

MRS. W. H. GARRETT TO MARRY ENGLISH NAVY LIEUTENANT

Carlyon Wilfroy Bellairs Expected To-Morrow and Wedding to Take Place at Once.

HAD BRILLIANT CAREER.

She Was Miss Pierson and Her First Husband Developed Fatal Malady on Their Honeymoon.

Mrs. Harriet W. Garrett, formerly the beautiful Miss Charlotte Pierson, who left New York society to become the wife of the wealthy Baltimore social leader who developed a fatal malady while on his honeymoon, is to marry Lieut. Carlyon Wilfroy Bellairs, R. N. (retired) and former member of the British Parliament. Lieut. Bellairs is expected to arrive in New York from England to-morrow, and it is said that the wedding will take place immediately.

The death of her husband left Mrs.
Garrett enormously wealthy. At the time of their marriage, Oct. 18, 1886, Mr.
Garrett was only twenty-two years of age. The young people had a wedding journey through the South, and upon their return, five weeks after the wedding day, a cancerous growth developed on one of his limbs. He was brought to New York, where the limb was amputated. The operation was performed at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Garrett never recovered from the operation. He was taken to England as soon as his condition would permit and his death at London followed in 1890, less than a year from the date of his wedding to Miss Pierson.

Mr. Garrett was a grandson of J. W.
Garrett, formerly president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, and a son of T. Harrison Garrett. His mother, Miss Whitridge, was a noted Baltimore beauty. Garrett's brother, John A. Garrett, is minister to Venezuela. The entire family has been connected with large railway affairs and particularly with the Baltimore & Ohio.

Mrs. Garrett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Pierson, who have a handsome home at Lawrence, L. I.
The sad fact of her early widowhood seems to add to the interest that she gave to the social set. She was noted for her beauty, and her great wealth served to increase the speculation as to a probable marriage.

Lieutenant Bellairs is rated in this country as "the most prominent unofficial naval critic in the empire," a distinction which he won by a brilliant course in his studies and before the press. He is the son of Lieut.-Gen.
Sir William Bellairs, famous in the British army, and he has served as a correspondent for the London Times during the naval manoeuvres of his own country, as well as with the French army.

Lieut. Bellairs entered the Royal Navy in 1884. He was promoted to midship-man and then "specially promoted" to the rank of lieutenant on a most brilliant examination in which he ranked first in all papers on naval subjects. He was assigned as torpedo lieutenant and retired from the navy in 1902. After leaving the navy he occupied himself with education and politics. He was a lecturer in the War College at the Royal Naval College and contributed valuable technical articles to various and other publications. In politics he was returned for one of the London divisions as a member of the Lower House of Parliament in 1906 and served until 1910.
His London home is at No. 1, Morpeth Terrace, S. W., and his club is the Carlton.

Can You Solve This Mystery?

Are you good at solving mysteries?
Try this:
A man met a girl on a car.
The car upset.
He saved her.
He was invited to spend the night at her father's house.
At midnight he was awakened by a strange clamor.
He rushed to his door, only to find it locked from the outside.
A moment later his hostess appeared and in panic-stricken tones ordered him to leave the house at once without waiting for daylight.
As he went he heard a weird voice that belonged to no member of the household.
That was just the first of many queer adventures that beset the hero of "The Professor's Mystery," which will begin in to-morrow's (Wednesday's) Evening World. It is a story that simply can't be laid down unfinished. Read it.

WALL STREET.

A fair degree of firmness characterized early dealings in the stock market this morning, although further contraction of business was very noticeable.
Except for a point advance in Inter-Met, preferred and Canadian Pacific, price movements during the first hour were insignificant. Initial changes were generally upward, but a subsequent sagging tendency dragged the list to about the same level as yesterday's closing.
News developments were only routine.
Afternoon trading was stagnated until toward the close when a general sagging movement set in that carried prices to the lowest of the day, and left the majority of stocks fractional below last night's final rates. The H. I. shares were the only issues to escape the late reaction. These shares finished a little higher.

Crushed by Falling Beam.

Two men were thrown twenty-feet into an excavation and a heavy beam fell on them at No. 46 Market street, Newark, yesterday. Gottfried Fischer of No. 6 South Twenty-first street, Irvington, N. J., had both legs broken, and Francisco Campion of No.
40 South Eleventh street, Newark, was internally injured.

FISHES THAT CLIMB TREES.

