SECRETARY FOSTER BACK, WITH A FINE BLACK ETE THAT HE

GOT ON THE SPREE

He Didn't Say Anything Abroad About Talk Bimetaillem a Little, and Found that the Subject Was Regarded as a Live One

England-A Diplomatte Denial, The Hon. Charles Foster, Secretary of the Treasury, arrived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday morning. The steamship Spree, on thich the Secretary sailed from Southampton. after his short holiday in London, dropped anchor at Quarantine at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Most of the Secretary's friends from Washington were abed at the Fifth Avenue when news came that the steamship had been sighted. They hustled out and to the foot of West Twenty-third street, where the revenue cutter Manhattan with steam up was moored. In the little party were Gen. O. L. Spaulding. Acting Secretary: Mr. Foster's private secretary, Robert J. Wynne; Frank Sperry, at one time private secretary to Secretary Folger. Secretary Manning, Collector Erhardt, and Collector Hendricks; and Frederick L. Stocks. chief clerk of the Treasury Department. The Innhattan steamed down to Quarantine and tied up alongside the Spree. The Laura M. Starin, with Howard Carroll and a few others aboard, came alongside the Manbattan.

The Secretary was asleep. The visitors and their craft bobbed about until suprise, when and had an early breakfast with the Secretary. He was glad to see them. They confoled with him on a black eye he had got by being thrown against a stanchion in a gale or the way over. For the first time the Secretary got a realizing sense of the shabbiness of the old revenue cutters on duty at the port of New York. He declined to risk himself in the Man-old revenue cutters on duty at the port of New York. He declined to risk himsolf in the Manhattan, and with his friends he sailed in the Laura M. Starin to the loot of West Twentythird street, where his wife and daughter greeted him and were sorry for his black eye. It was shortly after 90 clock when the Secretary reached the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and he west directly to his apartment on the second geor. Down in the main corridor were local politicians innumerable waiting to congratulate him on his safe arrival. O'Denovan Rossa, in a big slouch hat pulled over his syes, and with a roil of manuscript as thick as a log, was in the throng. He acted as if he had the whole Irish cause on his shoulders. He wanted to got at the Secretary and demand from him an explanation of the stories that the Secretary, while in London, had spoken of our Irish immigrants as "clam-mouthed" or as "flannel-mouthed." The Secretary hadn't time to bother with Rossa, and the dynamiter, after parading the corridors for several hours, at last gave it up and departed.

The Secretary had a long chat with his old friend Henry W. Cannon, President of the Chase National Bank, R. V. White Senator Calvin S. Brice, and others interested in flanacial matters, and subsequently Collector Hendricks, Appraiser Cooker, Bernard Biglin, ex-Coroner John R. Nugent, James A. Blanchard, and other leading lights in the Republican party grasped the Secretary's hand a long that with taken a drop of medicine. He was vastly improved in appearance (barring his left eye), and he was assured by physicians who were among his visitors that that would quickly mend. When the Secretary sailed from New York he was as thin as a rail, and his face was almost emiciated after his long illiness, in Washington and at Old Point Comfort. His cheeks are now filed out, and he was as spry as a youth of 20.

The bass drums of the St. Patrick's parade were booming and the bands crashing in front of the hotel in the afternoon while The Sun's reporter had an extended conversation with the S vere discussed. It was a general and a run-ling conversation between us all. There were ning conversation between us all. There were no set speeches, and every man said exactly what he thought. The subject of immigration came up, and, of course, a good deal was said about that. It was evident that most of those present had accepted the report of Mr. Schultels, attached to the Immigration Bureau of New York, as the report of the entire Commission, instead of interpreting it as it should be interpreted—the individual utterance of Mr. Schultels. I do not even remember whether the word 'fannél-mouthed' was used. Ihm, however, pretty certain that no offensive utterances of any kind escaped my lips. I remember saying that the Irish, the Germans, and the Scandinavians readily assimilated with our people; so much so that very young children when they arrived at the age of 21 or thereabouts could not in many cases be dechildren when they arrived at the age of 21 or thereabouts could not in many cases be detected from our own American children. A good deal of nonsense has been sent through the country about my alleged utterances concerning the Irish."

