

RUSSIANS TO RELEASE AMERICANS JAILED ON CHARGE OF PLOTTING

Following Action by Secretary
Root, Police Promise to Free the Wallings.

TO HOLD MISS STRUNSKY

Prisoners Accused of Joining
With Finnish Rebels in Move Against Czar.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Secretary Root today cabled Mr. Schuyler, Charge of the American Embassy at St. Petersburg, regarding the case of William English Walling, the American, who was arrested there yesterday with members of his family for association with the Finnish revolutionary party. The Secretary's message was a short statement of the appeal upon which the American Embassy was expected to act for the relief of the persons arrested so far as seemed proper, and was prompted by a telegram dated Indianapolis from William E. English, an uncle of Mr. Walling. The telegram contained a brief summary of the facts concerning the arrest as set out in the press despatches. A cable received here this afternoon from St. Petersburg says the Russian police will release Mr. Walling and his wife to-night or to-morrow. They will, however, hold Miss Rose Strunsky, Walling's sister-in-law, until further inquiry is made.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21.—The majority of the American Embassy was in motion to-day to secure the release of William English Walling, of Indianapolis, his wife, Anna, and his sister-in-law, Miss Rose Strunsky, who were arrested at the Hotel de France here last night because of their association with members of the Finnish revolutionary party, four of whom, including the wife of Prof. Mainmora, of Helsingfors University, were taken into custody at the same time.

Kellogg Durland, an American, collecting material for lectures, was also arrested, but released, as no evidence was found against him. Attaches of the embassy visited the Prefecture of Police and the headquarters of the Secret Police in endeavor to learn the nature of the charges against the American prisoners and to see whether they were comfortably housed.

Aided Rebels, Police Say.
The police accuse Mr. Walling of assisting financial aid to the revolutionary movement, but that is not the charge on which he and the other members of the party were arrested. The Director of the Secret Police to-day informed the United States Charge d'Affaires, Montgomery Schuyler, Jr., that Mr. and Mrs. Walling would be released to-night or to-morrow, intimating that it would be desirable for them both to leave Russia permanently. They wished to avoid further embarrassment. Rose Strunsky will be held in custody until the extent of the investigation of the party is complete. The location of the Finnish revolutionists with the Russian conspirators is ascertained.

The authorities professed to be greatly alarmed at the activities of the Finnish revolutionists, whose headquarters are in Finland, claiming that Helensborg is the centre from which terrorist operations are directed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—Mr. William English Walling and his sister, Rose Strunsky, who are under arrest at St. Petersburg, are well known in San Francisco, where they for a number of years were prominently identified with socialist movements. Mr. Walling, who was Anna Strunsky, came to San Francisco for her education and took a course in higher socialism at Stanford University. She gained her prominence as a collaborator of the London in the Kempton Wake plan. She was married to Mr. Walling in London a few years ago.

When she left San Francisco with her son as secretary to the object of a trip to Europe was attempted. She declared in the local press at the time that their purpose was to assist some of the popular movements in Europe, but that she would conduct her operations from some city outside of the Russian empire.

Americans Arrested in Russia as Plotters Against the Czar

Americans Held by Czar's Police Well Known Here

Socialists and settlement workers in New York were started to-day by news of the arrest in St. Petersburg of William English Walling, his Russian-American wife and her sister, Miss Rose Strunsky, on a charge of being connected with plots of the Finnish Progressive party. Walling is a grandson of the late William H. English, of Indiana, millionaire and Democratic candidate for Vice-President in 1880.

All Well Known Here.
Walling is a native of Indianapolis and a son of Dr. W. H. Walling, of Chicago, formerly United States Consul at Edinburgh. His wife is known to literature and sociology as Anna Strunsky. Walling came to New York and joined the University Settlement at Livingston and Eldridge streets, and for two years lived there, being an intimate friend of J. G. Phelps Stokes and Robert Hunter.

