

ASKS LARGER ARMY TO PROTECT JAPAN

Okuma Cabinet Will Call on Diet for More Men and More Ships.

Tokyo, Oct. 30.—A larger army and more ships for the navy were recommended by Count Okuma, the Prime Minister, at a meeting of the government cabinet called to arrange the program for the Imperial Diet, which will assemble on December 5. The session of the Diet promises to be of more than usual interest, for the Okuma cabinet, as a cabinet of the minority parties, must expect to meet some opposition from the Seiyukai, or

Conservative party, which forms a majority of the House of Representatives. "After careful consideration of the problem of national defence from the viewpoints of diplomacy and finance," said the Premier, "the ministry has come to the conclusion that the international situation does not permit the postponement of an increase in the army."
The Premier admitted that the greater part of the money saved by retrenchments effected in recent years, which had been intended for home undertakings, had had to be used for war expenses. Nevertheless, the cabinet favored two more divisions in the army and an increase in the navy.
"Army increase is opposed," the count declared, "on the ground of our growing intimacy with Russia. The ministry is doing its best to advance this intimacy, but this satisfactory diplomatic relationship is no reason for neglecting an expedient measure of national defence. Also we must remember that the solidarity of the Anglo-Japanese alliance depends upon the strength of this empire. Strong national as we are, ours is a seagirt country, and an efficient army is needed to maintain our connection with the continent and to fulfil our mission."

Japan, the Premier concluded, would play an increasingly important role to play in the world events, and all should be united to face the problems that might arise.

BRITISH LOSSES IN EAST PUT AT 80,000

Berlin, Nov. 20 (by wireless via Sayville, N. Y.).—The following was given out officially to the press to-day:
"The information comes from the Turkish military headquarters that the fighting in Trans-Caucasia is proceeding favorably. A Russian standard, four guns and many prisoners were taken.
"The Turkish troops have been reinforced by Persian tribesmen. Lord Newton estimates the British losses at 80,000."

Official Reports of French War Office

Paris, Nov. 20.—The following brief official statement was issued by the War Office to-night:
"There is no important incident to report."
The afternoon statement says:
"The day of November 19 was marked by the almost total absence of infantry attacks on the part of the enemy; at the same time their artillery fire was much less violent than on the afternoon of November 18.
"To the north the weather has been very bad and snow has fallen. All the region of the Yser Canal, to the east of Dixmude, is invaded by the waters.
"In front of Ramscapelle we have withdrawn from the water two 165 centimetre mortars, captured by the Germans. There has been a very faintly intense artillery fire to the south of Ypres.
"On the centre there have been no important actions to report. In the Argonne three vigorous attacks on the part of the enemy's infantry have been repulsed.
"On our right wing the Germans have recaptured the destroyed section of Chauvencourt. Further to the east we have made some progress."
Washington, Nov. 20.—Dispatches from the French Foreign Office to the embassy here to-day say:
"From the sea to Helms there was neither cannonading nor infantry fire from the enemy the entire day. Our artillery, on the other hand, succeeded in dislodging German batteries installed to the east of Nieuport. The British army was subjected to scattered artillery fire for a time, but the weather was exceedingly bad and it stopped for hours.
"There was no important action between Arras and Noyon. From Noyon to Rheims there has been intermittent artillery firing. Our artillery has succeeded in destroying two of the enemy's earthworks and has bombarded their supply trains.
"The bombardment of Rheims has been less intense than in the last few days. In the Argonne one of our trenches which the Germans had succeeded in capturing was immediately retaken by our troops at the point of the bayonet."

German Army Official Report

Berlin, Nov. 20 (by wireless to London).—An official communication issued to-day by the German General Army Headquarters says:
"In West Flanders and in North France no appreciable change in the situation has taken place.
"Heavy rains and snows which first soaked and then partly froze the ground have made our movements very difficult. A French attack at Cambrai, to the southeast of Verdun, was repulsed.
"The situation on the East Prussian frontier remains unchanged. East of the plain of the Mazurian Lakes the Russians captured an unoccupied fort in which were some old stocks of munitions. The retreat of the enemy through Lipno and Neuwami continues. Our attack has made progress to the south of Plock.
"No decision yet has been reached in the fighting around Lodz and to the east of Czenstochowa."

ARMY OF MILLION VOTED IN ENGLAND

Under Secretary for War Thinks This Will Be Sufficient.
London, Nov. 20.—The House of Commons to-day formally passed the vote for the supplementary army estimate, which provides for an additional army of 1,000,000 men.
This is the additional million mentioned by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons last Monday. It is quite apart from the territorial, and is in addition to the 1,100,000 men said to be under arms.
Referring to the supplementary estimate, Harold J. Tennant, Under Secretary for War, said the official view was that this further million men ought to be sufficient, so far as the government was able to see at present, to crown British arms with success. He declined to give the actual numbers of men enlisted, but he remarked that the figures recently given by the Prime Minister, which were roughly in the neighborhood of 1,100,000, were below rather than above the actual total.
The present idea of the War Office, Mr. Tennant continued, was to duplicate the territorial force, making one battalion for home defence and the other for foreign service.
With regard to suggestions that Lord Kitchener's army of recruits should be treated differently to the professional soldiers, Mr. Tennant remarked, "The chief characteristic of Lord Kitchener is not sentiment, and not even persuasive eloquence. These advocates of differential treatment would make him change his decision in a matter on which he feels strongly."