The Secretary occasionally held his hand to his left eye. It was severely bruised and the lids and upper part of the cheek were quite dark. "That is nothing to what it was several days ago," he said. "One day when I was on the upper deck of the Spree, reclining in a steamer chair, the ship gave a great lurch and tumbled a couple of ladies close to my chair onto the deck. Without thinking of the ship's pitching. I clambered out of my chair to assist them, when another great lurch came and I was thrown against a stanchion. My eye immediately swelled, and you would have thought I had been in a prize fight. I hadn't had a black eye before since I was a ind at school."

The Secretary was asked if he cared to say

The Secretary was asked if he cared to say anything about the proposed silver conference between Great Britain and the United States. He replied that he preferred to say as little as possible about that subject. "I did not go abroad to discuss that matter." said the Secretary. "but, naturally, when I met Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Lord Sallsbury, the matter was discussed in an informal way. I found beyond all doubt that there is in kagland a growing appreciation of bimetallism. This is particularly true of the people outside of London. Mr. Gladstone believes in monometallism. The English Government is subject to changes quite as much as our own, and, naturally, the silver question there is quite as much one of politics as anywhere else. I do not know whether Mr. Gladstone would be so strongly in favor of monometallism should his forces come to the front, but I do know that those in power in England now have given the subject of the better use of silver much consideration, and that at the proper time the matter will be satisfactorily settled. Of course I cannot say when that time will be. The exigencies of party politics in England may defer conclusive action, but for all that the sprowing sentiment of England and of the majority, in my estimation, is in favor of bimetallic coinage."

majority, in my estimation, is in favor of bimetalic coinage."

Coming down to local matters, the Secretary was asked when the Commissioners to build the new Custom House and Appraisers' stores are to be appointed. There are five of these Commissionerships, worth $5.000 a year each, the holders to serve until the buildings are completed. They are what are considered in politics as indefinite appointments, or appointments lasting over an indefinite period. The Secretary has the appointments nothing is said about the political complexion of the Commissioners. The dominance of the Democrats in the House of Representsilves, however, has had a new influence on the appointments. By an act of Congress the old Custom House at Wall and William streets, sannot be sold for less than $4,000,000.
The Secretary and all hands in Washington are now convinced that they will never be able to get that price for the site. It will be nacessary for Congress to amend the law permiting the Secretary to take a lower price. The Democrats will not amend this inw unless they have assurances that two of the Commissionrest to be appointed by the Secretary shall be Democrats. The Secretary said that he understood the situation, and that he did not disapprove of appointing two Democrats on the Commission.

But until the old site is sold and until the ommission.

"But until the old site is sold and until the court proceedings condemning the Bowling Green property for Government use are decided." continued the Becretary, "there is no use under the sun of appointing Commissioners who have nothing to do but to draw their salaries. I have been told that the appointment of the Commissioners would harry the salaries of the clud site and would be beneficial in other ways. I do not understand that to be the situation."

other ways. I do not understand that to be the situation."

The secretary's foreign trip has been much discussed by New York bankers and their fields. On Feb. 26 This Sun and other New York newspapers announced that Great British had at last agreed to discuss with the United States the bimetallic currency question. It was said, further, that there would be a forthcoming conference between the two countries on this great subject. It was amounced at the same time a neer-toneous story had been circulated that Secretary Foster's wist to Europe had something to do with such a conference. The arrangements for the conference. The arrangements for the conference were completed long before Mr. Foster contemplated his foreign trip, and the Secretary in conversation yesterday confirmed this statement. But he reiterated that he did not go abroad for the purpose of discussing this matter either with Mr. Goschen or with Lord salisbury. It was remarked that faity-eight hours after those newspaper articles were written Acting Secretary Spanishing sent out from Washington an "official" denial that any conference had been conferminated or in any way thought of. It was made clear vesterday that this denial was d plomatic. The reports were cabled abroad, and salisbury and if Goschen had a conference and a talk with finister Lincoln. The result of that conference was that Minister Lincoln notified Acting Secretary Spaulding that the English Fremier and Mr. Goschen believed that the news of the conference had been prematurely published and that the result might be affected if the report were not denied. It was made clear to Acting Secretary Spaulding that the opponents of bimetallism in England might throw stumbling blocks in the pathway of the Marquis of Salisbury and Mr. Goschen, and that pending the discussion over the conference if would be the correct diplomatic thing to dony that any such conference was intended or that Mr. Foster would talk to the Marquis of Salisbury or Mr. Goschen on the subject.

intended or that Mr Foster would talk to the Marquis of Salisbury or Mr. Goschen on the Subject.

