entitled, GERALDINE, OR LOVE'S VICTORY. The story of this pay is deeply interesting—the character truthful—the incidents in suite accordance with legendary authorities and historical facts—and these elements combined render it a faithful transcript of life in the middle ages. It is Mr Bateman's most ardent wish to aid, so far as his humble effort may avail, the elevation of the best interests of the drams, by the presentation of intellectual amusements of the highest tone, and he believes the preduction of this play, and the distinguishes talent he has secured to give it due effect, will be met with a generous verdict of approval from the New-York public.