Walling's wife, a Jewess, born in Russia twenty-six years ago, is daughter of Elias Strunsky, who was wealthy until ruined by the earthquake in San Francisco, and now lives here. Mrs. Walling is an authoress and prefers to be known by her maiden name. They were married in Paris in 1906.

A brother of Mrs. William English Walling, Morris Strunsky, of No. 146 Lexington avenue, last night received a cablegram from Kellogg Durland, telling him not to worry, and that everything possible would be done. "I can't imagine why my sister and brother-in-law should have been arrested," he said. "They certainly were not mixed up in any political interests in Russia, but were travelling for pleasure."

Kellogg Durland is a Harvard graduate, and for more than a year was assistant head writer in the University Settlement on Eldridge street. Durland hits Czar in Book.

Mr. Durland in all probability would have been held a prisoner with the Strunskys, had the Russian police been aware of the contents of the New Yorker's book, "The Century Company," was only placed on sale Saturday. In this book Mr. Durland commits the Russian crime of terrorism as he refers to the Czar as "that aristocratic man named."

Together with Walling, a man named seeking the body of his brother, and kept the search with the coming of daylight. He suffered from exposure and for want of water and food.

DENIAL BY LONGWORTH.
CINCINNATI, Oct. 21.—Regarding the statement that he will be appointed Ambassador to Berlin Congressman Nicholas Longworth, the President's son-in-law, said to-day: There is nothing in it.

After sailing for miles off Coney Island all night and the greater part of to-day in a vain search for the body of his brother, Edward, who had been knocked overboard yesterday by the swinging of the boom of the sailboat, Joseph Benson, of No. 35 Fifth street, Brooklyn, put into Coney Island to-day and reported the loss of his brother to the police.

It was the custom of Edward, who was thirty-seven years old, and Joseph, who is thirty-nine, to go fishing every Sunday in their small sailboat. They had reached a point five miles out in the ocean, almost opposite Dreamland, yesterday when the main sail, caught by a puff, filled quickly and, as Edward was standing on deck, his back to the boom. Before he could duck out of the way at a cry of alarm from his brother Edward was struck on the head and tumbled into the water. He did not resurface.

SUBJECTED ART TO HIGH FINANCIERING

Alleged Brown Student Is Charged With Swindling
Well-Known Dealers.

Lieut. Detective Ross arrested a young man at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue this afternoon who is charged with having swindled half a dozen or more art dealers in the last month. The prisoner, gave the name of Walter C. Stickle and said his home is at No. 124 Spruce street, Philadelphia. He claims he is a student in Brown University.

Ross took Stickle to Headquarters and locked him up. He will be arraigned in Jefferson Market Police Court to-night.

According to Ross, Stickle, who has been living at the Barbours Hotel and Walter Leonard, securing paintings and other objects of art from dealers on credit and selling them to other dealers for cash. The transaction attracted police attention had its beginning Sept. 25.

On that date a young man of good appearance giving the name of Stickle, called at Ehrlich's Art Gallery, No. 423 Fifth avenue, and bought a $100 painting, which he ordered sent to a man named after at the Hotel Somerset, for a wedding present. The painting was delivered at the Somerset, where a young man received under the name of Stickle, was really Stickle.

The next day he claimed Stickle took the painting to Thomas Hutlock, a dealer at No. 38 Fifth avenue, and had sold the identical painting, which he said was a reproduction of a painting by Thomas Hutlock, to a man named after at the Hotel Somerset, for a wedding present. The painting was delivered at the Somerset, where a young man received under the name of Stickle, was really Stickle.

Waiters Walk Out
IN LUNCHEON RUSH.

Mrs. Rorer's Restaurant Has Strike
Added to Difficulties Following Bankruptcy Dilemma.

Richard Green, counsel for Sarah Tyson Rorer, whose restaurant at No. 42 Broadway, is one of the gathering places for Wall street men, argued before Judge Holt, in the United States District Court this afternoon, that the bank's assets were not sufficient to meet her obligations.