The Secretary bimself was not at all annoyed that the news of the intended conference had been printed. It was not only the truth, but it also had the effect, in their estimation, of quieting the apprehensions of certain bankers and others, and also materially atied in checking gold shipments.

The Secretary said that he would go to Washington to-day.

The steamship Spree had one of the roughest and most disagreeable passages in her history. Snow, hall, squalls, heavy seas, rain, and high winds fought with one another without cessation for the boner of keeping the big steamer and all on board in as miserable a plight as possible. On the third day out a monster wave swept over the upper deck, carrying away the cauvas bulwarks and snapping the iron support like a reed. It swashed along the length of the deck tumbling passengers, saliors, steamer chairs, and rugs along with it. like a big breaker at the seashors. Secretary Foster's mishap, although not serious, was described by the officers as extremely comical. Mr. Foster, according to their account, was just in the act of saluting one of the ladles who had braved the weather in her steamer chair whon the vessel took a sudden lurch and roll to port, tumbling the Secretary of the Treasury off his pins and carrying him bumpety-bump until he atruck the rail, and then back again when she righted. On the way back, it is said, the corner of a steamer chair got in the way of his eye.

HELEN HUNTER HEARD FROM. She Got $75 from Her Aunt In Ireland and Crossed the Atlantic A letter was received this week from Helen Hunter, the 10-year-old daughter of John appeared several works ago. It was written on board an ocean steamship and mailed at Queenstown. In it the girl briefly narrates her adventures since leaving her home. She was learning dressmaking at Mme. Barnos's place in Twenty-third street, near Fourth avenue. One Monday morning she started for her work as usual, but failed to reach there. She did not return home that night, and a search was begun by the police and her parents, which did not end until the receipt of search was begun by the police and her parents, which did not end until the receipt of her letter.

She has a wealthy aunt in Ireland, with whom she lived before her parents brought her to this country five years ago. It appears now that she was never satisfied with the change, and always wanted to return to her aunt. In her letter she wrote that on the morning of her disappearance she sent a letter to her aunt for money to pay her fare to Ireland. It is not thought she informed her aunt that she had left her home. She remained in New York for more than a week. Then she received $78 from her aunt. With this she added to her meagre wardrobe and bought a first-class fare to Queenstown, where, it is learned, she was met by her aunt.

It is said her parents will take no steps to bring her back. The Hunter family are members of the Presbyterian church in Astoria. Mr. Hunter's health is said to have failed greatly since his daughter's disappearance. He searched for her almost night and day, and daily made a tour of the hospitals and the Morgue. Mrs. Hunter fully believed that her daughter was dead. They never expected to see her again.

Minnie Hubbard. The two families live in the same house, and the girls have been inseparable companions. The Hubbard girl returned home on Tuesday, and said she knew nothing of Addie's whereabouts. After a search the missing girl was found yesterday in a boarding house in the suburbs of the city, where she and Minnie had spent the two days. Mrs. Phillips said to-day:

"I am ignorant of my daughter's conduct while she was away. The girl has not appeared to be herself for several months. Within that time she has developed an unusual fondness for Minnie Hubbard. I could not keep her out of her company, and I was afraid it would develop into a Mitchell-Ward affair. Addie told me last week that she would rather be dead than be separated from Minnie. She cared nothing whatever for the society of men, and said she never expected to marry a man. If she was rich she would marry Minnie, if it could be done, and, if not, then she would buy a place and live with her for the balance of her days. I have spoken to Mrs. Hubbard about the affection existing between the girls, and begged her to take some steps toward breaking it. I have sent Addle away so as to get her out of my sight until I have since the first and been covered with salt grass. Since then the high northeast winds have lifted the loostime to reflect as to the best course to pursue

Train Robber Perry Sucs a Museum Manager for $10,000 Damages.

