PLAN OF SEACOAST DEFENCE

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL BOARD SENT TO CONGRESS.

The President Urges Prompt Action and Says the Departure From the Endlestt Board's Plans Is Made Necessary Because of the Increased Power of Guns.

WASHINGTON, March 5 .- The President transmitted to Congress to-day the report of the National Coast Defence Board, composed of officers of the army and navy, and designated to prepare a plan of coast and harbor defences. The necessity of a revision of the general plan of coast and harbor defence was caused by the introduction of improved guns and armor, wireless telegraph, the submarine torpedo vessels and the improved system of fire control worked out by the army experts.

In transmitting the report, which is accompanied by a letter from Secretary Taft, the President says:

"Our coast defences, as they existed in 1860, were not surpassed in efficiency by those of any other country, but within a few years the introduction of rifled cannon and armor in the navies of the world, against which the smoothbore gun was practically useless, rendered them obsolete. For many years no attempt was made to remedy the deficiencies of these seacoast fortifications. There was no establishment in the country equipped for the manufacture of high power rifled guns. There was no definite adopted policy of coast defences, and Congress was reluctant to undertake a work the cost of which could not be stated even approximately and the details of which had not been advanced, so far as could be ascertained, beyond the experimental stage." The President then recites the acts of Congress and the steps taken to secure suitable and adequate ordnance for military purposes up to the organization of what is popularly known as the Endicott board. Reviewing the work of this board, he says that in determining the ports that were in urgent need of defence, since a fleet did not exist for the protection of the merchant marine, fortifications were provided at every harbor of importance along the coast and at several of the lake ports. After describing the work based on the report, the President continues: While the details of the scheme of defence recommended by the Endicott board have been departed from in making provision for later developments of war material, the great value of its report lies in the fact that it sets forth a definite and intelligible plan or policy upon which the very important work of coast defence should proceed, and which is as applicable to-day as when formulated. The greater effective ranges possible with the later rifled cannon, the necessity of thoroughly covering with gunfire all available waters of approach and the growth of seacoast towns beyond the limits of some of the military reservations have combined to move defensive works more to the front. and many of the gun positions now occupied have been obtained from private ownership. The expense of such sites has been a large item in the present cost of fortifications, and this purchase of land was not included in its estimates by the Endicott board."

The President then discusses the new plan advocated, and in conclusion says: The insular possessions, the gr bases at Guantanamo, Subig Bay and Pearl Harbor, the coaling stations at Guam and San Juan require protection, and in addition defences are recommended for Manila Bay and Honolulu because of the strategic importance of these localities. Defences are recommended for the entrances to the Panama Canal as contemplated by the Spooner act, and under the terms of this act the cost of such fortifications would probably be paid from appropriations for the construction and defence of the Canal.

"The necessity for a complete and adequate system of coast defence is greater to-day than twenty years ago, for the increased wealth of the country offers more tempting inducements to attack and a hostile fleet can reach our coast in a much shorter period of time. The fact that we have now a navy does not in any wise diminish the importance of coast defences; on the contrary, that fact emphasizes their value and necessity for construction. It is an accepted naval maxim that a navy can be used to strategio advantage only when acting on the offensive, and it can be free to so operate only after our coast defence is reasonably secured and so recognized by the country.

"It was due to the securely defended condition of the Japanese ports that the Japanese fleet was free to seek out and watch is proper objective—the Russian fleet-without fear of interruption or recall to guard its home ports against raids by the Vladivostok squadron. This is one of the most valuable lessons of the late war in the East, and is worthy of serious consideration by our country, with its extensive coast line, its many important harbors and its many wealthy_manufacturing cities.

"The security and protection of our interests require the completion of the defences of our coast, and the accompanying plan merits and should receive the generous support of the Congress.' The letter of Secretary Taft transmitting the report of the National Coast Defence Board says that modifications of the former scheme of defence were necessary because of the increased power of guns, steel and powder. The additional expenditure necessary to complete the defences of the coast in accordance with the recommendations of the board is estimated at $50,879,399. For the insular possessions, $19,878,895 is needed, and for the defence of the Panama Canal $4,887,682. The board places Chesapeake Bay commercially and strategically of the first importance and recommends $6,102,871 for fortifications there. Next in importance are the fortifications at the eastern end of Long Island, because they constitute the outer line of defence for New York city. To complete these an appropriation of $5,-075,708 is recommended in addition to $2,945,557 already expended. For Puget Sound $5,519,347 and at Tampa, Fla., $505,890. Fortifications and naval bases are also urged for Subig Bay, Guantanamo and the entrance to Manila Bay.

