

Every Letter in U.S. To Carry Appeal For Liberty Loan

All Postoffices, Mail Wagons and Carriers To Be Used for Advertising

Big Campaign Planned

Largest Electrical Sign Ever Built To Be Swung Over Broadway

Washington, May 7.—The full possibilities of the United States mails as a medium of governmental publicity are to be developed at once to bring home to every person in the country the need of subscribing to the Liberty Loan. Every letter soon is to bear a special cancellation stamp of striking design to notify its recipient that the nation is calling for contributions. Every letter box is to be placarded. Every postoffice is to display posters, every one of the 60,000 vehicles operated in the country to carry a sign to proclaim the Liberty Loan. Every letter carrier is to have a card to stick in his cap and is to be an active bearer of information.

Decided at Conference
This part of the nationwide advertising campaign was decided upon today at a conference between Robert W. Woolley, publicity director for the loan, and James Blakeslee, fourth assistant postmaster general. Other features of the campaign will be decided later. In the meantime other methods of bringing to every citizen of the country a realization of the nation's needs and his opportunity to help are under consideration.

Among these are the use of which electrical advertising signs can be placed. The largest electrical sign ever built will be placed at Broadway and Forty-second Street, New York. It will be the largest spot in America, to flash in red, white and blue every night an appeal for subscriptions to the loan. This sign will be built and maintained free of cost to the government by the Electric Sign Company, of New York, which is similarly operated in other large cities.

In addition, Secretary McAdoo has under consideration a speech-making tour in the interest of the big issue. Mr. McAdoo has received numerous invitations recently to speak in the Middle West, and while he has reached no decision regarding them, it is believed he will make a short tour if he can spare the time.

Responses to the offer of the big issue have been extremely gratifying thus far, Mr. McAdoo said tonight. Today's tabulation of replies received from banks and bankers showed no diminution in the rate at which subscriptions are pouring in. Thirty-five of the chief cities of the country offered to-day to take $104,846,000 worth of the bonds in addition to previous offers bringing their total up to $325,976,000 for the three days in which subscriptions have been received.

In many instances, however, the offers were in the nature of estimates as to what could be taken rather than outright offerings to subscribe. In making the totals of the responses thus far received these estimates have been included with outright offers of subscriptions. Mr. McAdoo explained tonight, however, that there is a marked distinction between the two.

In distributing the bonds Mr. McAdoo will have the assistance of Lewis R. Franklin, of New York, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America. Mr. McAdoo asked Mr. Franklin last week to suggest a man to aid in this work, and to-day received a reply in which Mr. Franklin offered his own services, which were accepted.

U.S. to Loan Britain $100,000,000 in May

Washington, May 7.—The government has decided to lend Great Britain $100,000,000 to meet her needs in this money during May. A second installment of $100,000,000 was transferred to the British Embassy to-day, making, with the $125,000,000 loaned her on Saturday, a total of one-half of the May loan.

The decision agrees with estimates that this government would be called upon to finance the Allies up to at least $100,000,000 a month. Sums already pledged for the next month or so are at the rate of $300,000,000 a month, and cover only the needs of Great Britain, France and Italy. Additional loans to Russia, Belgium and possibly to Serbia will swell the total, it is believed, to at least $400,000,000, and bring the total advanced to the Allies prior to July 1, when the first proceeds of the Liberty loan will be available, up to approximately $1,000,000,000.

Leading Bankers Organize Board To Help in Pushing Liberty Loan

Heads of New York Institutions Form Committee at McAdoo's Request—Will Meet Every Day to Supervise Placing of Bonds

A committee of leading American bankers has been formed and its services have been placed at the disposal of the government to assist in the distribution of the $2,000,000,000 Liberty Loan. All day long subscriptions to the bonds continued to pour into the banks and brokerage houses and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Many New York subscriptions were sent direct to Washington.

The committee was organized in accordance with the request of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo that each of the twelve Federal Reserve banks organize a central committee to place the loan. Benjamin Strong, Jr., governor of the New York Reserve Bank, appointed the following bankers to represent this district:

Benjamin Strong, J. S. Alexander, George F. Baker, A. B. Forbes, G. W. McGarrath, J. P. Morgan, Seward Prosser, Charles H. Sabin, Jacob H. Schiff, F. A. Vanderlip, A. H. Wiggin and William Woodward.

The alternates are Pierre Jay, E. H. Andrey, F. L. Hine, E. B. Swezey, John McHugh, H. P. Davidson, A. H. Markwald, N. D. Jay, M. L. Schiff, C. D. Rich, E. R. Tinker and E. H. Perry.