McDonough-Hawkes was appointed receiver three weeks ago, and, with P. Toner McVey, of Philadelphia, as manager, has been conducting the restaurant for the creditors in the involuntary proceeding.

Five minutes later, while every seat in the restaurant was occupied, the twenty-one waiters quit work and went on strike. Manager McVey got enough waiters in an hour to continue the service.

Judge Holt reserved decision.

Five minutes later, while every seat in the restaurant was occupied, the twenty-one waiters quit work and went on strike. Manager McVey got enough waiters in an hour to continue the service.

Judge Holt reserved decision.

Five minutes later, while every seat in the restaurant was occupied, the twenty-one waiters quit work and went on strike. Manager McVey got enough waiters in an hour to continue the service.

Judge Holt reserved decision.

Five minutes later, while every seat in the restaurant was occupied, the twenty-one waiters quit work and went on strike. Manager McVey got enough waiters in an hour to continue the service.

BABY PLAYED ALL DAY BESIDE SLAIN MOTHER

Tired of Toys It Finally Cried and Neighbors Were Attracted to House.

All afternoon yesterday neighbors heard a baby now prattling now crying in the home of Mrs. Philomina Trinacone, No. 43 Central avenue, Union Hill, N. J. Toward evening neighbors entered the open door for the child was crying pitifully. The baby heard the footsteps and broke into a giggling laugh as they entered the dining room. There at the baby on the floor beside the body of its mother. Its tears were scattered about. The mother was dead, her neck having been hacked with a knife. She had probably lain dead for several hours, and during all that time the baby had laughed and cried by her side.

How the woman came by her death the police could not tell. She had been struck from behind a vicious blow that had almost severed her head from her body. There had been no struggle, for everything about the room was in order and the woman had lain as she fell.

Mrs. Trinacone conducted a boarding-house for laborers in the neighborhood. She was twenty-four years old and good-looking. Her husband is none of her boarders could tell. Six of the boarders returned to the house as the police were taking an inventory. They were all placed under arrest as witnesses. They said that during the noonday meal Ani-mano Sertiano, the sixth boarder, had fought with the meal, and that when the others had left the table he and the housewife were still engaged in a bitter quarrel. He could not be found last night and the police are searching for him.

CRONAN, MODEST HERO.
OUT OF DANGER NOW.

Feared at First That Blood Poison
Might Set In—Naval Lieutenant Loses Fingers.

Lieut. William Pigott Cronan, of the battle-ship Connecticut, was the recipient of congratulations yesterday from friends and officers who visited the big battle-ship at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Lieut. Cronan is the man who, by sacrificing the index finger of his right hand, saved the ship recently when she was at target practice.

It was feared at first that blood poisoning would set in and that possibly Mr. Cronan would lose his hand if not his life, but he received assurances yesterday that danger of this had passed.

Lieut. Cronan is very modest about his deed, but naval men declare he undoubtedly saved the Connecticut from destruction with fearful loss of life.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

WOMAN CAUSES RAID; "GOOD BOY" LOCKED UP

Mrs. Kocher Complained of "Bad Crap-Playing Gang"—
Faints at Son's Arrest.

Mrs. Mary Kocher, of No. 33 Third avenue, is in Bellevue Hospital to-day suffering from the shock that resulted from her discovery that her son John, fourteen years old, was among the prisoners taken by the police yesterday in a raid made at her request on a gang of crapshooters.

She became unconscious and the attack of syncope was so prolonged that she was taken to the hospital, where she lay for several hours. She was unconscious when she was taken to the hospital. To-day it was said she was better and would recover.

Mrs. Kocher telephoned to the Children's Society and to Police Headquarters, then went to the East Thirty-fifth street Police Station to make complaint against the gang.