BRITAIN REFUSES TO LET U. S. HAVE WOOL

Declines to Modify Embargo on Imports from Australia and Other Places.
Washington, Nov. 20.—Great Britain has declined to modify in favor of American manufacturers the embargo on exportation of wool from Australia and other British dominions. It had been hoped that after the needs of the British army had been satisfied Americans might be permitted to buy the Australian surplus, giving guarantees that neither the wool nor goods made from it would reach Austria or Germany, but the State Department was informed to-day that for the present at least no exceptions would be made.
In spite of the lack of advance assurance, however, officials here and interested manufacturers here are confident that there will be a modification later.
It is understood that the decision of the British Privy Council as to wool applies also to rubber.

STRANGE AERO SEEN OVER ENGLISH TOWN

London, Nov. 20.—A Dover Central News dispatch says an aircraft was seen over Dungeness this evening.
The official press bureau, while permitting this dispatch to be published, said it could not vouch for its accuracy.
There was no indication as to the nationality of the aircraft, but it is thought here that it probably was an English one.

SCHWAB SILENT ABOUT AUDACIOUS

Steel Man, Who Was on the Olympic at Time of Disaster, Won't Talk.
REASON IS, HE WAS GUEST OF ENGLAND
Here on the Adriatic, Predicts Prosperity—Denies New Contracts with Allies.
Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, and Archibald Johnston, the first vice-president, who were passengers on the White Star liner Olympic when she rescued the crew and tried to tow the lost British battle-cruiser Audacious, arrived here last night from Liverpool by the White Star liner Adriatic after a business trip of two weeks in England.
Mr. Schwab contributed no information concerning the loss of the British warship. The subject was brought to his attention, but he declared that he had been practically a guest of the British government since his arrival in England and as such he could not talk of the nation's affairs. When informed that official confirmation had come out concerning the Audacious, Mr. Schwab said: "Well, that is sufficient, and there is nothing more to be said about it."
The steel man was in a much more optimistic frame of mind than when he departed on the Olympic, a month ago. "I have not felt so confident of the bright outlook for real prosperity conditions in America in three years," said Mr. Schwab. "I look for a steady increase of business prosperity, not one of those industrial hurries, but prosperity on a substantial basis."
"The United States is going to be favorably benefited by the lamentable conditions existing in Europe, and she will perhaps be the most favored of all countries by the war," he said. "The United States has been producing from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 tons of steel annually, 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of which she had exported. This industry has either completely collapsed or is being crippled, and the world must turn to the United States for steel."
Mr. Schwab denied emphatically that he and Mr. Johnston had made new contracts with the British or French governments. He said that before the war he had some contracts with Great Britain, but that these had not been augmented. In this connection Mr. Schwab made the ambiguous statement that the good news he had brought over with him was of such a nature that it could not be made public just now.
The primary object of his trip to England he said was to attend to certain details of his contract for coast defense armament along the Chilean coast, the financing of which is being carried on in London.
John R. Drexel, the retired banker, a brother of Anthony J. Drexel, who is with a French hospital corps, returned on the Adriatic accompanied by Mrs. Drexel. He said he believed the war would not be over for a year, and that Germany would have to be starved out before she would give in. Mr. Drexel said he felt confident that the London Stock Exchange would not open for many months.
Dr. David Jayne Hill, former American Ambassador to Berlin, accompanied by his wife and daughter, returned on the Adriatic after a trip of four months in Switzerland and Paris. Dr. Hill said that the Swiss had mobilized about 200,000 men as a measure of defence, and would, he thought, be able to maintain their neutrality.
When the Adriatic left Liverpool she had among her saloon passengers Alexander Duncan, thirty-four years old, a Scotchman, of wealthy parents, who lived at Llandudno, Gwynedd, Wales. Wednesday he was missed, and it is believed he jumped into the sea while the vessel was weathering a heavy westerly gale. Even if the young man had been seen to jump overboard it is not likely that he could have been rescued. It was said aboard the steamship that Duncan had brooded over having been rejected for military duty because of physical disability.