Strong Heads Committee
The committee met yesterday at the Federal Reserve Bank and organized by electing Governor Strong chairman and James F. Curtis secretary. The banking members comprise mainly the presidents of the leading Wall Street banks and trust companies, while the alternates are the junior officers of those institutions.

A. N. Anderson, head of the bond department of J. P. Morgan & Co., was elected executive manager of the committee. Mr. Anderson will devote all his time to the services of the committee and will correlate the work of that body and that of various sub-committees.

Four sub-committees, each with a member of the general committee as chairman, have been decided on. The first of these, a committee on distribution, will be made up of F. Q. Brown, of Redmond & Co.; James Brown, of Brown Brothers & Co.; Clarence Dillon, of William A. Read & Co.; Pliny Fisk, of Harvey Fisk & Sons; N. B. G. H. Kinnicutt, of Kinnicutt & Co.; C. E. Mitchell, president of the National City Company; C. S. Sargent, Jr., of Kinder, Peabody & Co.; A. J. Sheldon, of Lee, Higginson & Co.; Frederick H. Strauss, of J. & W. Seligman & Co., and F. M. Weld, of White, Weld & Co.

Ruth McEnery Stuart, Southern Writer, Dead

Famous as Author of Short Stories in Negro Dialect
Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, of 220 Central Park South, the well known writer of Southern stories, died Sunday, following a long illness. Mrs. Stuart was born February 20, 1860, in Avoyelles Parish, La., and received her education in public and private schools of New Orleans.

At the age of nineteen she was married to Alfred O. Stuart, a cotton planter, who died in 1883. Her first printed story, "Uncle Mingo's Speculations," appeared in "The Princeton Review" five years later.

Mrs. Stuart moved to New York in 1891 and lived here until her last illness. She had the faculty of combining humor and pathos in her stories, and although she spent the latter part of her life in the North, she still wrote of the negroes and the people of the South.

The commuter-gardener makes an early discovery. Finds the Potato is just as sensitive to temperature changes as he is himself.

For the Potato—it means planting four inches below the actual surface of the soil and not four inches below the top of the hilled-up ridge. (The planter may wear old clothes.)

For the commuter—a new Spring overcoat.

Maybe you haven't seen the smart plaited back overcoats with sewed on belt!

For Soldiers of the Soil—"Westpointer" shoes.

Year's War to Cost U. S. Ten Billion, Bankers Are Told

Head of Federal Reserve Board Says He Knows It Can Be Raised

Problem One of Credit

"Save a Cent a Meal," Slogan Urged at Convention of American Association

[From a Staff Correspondent of the Tribune]

Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., May 7.—Ten billion dollars will be the amount this nation will have to raise if the war continues for one more year. This was the prediction made here tonight by William P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, at a banquet at Briarcliff Lodge which brought the first day's session of the convention of the American Bankers' Association to a close.

"This war will be fought by the American banker," said Mr. Harding. "The banks will make the Liberty Loan a most tremendous success. If the war should continue one more year the bankers of the country will have to raise $10,000,000,000. We don't know how they will do it, but we know that they will do it."

"The banks should not subscribe for large amounts of the loan themselves, but should get their clients to do it. The problem to-day is one of credit, not of cash."

Practically every dollar of the nation's financial resources is represented by the bankers who are gathered here. From the moment that the executive council of the bankers' organization opened its convention until the close of the banquet little else was discussed save ways and means of mobilizing the nation's resources for war.

Financing of War Considered
Ways of financing the war directly, of conserving the nation's food products, of stopping the leaks caused by individual and corporate waste, all were considered by the various committees and will be the subject of recommendations to the entire body to-morrow or Wednesday, the closing day of the convention.

One of the immediate steps will be the beginning of a nation-wide advertising campaign to eliminate household and table waste, if recommendations made to the Agricultural Commission are carried out.

"Save a cent a meal," is a slogan suggested by Joseph Hirsch, of Corpus Christi, Tex., and applauded by members of the agricultural body.

"Two years of good crops would fill out the ribs of a hungry Europe," he said. "While those crops are being raised, let us cut down just a little on each meal. If every one of the nation's 102,000,000 inhabitants will save a penny's worth of food from each meal we will bring about beneficial results the extent of which can hardly be calculated."

The state bank section of the convention adopted resolutions favoring placing such banks under the provisions of the Federal Reserve system.