The report of the board also makes explicit recommendations regarding the size and description of guns, range finders, emplacements, torpedoes, searchlights, &c.

FIVE RESCUED FROM THE BAY.

Cross Rollers Swamp Boat in Which Boys and Girls Were Rowing.

Three girls and two boys were rescued from drowning in the bay between Tompkinsville and St. George yesterday after noon, after their boat had been swamped by the rollers from the city's ferryboat Queens and a coasting steamer. Two of the rescued were badly exhausted. They were revived, however, and last night all five were doing well. Those rescued were Mae Baker, May Bart, Bessie McGarry, John Hoffman and Randolph Frye. They were rescued by William Denyse, Beekman Denyse, William McVey and John Barry, all of Tompkinsville.

The Hoffman boy owns a good sized rowboat, which he kept at the old ferry landing at the foot of Arietta street, Tompkinsville. After the school session yesterday afternoon Hoffman invited Frye, the three girls and Sadie MacDonald to go out for a rew. They went to the landing and all entered the boat. Before they started, however, the MacDonald girl realized the boat was overloaded and jumped back on the dock.

They had gone a half mile or so when they were caught in rollers thrown up by the Queens. The boat was headed into the swell, and although some water was taken aboard she would have ridden through safely had not a coast steamer going out passed down on the outside. The cross rollers slopped the water into the boat.

The two boys started to bail with their hats but the water came in so fast that the boat sank. Sadie MacDonald, who had remained on the dock, saw the mishap and began to scream. The two Denyses, McVey and Barry were on the man-o'-war landing just below and, supposing some one had fallen from the old ferry dock, jumped into a big yawl and rowed around. They continued on to where the five were struggling in the water.

Young Free had gone to the aid of Mae Baker, and although she could swim they were the most exhausted of the five when they were hauled into the yawl.

AUTO KILLED COLLIE.

Mme. Nordica Says It Wasn't Her Auto

-Dog Owner Says Number Was 12,331. William McGowan of 214 West 104th street was out yesterday afternoon giving his Scotch collie exercise in Amsterdam avenue when an automobile in which there were two women and a chauffeur dashed along. The collie ran out into the street and the auto passed over it, killing it instantly.

Mr. McGowan says the auto did not stop, but that he thinks he recognized one of the women as Mme. Nordica. He also noted the number of the automobile, 12,331, which the police told him is the number of Mme. Nordica's machine.

Mme. Nordica was called up by telephone last night, and she said that she was not out driving in her automobile in the afternoon. She refused to give the name of her chauffeur, and said she did not remember the number of her machine. She said she was pretty sure that her chauffeur would not go out driving with any one without telling her, and if he had run over a dog he surely would have spoken of it. Mr. McGowan says he valued his collie

COAL MEETING CALLED. Operators to Get Together To-day-Joint

Conference Soon.

The members of the committee of seven anthracite operators appointed to confer with the anthracite mine workers over their demands were notified vesterday by George F. Baer, chairman of the committee, to meet to-day in the Jersey Central Building, 143 Liberty street. The meeting will probably take place in the afternoon. The demands will be gone over and a joint meeting will be called for the end of the week.

John B. Kerr, attorney for the New York; Ontario and Western Railroad, who is a member of the operators' committee, said yesterday that no time would be lost in calling the joint meeting.

"The two committees would probably come together about Friday," he said "So far as I see now no statement will be given out until after the joint meeting has taken blace. I do not profess to know what the outcome will be. As soon as the operators consider the demands the joint eting will be called with as little delay as possible."

C. J. Wittenberg, president of the Chesa-peake and Ohio Coal and Coke Company.

peake and Onlo Coal and Coke Company, the selling company of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, said yesterday:

"I am pretty certain that Mr. Baer and the other anthracite operators will never consent to the recognition of the union. If the union were recognized in any agree-part it would be a graye peril to the entiment it would be a grave peril to the entire trade. It would mean that instead of the companies having to deal with Mr. Mitchell alone they would have to deal with hundreds of irresponsible foremen and thousands of men who never keep agreements. A de-mand for an increase of wages would be insignificant in comparison with a demand for recognition of the union." Mr. Wittenberg said that if there was no strike the anthracite operators would have to shut down on account of the large stocks of coal they had on hand. He believed that a strike would not last six weeks before

GOLD IN CITY'S ROCK FLOOR

STRUCK AT 176 BROADWAY 174 FEET UNDER THE SURFACE.