Burralo, March 17 .- M. S. Robinson, man ager of Wonderland Musée and Theatre, has een sued for $10.000 damages by Oliver Curtis Perry, the bold adventurer who attempted to rob the American express car on the New York Central Railroad a few weeks ago. The enterprising theatre manager, at the cost of enterprising theatre manager, at the cost of much trouble and money, got up two wax figures of Perry for the musee here, one showing him dressed in ordinary clothes and as he appeared when he was nassing himself off for a pious young man, and the other showing him in his burglar's outfit, with revolver and tools in hand, as he looked when he was robbing the express car. Manager Robinson said that he could subperen witnesses and show that Perry committed the crime charged, and in that case no action for damages would lie. He pokingly referred to the fact that President Harrison and his Cabinet had not sued for damages yet, and they were represented in the ages yet, and they were represeted in the

THE CHINESE TERROR. No Doubt of the Adoption of an Exclusion

WASHINGTON, March 17.-Congressmen are learning that there is anger and apprehension in the camp of labor, from San Francisco to New York, on account of the long delay in the adoption of anti-Chinese legislation. Remonstrances against the opening of the gates to the Chinese hordes are received by many of them from trade unions, industrial federa-tions, and all kinds of labor organizations. Powderly has been heard from; so has Gompers, and so have many of the leaders of the Farmers' Alliance and the Poople's party. They are alarmed over the prospect that there will be delay for six weeks longer, when the present Exclusion law will cease to operate. As soon as the session opened last year, bill on the subject were introduced into both Houses, and perhaps as many as a dozen of these bills have been referred to various committees, but it has been impossible to secure the adoption of any of them. One bill was re-ported adversely to the Senate from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and others have been reported adversely to the House, and meanwhile the month of May is approaching. A Congressman from California believes that there are schemers who hope to prevent the renewal of the Exclusion act or the adoption of any other anti-Chinese legislation. He thinks that delay will be continued and that there may be difficulty in getting the two he says, many large landholders and employers of labor in the Parific States who would like to be able to get cheap. Chinese laborers, as they got them in other times, and who are at the same time influential in the Republican party. The same notion is entertained by many of the leaders and members of labor organizations, who are letting Congressmen know that there "must be no humbug" about this matter.

ganizations, who are letting Congressmen know that there "must be no humbug" about this matter.

All such people may rest assured that, unless all signs fail, an Exclusion bill will be adopted before the expiration of the term of the act now in force. There are grave objections to nearly all the bills on the subject that have been introduced. One of them was in violation of the treaty rights of China, and another of them would certainly have failed to carry out the purpose expressed in its title. There is no scheme, either in the Senate or in the House, to prevent the desired legislation or to permit Chinese immigration. The vote in favor of a justifiable and practicable Exclusion bill will be everwhelming, and it will be given by the representatives of both parties. There is hardly a member of the Senate or the House who would advocate the "opening of the gates."

It is more than likely, moreover, that the Geary bill will be adopted, and this is the most drastic bill that has been proposed. It prohibits absolutely the entry of any Chinese person, unless he be an accredited agent of the Pekin Government, and it applies not only to persons coming here for the first time, but also to those who may leave this country upon a visit to China. The author of this bill is Geary of California, and he says that no measure less stringent than his bill can be made effective. One of the most energetic backers of the bill is congressman Loud, also of California, who, however, desires that it be made shorter, as the courts can always flud a hole in any law that is even a page in length. The Geary bill has been favorably reported to the House by a majority of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

The bill has recently found new supporters

The Geary bill has been favorably reported to the House by a majority of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

The bill has recently found new supporters on account of the action of the Supreme Court in the case of the Chinese merchant. Low Ow Bew, who by decision of that court has been allowed to return to this country without a certificate of identification, after making a visit to China. "You see," said Congressman Loud, how the court can undermine the intent of the present Exclusion law."

The Geary bill, it is believed, will prove satisfactory, even to the extremists among the anti-Chinese agitators.

It was understood a month ago that the Canadian Parliament would enact legislation with the object of excluding Chinamen from Canada, and that thus the American Government would be relieved from the trouble caused by the intrusion of the numerous Chinamen who cross the boundary between the two countries. But more recent news from Ottawa has destroyed the hope that such legislation will be enacted by the Canadian-Chinese Intruders will be obviated by the certificate provision of the Geary bill, which is very rigid, and which only a very peculiar and extremely ingenious Chinaman will ver be able to circumvent.

There is, indeed, no need of the existence of the Chinese terror which has prevailed in the camp of American labor. It will soon be dispelled by Congress.

about five miles below the point of the Hook and on the inside of it, the wind laid bare some human bones.

When Capt Jack Edwards of the Spermaceti Cove life-saving station, which is on the ocean front, heard of it, he sent men with shovels to cover up the remains. They did so, but the next high wind again uncovered them. Altogether the bones of about six persons have been laid bare. At first it was thought they were the remains of British or Continental soldiers who perished during the Revolution. Then the story went abroad that the dead of the hospital ships were once buried there, but the hospital ships were once buried there, but the hospital ships were once buried there, but the hospital ship burying ground is and has been for a century further south, in the bend of the Horseshoe.