She protested against the degradation of the Sabbath, saying she had a young son whom she did not wish to be contaminated by the sight of other boys gambling in the street.

Lieut. Green sent Sergt. Gick and Patrolmen Hays and Ahearn to raid the crap game. Mrs. Kocher waited with the lieutenant a few minutes and then started home. On the way she met the policemen coming back with the juvenile crap shooters. One policeman had his hand on the shoulder of Mrs. Kocher's son. The boy is a page at the Hotel Imperial.

The sight was too much for the mother. She threw up her hands, staggered and, but for Detective Levia, who caught her, would have fallen to the sidewalk.

Another of the prisoners was Fred Pendergast, fourteen years old, of No. 22 East Twenty-eighth street, young Kocher's cousin. All the boys were locked up.

EX-ASSEMBLYMAN ROCK SAYS IT HAS NO USE FOR LABOR MEN.

Ex-Assemblyman Thomas Rock, the delegate of the Rock Pavers' Union, denounced the Independence League to-day.

Rock was a candidate for the State Senate at the last election. He had the nomination from the Republicans, but because of the deal then existing between the Independence League and Charles F. Murphy the Hearst faction refused the nomination to Rock, and Thomas P. Grady was elected.

Rock is a candidate for Alderman on the Republican ticket in the Sixteenth Assembly District, and the Hearst men again have refused him an endorsement. He says they have no use for a labor man and are against him because he spoke his mind freely about the league last fall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

JOHN F. M'DERMOTT DEAD.
John F. McDermott, forty, of No. 42 West Twentieth street, a deputy clerk in the Court of General Sessions, died at his residence yesterday afternoon of Bright's disease.

His wife and his brother, Francis McDermott, died at the same residence Oct. 12 from pneumonia. John McDermott was a prominent member of Tammany Hall.

48 FAMILIES ARE EVICTED BY STOVE

Range Smoked, Passerby
Called Engines and Panic
Cleared Tenement.

Nicholas Vassilavos, a contractor, with offices at No. 144 Nassau street, decided that when there was smoke there must be fire, and when he saw a thin curl of blue coming from the buildings at Nos. 40-42 Madison street to-day he called the engines.

The rattling of engines and yelling of firemen sent forty-eight families to the street. Then the firemen discovered the blaze was in a kitchen stove. Vassilavos was standing near the smoking stove when one of the firemen turned the nozzle of his hose toward him. "Shall I or shall I not?" asked the fireman.

"It's a cold morning and you better not," cautioned one of his companions. The firemen rolled up their hose and made off and the man who had turned the nozzle of his hose toward him, which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

was a temporary bridge near here yesterday when the light structure collapsed and the king, who had turned which dropped into the water. His Majesty escaped with a wetting.

KING ALFONSO DUCKED.
MANRIBA, Spain, Oct. 21.—King Alfonso was driving in his automobile

BOWLED OVER BY GAS FROM AUTO

Young Krueger Nearly Asphyxiated Watching Chaffeur Repair Machine.

William Krueger, nineteen years old, son of former Judge Gottfried Krueger, of the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, was the victim in Newark yesterday of a peculiar accident. He was standing near a touring automobile belonging to his father. A chauffeur was repairing the carburetor, and the engine was running at a lively rate.

Krueger, absorbed in the mechanic's movements, leaned over until his face was directly in front of and a few inches from the exhaust valve. The young man seemed suddenly to become dead. He remarked to the chauffeur that he could see "yellow streaks" in front of his eyes. An instant later he fell unconscious to the ground.

The chauffeur, failing to bring Krueger around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.

Krueger, around by dousing water in his face, summoned the doctor. The latter saw that his son was turning black in the face and hurriedly sent Dr. George U. Waite, whose sanitarium is near the Krueger residence, at High and Court streets.

The physician at once diagnosed the case as asphyxiation from unburned gases. He applied oxygen, but it was more than an hour before consciousness was restored.