NO PROTEST ON CONTRABAND LIST

U. S. Will Reserve Right to Object in Specific Cases.
(From The Tribune Bureau.)
Washington, Nov. 20.—The United States will make no general protest against the absolute and conditional contraband list submitted to the State Department on October 31 by the British Ambassador, but will reserve the right to object if specific cases of seizure warrant complaints.
This policy was outlined by State Department officials to-day in response to inquiries. Manufacturers of automobiles and other vehicles who have received orders from Germany have been particularly anxious to have the State Department make some arrangement whereby they could fill these orders without danger of loss.
Officials point out that merchants and manufacturers of the United States have a perfect legal right to sell their products to belligerents and that there is no international law to prohibit such sales, except where this country is made the base for outfitting an expedition to a belligerent country. It is made clear, however, that shipments are made at the risk of the shipper so far as this government is concerned if the consignment comes under the contraband ban of a belligerent.

ATTEMPT MADE TO KILL SULTAN

(By Cable to The Tribune.)
Petrograd, Nov. 20.—Conferences with Balkan representatives here have shown they are much more favorable to giving active support to the Triple Entente since Turkey's entrance into the war.
Reports have reached Bucharest that many arrests are being made daily in Constantinople in consequence of an attempt against the life of the Sultan. A group has been arrested belonging to an association organized by Barkham Edin. It is supposed that the Sultan's heir, Yussuf Iseddin, participated in the plot.
THREE RELIEF DAYS
New York University to Work for Belgians.
Elmer E. Brown, chancellor, announced yesterday that November 23, 24 and 25 will be known as Belgian relief days at New York University. Archibald L. Bounton, dean of the college of arts and pure science, appealed to the students to aid the suffering Belgians.
Chancellor Brown's action came as a result of a plea from R. S. Shipley, master of Christ College, Cambridge, England, who wrote: "Send clothes and more clothes. I plead for a people in beggary and a nation that is stretching out its hands for food."

LORD ANGLESEY AT HOME FOR CLOTHES

War Spoils Wealthy Marquis's Wardrobe—Predecessor Had 300 Coats.
(By Cable to The Tribune.)
London, Nov. 20.—The reason why the Marquis of Anglesey, one of the wealthiest peers in England, suddenly returned from France a few days ago, and after remaining in the Ritz Hotel twenty-four hours, hastened back to rejoin his regiment, has just been revealed. It appears that Lord Anglesey was forced to apply for a brief leave because he actually didn't have a coat to his back. The ordinary wear and tear of campaigning started the work of demolition on a khaki uniform of a somewhat fragile quality, designed by a fashionable tailor, and a piece of shrapnel completed it by ripping the whole back out, yet without wounding his lordship.
The marquis had two uniform coats made during his brief visit. It is curious to note that the last holder of the title, the present marquis's cousin, was chiefly famous as the possessor of the most extensive wardrobe in England, including more than three hundred coats.

1,500 BRITISH SAID TO HAVE DROWNED

Berlin, Nov. 20 (by wireless via Sayville, N. Y.).—Reports received to-day from Holland, according to information given out in official circles here, are to the effect that in the fighting near Biscote and Dixmude the French lost 29,000 men and that 1,500 British were drowned in the Yser Canal.

BETTER OR WORSE EDICT Judge Tells Marriage Rules to Woman in Court.

When a couple marry they marry for better or for worse, and anything the man may do after marriage will not be sufficient to get a decree of annulment in the court of Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, sitting at White Plains.
Judge Tompkins made this clear yesterday in refusing to grant an annulment of the marriage of Roberta Woodruff, of Yonkers, to Amos T. Woodruff. Mrs. Woodruff testified that Woodruff prior to their marriage asserted he was earning a large salary, and had exhibited large amounts of money at times, but that after their marriage she found his salary was small, and that he had been converting checks of his employers to his own use. On this discovery she said she had left him.
Judge Tompkins said:
"I never heard of a case like this. The annulment of a marriage cannot be obtained because of what a man does after his marriage. The couple take each other for better or worse."

GERMAN CRUISER STIRS UP NORWAY

London, Nov. 21.—A dispatch to the Central News from Copenhagen says: "Because the German auxiliary cruiser Berlin, now interned, was able to pass Port Trondhjem, Norway, unchallenged, the commandant of the fort has been removed and an inquiry instituted. The people are greatly stirred over the incident, as Trondhjem is a naval harbor, provided with powerful searchlights, and the question is asked how the Berlin was able to enter it unnoticed."
The Berlin, a former North German Lloyd steamer, entered Trondhjem on November 16 and voluntarily interned. It was believed that previously she had been acting as a convoy for submarines.

Nov. 21st Only The Havana-American brand, "Manufactured in Bond," in Tampa, Fla., is a national favorite among clear Havana smokers. The Blunt is one of the popular shapes.

This has come to be so apparent—no matter how severe the comparison—that we are going to prove it without cost to smokers.

For this test we are going to give FREE to smokers cigars "Made in U. S. A." under a United States law which positively assures them that what they pay for they get—not only that the cigars are "Made in U. S. A.," but are exactly as represented.

Every box of these cigars is sealed with the new bonded stamp reading "Manufactured in Bond," which certifies that the U. S. Government itself guarantees them to be made exclusively of tobacco imported from Havana and to have been made (according to the Spanish method) by the skilled workmen of the Tampa, Fla., factories.