Tradition has it that many years ago—perhaps fifty or sixty—there was a burying ground at Bpermaceti Cove for mariners wrecked on the shore of Sandy Hook. This burying ground, according to tradition, was on the west side of the narrow sandy promontory alongside of the quiet waters of the Horseshoe, and several hundred persons, it is said, were buried there. It is more than probable that the waves and the winds have, in this lapse of time, enerosched upon this sandy cemetery.

Capt. Edwards said yesterday that he meant to gather up the bones thus laid bure and decently inter them further inland.

Near by stood Hamilton's residence, the "Grange." Mr. Cotting presented this to the congregation of St. Luke's P. E. Church, and it is now the rectory of that church. Mr. Cotting had planned to convert the land on which the trees stood into a park or else to so divide the property that they could remain in an open court. But he did not live to carry out these plans, and the trustees of his estate, John E. and W. Emlen Roosevelt, being bound by law to sell the property to the greatest advantage, have divided it up into lots.

BLOODY FIGHT NEAR BABYLON. Michael McGloyne, His Invalid Wife, and His Daughter Maggie Injured.

A bloody fight occurred in a rickety farmiouse on the outskirts of Babylon, L. I., shortly after midnight Tuesday night. The house is occupied by Michael McGloyne, his invalid wife, several sons, and a daughter, Miss Maggie McGloyne, about 30 years old. Mr. Mc Gloyne, who is 72 years old, has another daughter. Mary McGloyne, but she does not live at nome. The authorities first learned of the fight vesterday, when the last-named daughhim that her father had tried to murder her mother and sister. Constables found the interior of the house wrecked and spattered with blood. McGloyne met the constables at the door. His head and face were covered with cuts and bruises. His wife lay in bed covered with bandages. Maggie McGloyne was in an adjoining bed unconscious. It is said she was stabbed and cut in more than a dozen places and will probably die. McGloyne was taken to the village lockup. Mrs. McGloyne was taken to the village lockup. Mrs. McGloyne professed to know little about the occurrence. She said she was aroused about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning by her husband, who attacked her with a razor. He raved like a maniac, she says, and her daughter Maggie came to her assistance and her father turned on her.

When arraigned before Justice Cooper, McGloyne related a different story of the fight. He said the injured daughter kept company with a young Englishman named Edward Griffith. Griffith called to see her on Tuesday night. McGloyne went to bed at a late hour, leaving the couple in the room together. Several hours later his room was broken into by Griffith, who attacked him with a club. He sprank out of bed and picked up a carving kaife with which to defend himself. Then his daughter rushed to the assistance of Griffith. Both Griffith and his daughter, he says, were drunk, and he was compelled to use the knife to save himself from being beaten to death. His wife was aroused by the fight and tried to separate them. She was injured while doing so, but he says he did not cut her intentionally. It was only after his daughter fell to the floor that he was able to beat of Griffith. The injured woman's condition was reported worse last night and held to await the result of his daughter sinjuries. It is said a warrant was also issued for the arrest of Griffith. The injured woman's condition was reported worse last night, and Coroner Edward S. Moore of Bayshore was notifled.

THIRTEEN BUILDINGS BURNED. The Village of Eddyville Nearly Destroyed

RONDOUT, March 17 .- The village of Eddyville, the tidewater terminus of the Delaware and Hudson Canal, was again the scene of a disastrous conflagration last night. Fires and floods have nearly swept the busy village out of existence several times. Eighteen years ago half the place was destroyed by fire, and about a dozen years ago the giving away of the canal lock swept buildings from their foundations and a vast amount of property was lost. Only a few years ago the residents were again forced to flee for their lives, a spring again forced to flee for their lives, a spring freshet having caused the émbankment of the canal to cave in and flood the place to a depth of several feet. Two years ago an ice gorge did great damage.

By last night's lire a large portion of the village is in ashes. Having no fire apparatus, the people were powerless to prevent the spread of the flames, and seventeen buildings, including Schirman's and Torrey's hotels, were rapidly destroyed. Had assistance not been telephoned for to this city the results would have been far more serious. During the progress of the fire mea, women, and children ran about in terror. Several families were rendered homeless. The night was bleak and cold, and women and children were forced to run about half clad, and suffered intensely. The loss, which will be from $50,000 to $60,000, is covered by insurance.

