The money probably would be added, he said, to the productive endowment of the university, where it had been needed for a long time, owing to the growth of the student body out of all proportion to the funds of the university. The chancellor said that Mr. Kennedy had made a subscription to the funds of the university when the change was made from Washington Square to University Heights. He said that Mrs. Kennedy's father was one of the founders of the institution, and that a gift of books from him had marked the beginning of the university's library eighty

WRECKERS AT WORK.

Nickel Plate Train Ploughs Through Saxemill.

Cleveland, Nov. 5.-An open switch caused the wreck to-night of the fast eastbound passenger train No. 2, on the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad (Nickel Plate) at Willoughby, twenty miles east of here. The train took the siding, ran into a carload of ties, and, leaving the track, entered a sawmill, which was demolished.

train was full, but only six were injured, due to the fact that the speed was checked by ploughing through soft dirt beside the track. The injured include the engineer, fireman, T. McGrath, of Charlestown, Mass.; Willard Watson, of Portland, Me. and P. Bass, of New York, who suffered a

Investigation of the switch showed that the lock had been tampered with. The engineer says the switch lights showed a clear track ahead. A bar had been removed from the mechanism to permit of this arrangement, and a monkey wrench was found beside the standard.

It was only a mile or two from Willoughby, at Mentor, that the Twentieth Century Limited on the Lake Shore Railroad was wrecked five years ago under the tampering with the light.

had one of the most picturesque receptions

He had a busy day in Savannah before leaving there at 2:30 p. m. for this city. On a sail down the river to Fort Screven in the morning he witnessed an accident, in which it was at first thought that two men had been killed. As it turned out a negro lost his arm and a white man his The two men were firing a salute to up at the water front. A premature exlosion occurred as the negro was ramming home a charge of powder, and in the cloud of smoke which followed the report of the cannon the President saw a man flying through the air. The man fell into the river. The ramrod he had held shot across the bow of the revenue cutter Yamacraw, on the deck of which the Presition to the accident at once. The man struggling in the water was rescued, however, and when the President landed and inquiries as to the result of the cecident, he was relieved to find there had been no loss of life

The river trip ended, the President took part in a parade through the streets and parks of Savannah on which he must have been greeted by practically the entire population of the city. He then went for a fast spin on the automobile course over which the Grand Prize race of 400 miles was run last fall. In many ways it was the most spectacular ride the President has ever had. The average speed for the twenty-five miles was forty miles an hour, and on the straightaway stretches the speed of the President's car was forty-eight miles an hour. Returning to his train from luncheon at the Thunderbolt Casino, the President made a short dash at the rate of fifty-two miles an hour. He was accompanied by Governor Brown, Mayor Tiedeman of Savannah and Captain Butt, and, with his gray automobile cap pulled well down on his head, he seemed to enjoy the ride in The chauffeur reduced speed only a little in taking the sharply banked turn.

RECEPTION IN CHARLESTON. The President's train reached Charleston at 5:39 p. m., and he was escorted to Citadel Green, the old parade ground of the South Carolina Military Academy, where the greater portion of the military escort was rawn up. The President stopped for a few minutes at the Charleston Orphans' Home and then proceeded to Mayor Rheit's house, where he held an informal reception.

At the head of a procession of automo biles, and escorted by an imposing array of military organizations, he passed through the principal business streets of the city under arches of brilliant electric lights. The sidewalks held a throng which places overflowed into the street, and the President's progress from the Union Station to the home of Mayor Rhett was marked by cheers. Mr. Taft has been here five times in recent years, and he said today in Savannah that he was "going home to Charleston." His reception to-night was a repetition of the cordial welcomes he has received throughout the South

TO DISCUSS TARIFF.

Important Meeting of Appraisers Here Next Week.

[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, Nov. 5.-Treasury officials are looking forward with deep interest to the meeting of customs appraisers which meeting will begin on Monday and last four or five days. About fifty appraisers will attend, and every important port in the United States will be represented. Invitations were sent to appraisers at all ports where the annual customs receipts exceed $100,000.

Although the Payne tariff law has been administered with a minimum of fric-tion, there are many disputed questions to be settled before the law is in perfect working order. Some time ago George W Wanmaker, Appraiser at the Port of New York, who is to preside at the conference next week, requested appraisers to sugappraiser suffeested some phase of customs administration on which he desired light, and Mr. Wanmaker thought that three or four weeks would be required for discussion of all the questions presented. JUDGE DISPLAYS NO PITY. Netwithstanding this passionate appeal, Judge de Valles pursued his interrogatories relentlessly. When he pinned her down with proof that she had concealed jewels which she afterward said had been stelen, she turned her back on him, and, with crossed arms and flashing eyes, admitted that she had done so. justifying her action by the motherly instinct of shielding her daughter from the knowledge that these jewels had come from her lover.

The prisoner indignantly denied that her sensational attempt to revive the case last fall by an accusation against young Wolf, the son of the cook in the Steinheil household, was due to the insistence of her lover, Maurice Borderel, the merchant whom it was supposed she desired to marry. "Borderel had passed out of my life," said Mme. Steinheil, "and I had no thought of him. My sole solicitation was to save my daughter's engagement to Pierre Buisson.'

