AUTO RAN DOWN JOE'S CIRCUS

AND LEFT BADLY INJURED BOY LYING IN THE STREET.

The Youngsters Were Teaching Their Dog, Nigger, to Do Stunts When a Big Red Machine Struck Them—Pup Spends the Night at His Master's Bedside.

Eleven-year-old Joe O'Connor of 355 East Thirty-second street went to the circus a few days ago and paid lots of attention to the trick of the trained dogs. When he went home he decided that his little black fox terrier, Nigger, was just as smart as anybody else's dog.

Yesterday afternoon, with his two younger brothers, Frank and Patsy, he took Nigger to Thirty-third street, between Second and Third avenues, where the pavement is asphalt, to teach him to walk on his hind legs. Nigger made the trip across the street successfully three times.

"Let's make him walk across again and then we'll teach him to turn somersets," said Patsy. Surrounded by his tutors, Nigger started across the fourth time. He had reached the middle of the street when a big, red touring automobile, carrying three men and a woman on their way to the East-Thirty-fourth street ferry, came along. The driver thought the boys would get out of the way, but their eyes were on the dog. The car slowed up and then went on, leaving three boys lying in the street, one of them unconscious.

Louis Joseph, an undertaker of 458 West Forty-first street, came through the street with his hearse, returning from a funeral in Long Island. When he saw the two boys, with bleeding faces standing beside their prostrate brother, he lifted the boy into the hearse and drove with all speed to Bellevue Hospital. He didn't arrive there any quicker than Nigger, who ran all the way on three legs.

Dr. Richmond examined the boy, who had regained consciousness on the way, and decided that he had dangerous internal injuries. He was sent to a ward at Nigger Hospital. He didn't arrive there until his little master was out of sight. When placed on the floor, Nigger slunk under a bench and moaned.

Patsy and Frank then walked into the hospital and had their wounds dressed, but they couldn't coax Nigger away. Two hours later Mrs. O'Connor went to see her boy and hearing the plaintive cries of the terrier she made the hospital authorities understand that she wanted to take Nigger to Joe's ward with her.

They consented and when she started to leave both Joe and his little pupil refused to be separated. Nigger stayed on his master's cot all night.

Detective Sergeant Brady and Farley started out to find the automobile and its occupants. People living in the block thought the machine was numbered 9,081, which gave the detectives their only clue.

JOHN L. HE WANTS $218

Express on the Sale of the $10,000 Diamond Belt He Hocked for $1,800.

John L. Sullivan thinks he is entitled to $218 as a result of the sale of the championship belt which was said to be worth $10,000 at the time it was presented to him. The belt was recently sold by his "uncle," with whom he had left it for a loan of $1,800.

When John L. heard that the belt had been sold he made inquiries and was informed by some one that it had realized $2,000. He decided that all the money above the principal and interest, with the cost of the sale, should come his way. The ex-champion consulted Lawyer Isaac Fraumthal, and the lawyer sent a communication to the pawnbroker, making a demand for the surplus.

The pawnbroker sent back word that just $4 was coming to the "big fellow" and that he could have it at any time he called. The lawyer consulted the client and it was decided to make a fight for $218. Fraumthal said yesterday that he proposed to bring an action for the recovery of the money.

John L. feels sore over what he considers shabby treatment by the proprietor of the pawnshop, and I have written a letter of complaint, which I sent to-day to J. P. Corrigan, the Mayor's marshal," said the lawyer.

In the letter of complaint the lawyer says that Sullivan pledged the diamond belt on May 24, 1901, in a pawnshop in West Forty-second street for $1,800. He redeemed the article, which was not sold until a month or so ago.

CORTELYOU AT ELLIS ISLAND.

Inspects the Immigration Buildings to Get an Idea of Needed Improvements.

Secretary Cortelyou of the Department of Commerce and Labor paid his first official visit to Ellis Island yesterday, in company with Commissioner-General of Immigration Sargent. The Sanoset, Commissioner Williams' official launch, was at the Barge Office dock, decked in bunting, to carry the guests over to the island, but Secretary Cortelyou insisted on sailing in the old John G. Carlisle, the immigrants' ferry.

The official party spent several hours dipping into things. Secretary Cortelyou expressed himself as well pleased with the way things were run. He thought everything was in good working shape, but he wanted to see if there could be any nearer approach to perfection. There is some money needed for improvements and he wanted to get personal knowledge of the island's needs.

RUSSELL SAGE'S TAXES.

Another Extension of Time in Which to Fix His Personal Assessment.

The extension of time in which to swear off his $2,000,000 personal tax assessment which the Tax Commissioners gave to Russell Sage expired yesterday. Mr. Sage was unable to appear at the offices of the Tax Department, but Dr. John P. Munn, his physician, turned up with a statement that Mr. Sage was unable to leave his house.

Thereupon President O'Donnell of the Tax Board granted a further extension until next Friday.

"He is a person who wishes to swear off on the ground of non-residence and is physically incapable his affidavit is accepted. The only ground on which Mr. Sage can obtain exemption is by proving that his personality is not taxable in this city. It is understood that Mr. Sage is willing to pay on an assessment of $500,000, and will say that the rest of his personality comprises corporate stock and securities, which are not subject to taxation by the city authorities."

HEAP INJUN.

Youngster Has the Unrest of His Tribe and Doesn't Want to Study, but Must.

Artia Morse, a half breed Indian boy, was taken into the Children's Court yesterday morning on the complaint of a truant officer, who said that the boy would not go to school. Artia's mother is a half breed and so is his father.

"What is the nationality of this boy?" asked the Court.

"He is part Indian, part Spanish and part white," replied the mother.

"How much Indian?" asked one of the Gory agents.

"Heap Injun," said the boy, straightening up, "and I don't want to go to school. I want to go out and work on a farm."

"You are not old enough yet," said the Court, kindly. "You must go to school. I will have to send you where they will make you study."

Artia shows no trace of white blood in his features. His coarse black hair frames a face that might be that of a young Sioux. He has the unrest of his tribe.

All clothing houses make big claims in advertising. If these claims are based on Truth—all right. If not, they injure not only those who make them, but honest dealers as well, because they teach the public not to believe advertisements.

We don't like to make big claims for Hackett-Carhart clothing, fearing that such methods will make our Ads. read like those of unscrupulous clothes.

But to tell the truth about our clothes, we have to make strong statements.

We honestly believe that they are the best ready-made clothes in the United States—there's no other way of saying it.

We wish you'd verify this by looking around and comparing other clothes and prices with ours.