WAS THIS DR. CRAWFORD? A Belief that the Man Who Was Drowned

NYACK, March 17 .- There is a strong belief n Haverstraw that Dr. John R. Crawford, the dentist who disappeared from his home myseriously on Sunday, Feb. 21, met his death by drowning in the St. John's River, Florida. A despatch from Jacksonville early this week said that "John Crawford of Highland, N. Y., was drowned late last night in the St. John's River. He was a passenger on the steamer David Kemps. When the boat was about five David Kemps. When the boat was about five miles below Jacksonville Crawford, who was sitting on the railing, mistook a rubber hose which was hanging from the upper deck for a post. He leaned back and lost his balance, falling into the river. His body has not been recovered."

In one of the letters left by Dr. Crawford he said that it would be useless to search for his body, as it would be far away. He had sufficient body, as it would be far away. He had sufficient time to have gone South. The despatch said that he had only been South a few days. Another fact that might prove that this man was the missing Dr. Crawford is the fact that he mistock the rubber hose for a post owing to his partial blindness. In one of the letters he left he said his body would be so heavily weighted that it would be useless to look for it. The man who fell off the boat in Florida sank and did not appear again.

Pollock-Kernochan.

Mrs. Louisa Marshall Kernochan, widow of John A. Kernochan, was married at noon yesterday to Mr. William Pollock of Pittsfield Mass. The ceremony, at which only relatives were present, was performed by the Rev. D. David J. Company in this city. Mir Charles Tupper Didn't Say It. OTTAWA, March 17.—A few days ago Premier Abbott cabled to Sir Charles Tupper for an explanation of the threatening language he was credited with having used toward the United States at a recent London banquet. In the Senate to-day Mr. Abbott said that he had received a cable from Sir Charles indignantly returning the utterances attributed to him, in which he was represented as baying said that in view of the injury the McKiniey ball had done the Dominion, Camada would soon strike a vital blow at the United States in return. Sir John Thompson reiterated the statement in the House of Commons. MORMON HOSPITALITY.

Presbyterians Invited to Hold Services in the Sait Lake City Tabernacle. News comes to this town by way of Cincinnati that some uneasiness has been aroused in the minds of New York Presbyterians by the rumor that the Mormon authorities have offered the use of their Tabernacie at Salt Lake City to the Commissioners on their way to the General Assembly which meets in Portland, Oregon, next May. The New York cor-respondent of the Heraid and Presbyter, a Presbyterian organ published in Cincinnati, says that he has not been able to verify the report. "It is possible," he says, "that such an invitation has been given out from Salt Lake City. but it is hardly probable that it would be ac but it is hardly probable that it would be accepted. Such a recognition of Mormon politeness would be a distrace to the Presbyterian Church."

Several ministers approved the opinion of the writer, who is a New York clergyman himself, and thought that it would be an outrage for good Presbyterians to worship in the Mormon Tabernacis. The Sun can state that there is more than rumor in the report. The plan to stop at Sait Lake City and hold service in the Tabernacie has appeared as part of the itinerary of a special excursion for which arrangements are now being made by the Rey. Frederick L. Shearer, a Presbyterian clergyman of San Francisco and a brother of Dr. George L. Shearer, a Presbyterian clergyman of the New York Presbytery. The Rey. Mr. Shearer has been distributing circulars among the New York ministers who expect to go to Portland. Stops are to be made at Denver and at Sait Lake City, and at the latter town the feature of the visit is to be a good Presbyterian service, to be held in the Mormon Tabernacie by spocial arrangements with the Sainta. It is to be an event of note, for it is the first time, the circular says, that anything but a Mormon service has been held there. The Rey. Mr. Shearer is in New York just now, but he could not be found yesterday to give his opinion concerning the composition which has been aroused against this part of his plan.

THEY MAY CALL FOR THEIR MONEY. A Bank Official's Singular Card to the De-

WHEELING, March 17 .- The following card was published in all the daily papers to-day, signed by D. C. List, late President of the Bank of Wheeling, and its principal stock

"Having, with my two sens, disposed of our entire stock in the Bank of Wheeling and withdrawn all our interests therein, and as the years of my life are passing. I desire that all of my liability as a stockholder shall cease and determine as soon as possible. I do hereby give public notice to all depositors in said bank that they can obtain their money from the same on demand, and if any desire or refuse to do so, they are notified that I will feel myself released from any responsibility therefor." The directors of the bank, it is said, are indignant over the matter. It was thought that the matter would result in a run on the institution, but the depositors seem to show no siarm.

