A SUMMER PARADISE in the ADIRONDACKS

LAKE GEORGE and LAKE CHAMPLAIN

THIS fascinating region embraces delights by the thousands, and affords opportunities for health, recreation and pleasure unsurpassed by the most famous hot weather retreats of Europe.

The attractions are so varied that the tastes and desires of all are met in a manner that creates enthusiasts of those who seek its comforts for the first or the fortieth time. There are scores of cool, quiet, sequestered spots provided with all the essentials of a restful life, and graduating from surroundings that insure complete repose are resorts where ample provision is made for pastimes that include golf, tennis, croquet, boating, fishing and other aquatic sports.

Pure air, pure water, the thrilling splendor of romantic scenery, wooded mountain slopes, valleys, and dales, brooks and lakes are encountered everywhere.

The Adirondacks, celebrated the world over for their picturesqueness, Lake George, equalling in beauty the lakes of Scotland and England, and Lake Champlain, swept by the antiseptic air of mountains, reach ideals in the gorgeousness of their views and in their appointments for Summer residence.

The cost of maintenance does not exclude discriminating people of moderate means, nor is there a scarcity of any of the luxuries demanded by people of wealth and refinement. The hotel accommodations are extensive and range from the inexpensive to the more pretentious. There are cottages, bungalows, and boarding houses; there are camps and rendezvous of all descriptions—nothing is lacking that the most exacting may demand.
