

Boy of Eight Playing 'Strong Man' Pushes Chum to Death in River

Hurls Him From Pier as Oarsmen, Thinking Shouts Are in Sport, Pay No Heed to Drowning Child.

Alfred Della Penna, eight years old, will never try to be a "strong man" again, nor, in all probability, will he ever "play hookey," for in the Fordham Morgue is the body of his chum, George Tedesco of No. 326 East 148th Street as a result of Charley's "showing off."

The two boys, accompanied by Tony Valenti, seven years old, of No. 426 College Avenue, went to the Harlem River yesterday instead of going to Public School No. 1 in College Avenue at 146th Street. They amused themselves throwing things into the water till Freddie began to brag about how strong he was.

He had been to a show and seen a strong man, and as he strutted up and down before his chums, felt of his muscle and bragged of what he could do.

"I could show you guys off the dock easy, I betcha," he said.

A demonstration did not appeal to his companions and they suggested that instead of showing his strength he watch the oarsmen rowing on the river. He insisted on proving his strength and gave Tony a shove. Tony had hold of the edge of the wharf and didn't fall. George, however, had no hold of anything when he was pushed, and he toppled into the river.

His white face appeared once or twice. Tony shouted and Freddie ran. There were men rowing in shells, but they thought the boys were playing and paid no heed to them.

Little Tony ran at once to school and told his teacher, Miss Anna Spargen, what had happened and she notified the police. The body of the drowned boy was recovered.

George Tedesco was one of seven children, and next to the eldest.

Freddie admitted this morning that he had pushed George, but said he didn't mean to push him into the water. Anyhow, he added, he thought George could swim. George will be buried to-morrow.

COURT UPHOLDS SCIENCE CHURCH IN OUSTING MEMBER

Had Right to Expel Follower of Mrs. Stetson, Is Decision.

Supreme Court Justice McAvoy today upheld the trustees of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in expelling Walter Fairchild, lawyer, No. 1 Liberty Street, from membership on the ground that he is "a loyal supporter of one who has been expelled from membership in the mother church," meaning Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the deposed leader.

Mr. Fairchild was expelled from the church by the vote of the Board of Trustees pursuant to a by-law adopted in Oct., 1921, which was amended to existing canons of the church's government. Mr. Fairchild charged that the passage of the by-law was not in good faith, was a mere subterfuge upon which to base charges of conduct therefore not deemed prejudicial to the discipline of the church and that the by-law was void. In the decision the Court said:

"I think the by-law is fully authorized by the defendant's corporate powers and is adapted to a proper exercise of restraint of members' orthodoxy, and while plaintiff can insist his civil and property rights as an individual shall be determined according to the law of the land, his relations, rights and obligations arising from his position as a member of this religious body may only be determined according to the laws and procedure enacted by that body. Motion by defendants for judgment on the pleadings granted."

The Streamer Hat $1.75

For the Sub-Flapper

THE small girl who isn't quite old enough to be a flapper but who is just as distinct and as intriguing a type herself—she is the one who wears this hat and wears it with all the dash and style of her older sister.

It is natural color Panama with soft broad brim that turns down or up at will and broad swishing sash in navy blue, black, brown, delft or parakeet green. Certainly the ideal hat for general knock-about wear during the next four months.

The price is a special one and as the quantity is limited the hats will probably last no longer than the day.

Other smart sports hats in splendid assortment are chosen especially for the little girl's vacation. Prices most moderate throughout.

Bathing Caps $1.75 $2.75 $3.75

Very Specially Priced!

YOU'LL feel as if you simply must get down on to the beach next Sunday when you see the fascinating array of bathing caps in our Toilet Goods Department. They are gayer, more becoming than those of any past year.

If you are anxious to protect your delicate complexion even in the water, you will want one of the bathing hats with skull cap and a broad protective brim.

Layers and layers of petals in orchid, blue, grey, yellow, red or green are beguilingly flower-like on a close fitting cap. Rubberized bandanna to tie over a diving cap follows the penchant for the Paisley shawl pattern, with bright Paisley coloring. The prices above include caps, hats and bathing suit bags.