ACTIONS FOLLOWING MURDER. The judge continued doggedly to force the prisoner to retrace step by step her actions during the feverish months following the crime, confronting her at every turn with some new story which she had told, or compelling her to explain over and over again why she had accused wrongfully Burlingham, the American newspaper man; Couiliard, the servant, and young Wolf. On each occasion Mme. Steinhell found refuge behind the plea that in her frenzied desire to clear herself from the awful imputation that she had murdered her husband and mother she had seized upon any suggestion that came into her head. Judge de Valles was particularly severe in his cross-examination as to the lack of feeling displayed by the prisoner at her mother's funeral.

At one time when Mme. Steinheil declared that Couillard had lied, the judge interrupted sharply with the exclamation, "But you also lied!" At this M. Aubin sprang to his feet and protested against the remark of t. *Court. Judge Valles retorted, "I am justified in saying that the accused has never ceased to lie concerning this affair. Her stories are tissues of lies."

After a short suspension of proceedings in the afternoon Mme. Steinheil had a brief respite while the first deposition of witnesses was read. This introduced description of the condition of the house following the crime. She then described an ordeal to which she had been subjected, and which she said continued for four hours. During that time she said that two French journalists had tortured her into denouncing Wolf by telling her that she was about to b arrested. Before she had finished this recital she broke down under excitement, and was led fainting from the courtroom

TESTIMONY OF THE POLICE.

Three police witnesses testified that the Steinheil house, following the murder, did not have the appearance of having been the scene of a crime the motive of which was robbery. They also said that the bonds in which Mme. Steinheil was tied did not seem to have been genuinely fastened. Following this testimony the court adjourned. The government has sixty-seven witnesses and

In an interview to-day M. Borderel reaffirmed his faith in the innocence of Mme. Steinheil, saying that she knew that marriage with him would be imssible, and that therefore the alleged motive for the murder of her husband was untenable. He added: "She did not revive the case on my account, for she knew that the woman whom I had ! ved was not the woman whose intrigues with Faure, Chouanard, Balincourt and so many others have been exposed."

NO WAR ON FRENCH SCHOOLS.

Archbishop Amiette Defines Position of Catholic Church.

Paris, Nov. 5.—Monsignor Amietto, Arch-bishop of Paris, in a pastoral letter to-day concerning the school question, denies that it is the intention of the French episcopate to wage war against the public schools, and says that it is merely desired to call attention to the fact that in many of the schools it is an open secret that a war against religion is being carried on. To pretend that one cannot denounce an irreligious school without appearing to attack the republic, the archbishop says, amounts to the declaration that a system exists that necessarily is identified with implety atheism. The Church did not admit that it had demanded that the republic apply to the public schools one of its boasted principles, namely, respect of the liberty of conscience. The pastoral closes by saying that the action of the bishops concerning the schools was not dictated by Rome.

ESTRADA DEFEATED.

Zelaya's Forces Reported Moving on Rama.

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 4 (Delayed in transmission) .- Government troops defeated the revolutionists in a sharp engagement to-day, many of General Estrada's followers being killed, wounded or captured. The gevernment lost fifteen men, including General Castillo Chamorro. President Zelaya's forces attacked the rebel general, Fornos Diaz, at Paso las Lajas, capturing that point, which had been defended by four hundred men. The rebels fled in the direction of Rama and were pursued.

The above dispatch, which the corre spondent was unable to get through yesterday, refers doubtless to the battle of Thursconcerning which conflicting reports reached New Orleans and Washington Sympathizers at New Orleans with the Nicaraguan rebels received advices saying that General Estrada was gaining ground and had taken Paso las Lajas. same time the Nicaraguan Chargé d'Affaires at Washington received word from Presi dent Zelaya to the effect that the government troops had met and routed the enemy General Chamorro, mentioned in the Mana gua dispatch as having been killed, should not be confused with General Emiliano Chamorro, who is one of the rebel leaders. Paso las Lajas is near Chile, about sixty miles west of Bluefields, and if, as reported. the government troops have been successful at that point and are pursuing the revolutionists toward Rama it means that President Zelaya has not only regained a foot-hold in the interior, but is pushing on to Rama, which had fallen into the hands of the rebels, and toward Bluefields, the headquarters of revolutionary activity.

"In view of the fact that Mrs. Stetson has heretofore dictated the vote of the whole church, it appears that the congregation has made rapid strides toward freedom from her influence. The motion in her favor was carried in the meeting last night by only a small majority and "It is significant, also, that the vote was not taken until after the meeting had been in session six hours, and about one-third of the congregation had gone home. The disclosures made at the meeting cannot fail to produce good results."

Alfred Farlow said: "As I understand the situation, the opinion of the New York church concerning the findings of the Mother Church does not in any way affect these findings. As a matter of course, it is not within my jurisdiction to foresee and foretell the future conduct of the Mother Church in respect to the New York