(From the Christian Herald.) There is a fish in India which can climb. Therefore it is called the climbing perch—though, in point of fact, it is not a perch at all, according to the marks of our American perch.
This singular creature has a little ester of water in its head, so that the awful droughts which often afflict its native country have no terrors for it.
When the little fresh-water pool in which it lives dries up, the summer, as it often does for days or even weeks at a time, this queer fish stays alive by means of the water in its head. "Water on the brain," which kills human beings, keeps the climbing perch alive.
Sometimes when its home-pool dries up, it burrows into the mud and lies there torpid until the rains refill its little lake.
Others seem to prefer to shuffle along overland until they find another pool.
It is used to say that these fishes climbed coconut palm trees in quest of the milk. One reliable witness testified that he caught one on the stem of a tree five feet from the ground.

WATCH TICK TELLS WOMAN'S AGE.

(From the Westminster Gazette.) We wonder what death the man will die, or what tortured life he will be caused to lead, who has just discovered the little watch by which a woman's age can be ascertained beyond a doubt—that is to say, while her health is normal. The only instrument required is an ordinary watch. The wrist of the lady whose age is in question is to be tapped. For when you count her pulse, it registers sixty-nine beats per minute, you know that she is between twenty and twenty-five years old. During the next five years seventy-one beats to the minute, and the "femme de trente ans" and over is entitled to seventy-three beats. It is a pity the man of science who has established these facts is not more exact when dealing with the women of riper age, for, according to rumor and tradition, it is only after she is thirty that a woman begins to leave off having birthdays.

FOUR BOY ROBBERS TAKE FULL BLAME TO SHIELD A GIRL

She Is Boss of Gang, but Seven-Year-Old Youngster Says He Inspired Thefts.

The police of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station to-day discovered unexpected chivalry when four members of a youthful gang that has been operating in the vicinity of East One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Pleasant avenue took full responsibility for various crimes in order to shield the girl member of their band.

The old school building at One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Pleasant avenue was recently robbed of about $100 worth of stationery, and a vacant flat at No. 516 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street was stripped of all the lead. The police at once surmised that both breaks were the work of children.

While Detectives Bremer and Curtayne were walking over East One Hundred and Eighteenth street this afternoon they met Salvatore Piccola, twelve years old, of No. 304 Pleasant avenue and Joseph Abby, aged seven, of No. 529 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street. They were carrying lead pipe in a bag and confessed to the police they had taken part in the robberies. They named Joseph's seven-year-old brother, John, Harry Goetz, aged ten, of No. 511 East One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Aranka Sakow, fourteen years old, of No. 511
street as the others implicated.

"Aranka, she only went with us," both boys insisted.
When the quartet was lined up in the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station the girl showed at once that she was the boss of the boys by telling them to keep quiet. However, even little John joined in the protest against the arrest of Aranka and said he was the one who inspired the raids.
They were sent to the Children's Society and their cases will come up in the Children's Court to-morrow.

Court of Appeals Free Slayer.

ALBANY, May 9.—The Court of Appeals this afternoon ordered the discharge from custody of Vincent J. Stable, who shot and killed John McGrath in New York City in September, 1909.
He was indicted and tried for murder in the first degree, and Justice Crain discharged the jury after it had been out five hours without agreeing. Stable was remanded and his counsel sued for his release, claiming that his client could not be put in jeopardy again. The lower court sustained his contention.

PEDDLERS BATTLE FOR BEST STANDS IN SIXTH AVENUE

Push-Cart Men Use Clubs and Knives and Overturn Their Wares During Struggle.

Dennysbrook Fair had nothing on Sixth avenue and Twentieth street this afternoon when Greek met Greek and a battle royal followed among pushcart men for positions of vantage.
When it was over the survivors were not able to avail themselves of their victory, for the reserves of the West Twentieth street station took them to the station house and it was necessary for a surgeon to come and sew up cuts and attend to bruised heads.

That locality is a favorite one with pushcart peddlers in the afternoon, being in the midst of the Sixth avenue shopping district, and there is always a rush to get good stands. About a dozen peddlers arrived simultaneously with their wares, consisting of peanuts, bananas, postcards and the like. Each wanted the stand the other had, and the result was a general battle.
With women shoppers running about panic-stricken and crying "police" and men shouting encouragement the peddlers battled furiously. Sticks used to prop the carts were employed as clubs.

Others resorted to knives. Carts were upset and their contents scattered all over the street. Boys took advantage of the light to help themselves to the wares scattered about.

The rioting had been in progress about fifteen minutes when an alarm was sent in to the Twentieth street station, the sender declaring that a hundred men were being murdered.

When the police arrived they found but three of the combatants left. They were so bruised and battered they were unable to get away, but were arrested.
The others had forsaken their carts in their haste to avoid arrest.

The three arrested were Michael Speropoulos and Marcellus Trumboulos of No. 22 Avenue A and James Gus-topoulos of No. 48 East Nineteenth street. Dr. Brown of the New York Hospital was called to dress their in-
