order showed the order to be in a very prosperous condition. Secretary Conklin's report showed that there are 1,625 members of the order in this State.

The elections for officers for the ensuing term resulted as follows: Spiritual Director, Mgr. John M. Farley, of New York City; State President, Oswald Maune, of Brooklyn; First Vice-President, James J. McGovern, of Corning; Second Vice-President, Thomas J. Heffernan; Treasurer, John R. M. Shell; Secretary, C. W. Conklin; Supreme Delegates, Edward Feeney, John J. Hastlings.

In the evening a banquet was tendered to the delegates in Robertson's Hall, on Gates avenue. Oswald Maune acted as toastmaster. There were no set toasts, Brothers Maune, Hastings, Feeney, Larkin, Brooks, Conkiin and several others made short addresses.

A conference of Catholic reading circles of the State of New York was held at the Catholic Club, No. 129 West Fifty-ninth street, last evening. The audiency was composed cheffy of ladies. ROBBED, HE WAS FOUND DEAD.

It May Take an Autopsy to Decide What Killed This Man-Some Very Peculiar Circumstances.

Michael Angelo Maniere was found by nan Unkels, of the East One Hundred and Fourth Street Station, dying on the stoop of No. 1861 Lexington ave nue just after 3 A. M. yesterday. There were evidences of robbery, although the medical testimony goes to show that he died from natural causes. It is, however, equally probable that he was drugged to death.

Maniere came from Palermo nine years ago, worked with various persons, and then became head bookkeeper for Rocco Verilli, who runs a small bank and liquo. store at Hester and Mulberry streets. At 2 P. M. Monday he went up to Harlem to deliver three gallons of brandy to Andrea Alfino, of No. 313 East to Harlem to deliver three gallons of brandy to Andrea Alfino, of No. 313 East One Hundred and Ninth street.

He collected no money, and, with but 31 in his pocket and a silver watch with a hair chain, he spent the day going from one saloon to another. He was with his friend, Antoine Geratti, who keeps a cigar store at No. 331 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street, and later left with a man known as Matteo Morosini, and walked down to the little beer place kept by Michael Marrone, at No. 343 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street. There he remained until 12.30 A. M., when his friend left. At 1 A. M. he was in J. C. Reilly's saloon, at One Hundred and Fifteenth street and First avenue, and left there drunk, in company with two tough-looking men who had been lounging about the bar.

Two hours later Jeremiah Preston and Milo W. Eddy, watchmen, saw three men coming along. The one in the centre seemed to be drunk. They led him to the stoop of No. 1851, which is one of the Verona flats, and, seating him on the top step, walked away. A Mrs. Nicholas, who lives nearby, says she saw the mon rob Maniere, and she called for help. When it arrived Maniere was dead. An autopsy may be held to-day. It was suggested that the man died from the effects of knock-out drops. His watch-chain had been cut, and he had been robbed.

GRIEF DROVE HIM TO SUICIDE.

Since the Death of His Wife Nefenicker Hat Pined, and at Last He Inhalod Enough Gas to Kill Himself.

Families who were sitting on the reof the sig flat-house, No. 152 West Thirty-first street, taking the air, n ticed the odor of gas coming through the ventilstor shaft. It was traced to the apartments on the fifth floor, occupied by Camille Nefenicker, an Alsacian, waiter in the St. James Hotel. His doo was forced open, and Nefenicker was found on his face beside the bed. A rubber tube had been affixed to the gas jet Nefenicker, in the last throes of death, had evidently pitched from the bed where he had been sitting with the tube in his mouth. In failing unconscious the tube had probably slipped from him.

Dr. S. W. Abkarian, who has offices on the first floor, was summoned and an ambulance call sent in. Dr. J. Wesley Smith, the Alderman of the district, assisted Dr. Judd, of the ambulance. They worked over Nefenicker three hours, but co.ld not revive him. He died at 9 o'clock.

Nefenicker's wife died on Feb. 7. Her sister died ten days later. Nefenicker had been drinking heavily since his wife's death. He pined and sighed and acted as 2 beside hisself.

He left this note addressed to his brother Eugene, who is in the grocery businees at No. 149 Canal street.

The race was held in the upper and lower bay, with start and finish at Liberty Island, It was a drift, unfortunately, in a light southwest fact that Garrison bungled with Henry of Navarre. Byron McClelland's colt should have beaten Domino, and it will be a real frosty day when Garrison gets another chance to wear the green and gold colors of the young Kentuckian. It is safe to say that Garrison never rode worse race in his life. From the furong pole to the finish he rode his hardest, and the finish was a good piece of work, but the mistake had been made, and it was fatal. Garrison has an overwhelming amount of confidence in his lowers. Vanity figures largely in his make-up, and no actor ever makes creater plays for the plaudits of the nultitude than "the Snapper." He airly yearns for the flattering praise hat every winning jockey gets, and resterlay he tried to make a grand stand finish which would earn him un-lying fame.

The public saw her only once, when she beat Keenan easily enough. Whether that form proved her ability to give a lot of fast fillies twelve pounds each is a question. Judgment should be suspended until Gutta Percha proves her reat worth. The filly got away badly yesterday, and was driven hard from the start. . . .