Distributing the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Fund.

The Distributing Committee of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association met yesterday afternoon at the house of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt for the distribution of the undesignated fund of the collection of 1892. Ther were present Mayor Grant, Postmaster Van Cott. Edward Cooper. and Cornelius Vander-Cott. Edward Cooper, and Cornelius Vanderbilt. The collection, according to the report of the Treasurer, fosts up $49,052.08, an increase of about $2.000 over last year. Of this amount $4,054.26 was made up of special designations, something less than $3,000 was reserved for expenses, leaving a balance of $51,000 for distribution by the committee among the thirty-one hospitals of the association entitled to the benefit therefrom. The amounts allotted varied from $5,703.01, the highest to Mount Sinai Hospital, to $172.27, the lowest, to the Convalescent Home, the basis of the distribution being the amount of free work by each institution during the past year.

There was a crank at the office of the Charities Commissioners in Brooklyn, vesterday, whose mission, he declared, was to assist the Republican party by "removing" Senator David B. Hill. The man was Carl F. Nier-David B. Hill. The man was Carl F. Nier-wohner, and he was brought to Brooklyn from Amityville, L. I., by a Suffolk county constable. He was arrested after he had repeatedly announced his determination to kill Senator Hill. He became extremely violent while in the Charitles Commissioners office. It required three policements biold him.

"Let me go," he shouted. "Ive been sent to kill Gov. Hill, and I'm going to do it as sure as I get at him. All I want is one chance. Will you let me go?"

He was sent to the Flatbush Hospital, pending an investigation as to his sanity.

Escaped from a Hospital. Gallagher was taken to St. Francis Hospital. in East Fifth street. His mind was disordered. Yesterday morning the street door was left open and he escaped. He has not been seen since. The Mother Superior said last night that the man was a priest, and his brother had come here from Boston to look for him.

BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM ROME AGAIN. The Latter Willing to do Anything & Absolved by Father Cody.

Anastatia and Joseph Carey, the youthful married couple, returned to Carey's home in Newark on Wednesday night, and young Carey went to work in Riordan's leather factory yesterday morning. The bride remained with Mrs. Carey, her mother-in-law. They said they hunted all over this city and failed to find a priest who would marry them, and were delighted on reaching home to learn that Father Cody had permission from the Bishop Father Cody said vestorday that the Bishop had given him the permission provided they would make reparation for the scandal they would make reparation for the scandal they had made, and had given pormission also for the blessing of the ring.

"We cannot bless the marriage," he said. "because they were married outside of the Church, and we act as far as the marriage is concerned. All I can do is to bless the ring. The Church recognizes any marriage as valid if performed by a Christian, but does not give its blessing to a marriage performed outside of the Church. Such a marriage is sinful, and works excommunication as a matter of course by the acts of the Parties, and they can be restored only by permission of the Bishop."

The bride is 15 and the bridegroom 16 years old. Owen Kane, the girl's uncle, said yesterday that he was not going to meddle in the matter and that he would not try to have the marriage annulled. He said he became the girl's guardian at her solicitation.

Young Carey said yesterday that he thought too much fuss had been made over the matter, and that if 'Stasia didn't have a dollar nothing would have been said. He was willing to make any reparation for the sake of being absolved by Father Cody. He is a big boy for his age and has the manner of a man.

It is understood that the bride and bridegroom will live with the mother of the latter, and that an attempt will be made to induce the girl to go to school again, but it is regarded as doubtful whether she will go.

Made Of with Father Colton's Stole. Late on Wednesday afternoon, as the inerior of St. Stephen's Church, in Bast Twentyeighth street, was darkening. James Kelly shuffled upone of the aisles and said to Father Colton: "I want to sign the blidge." Father Colton produced a pledge, which Kelly signed. Colton produced a pledge, which Kelly signed. The priest then walked to another part of the church, leaving Kelly alone for a few moments. Kelly soon left, and as he reached the street a man sawhim hide something under his arm. A policeman soon found Kelly in a neighboring saloon trying to sell Father Colton's stole. When questioned about the theft Kelly at first said he was drunk, and afterward that he thought if he had some sacred thing on his person it would be easier to keep the pledge. At the Yorkville Court yesterday he was held for trial.