Mine Will Not Be Worked by Title Guarantee and Trust Co., Which Will Run Its Own Gold Mine Above-Stenitte Gnelss Scooped Out by the Drill Held the Gold.

The bedrock foundations of the island of Manhattan, at least in spots, according to the discovery of an amateur assayer, Samuel C. Pyle, under foreman of bricklayers (not gold brick layers, either) on the new buildng of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, at 176 Broadway, are made up in part of fine gold bearing quartz. The company, when informed of the discovery which is only a few days old, declared through Horace Anderson, who has charge of the construction of the building, that the company would not work the lead, on the ground that the company itself was a gold mine enough in itself to satisfy all its stockholders. Nevertheless, Mr. Anderson said he was glad that the building was on a gold basis.

Charles Neal, the young and clear headed foreman of construction at the new building, vouches for the integrity of the under foreman, who never had anything to do with a gold cure in all his adventurous life. And if there were any doubt about the authenticity of the discovery it would be dispelled by an examination of three little phials containing nearly $2 worth of fine gold, another filled with silver in solution and the other with probably twenty cents worth of metallic silver. All this came out of a few pounds of sienitic gneiss, which is unlike the ordinary gneiss on which the city rests in that it contains hornblende instead of mica.

Mr. Pyle knows something about geology mining and chemistry, and when he sees anything hauled from the depths of any building he may happen to be working on that looks different from what is drilled from other subterranean places he samples it. The work necessary for the sinking of the casing to be used for the plunger elevators in the building involved boring through about 114 feet of gneiss and granite and the excavation of about sixty feet of earth and cand and gravel above it.

The annullar pipe drill used in the boring makes a hole the core of which is nearly ten inches in diameter. There are only a few buildings in town that have the plunger elevator, including the Trinity Building and Wanamaker's. The shaft, or plunger, or piston rod, which is attached to the floor of the elevator, fits into casing lining the hole through the rock, and is worked by hydraulic power. The force of the water descending through the piping into the casing from the roof raises the elevator. When the water is out the elevator goes down. The depth of the hole for the casing must be about the height of the top floor of the building, and that is why the big annullar drill must go so far into hardpan. There will be seven elevators in the building, and there are seven holes piercing the rock, the bottoms of which holes are 174 feet from the surface of Broadway. The big drill when in commission drags out short length cores of gneiss and granite and rock not designated. Some of the cores are hard as flint, and some break up readily.

Pyle noticed the other day a little column of rock that he thought worth inspecting. A superficial examination showed him. he says, that the big drill had sawed through a vein of gold. He had been attracted light that revealed the glimmer of metal. He took a few pieces of the rock home to his laboratory, and two days later he came down and proudly showed Foreman Neal the bits of treasure in the phials that later were turned over to President Kelsey of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

Mr. Kelsey also received from Foreman Neal a jagged piece of the auriferous rock weighing several pounds. Mr. Kelsey submitted it to an expert, who declared that it contained gold in small quantities, and some silver, aluminum and iron.

Mr. Pyle apparently has the impression that there is a good deal of gold, not only in the unworkable mines far under Broadway, but that it is also in the air. He has never been in any company that has promised to extract gold from sea salt, but he is confident that there is gold in the atmosphere. His theory is that gold forms an essential part of most things. He said yesterday that he had gone up on the buildings next door to the Title Guarantee Company's new one, raked up dust and put it through a crucible, with the result that he got enough of the precious metal to make a little button.

William Walter Hobbs of the Geological Survey, who recently published a pamphlet on the "Configuration of the Rock Floor of Greater New York," makes no mention of any gold bearing rock ever discovered far below the surface. He refers to borings of the engineers of many big buildings along Broadway and other parts of the town, and tells of the finding of marble, limestone, granite and gneiss in abundance. There was no decline in the price of gold because of Mr. Pyle's discovery and no rumors of the formation of a syndicate to bore along the line of the location of the lead Harlemward. An enthusiast who caught Mr. Pyle's spirit of optimism declared that the quartz, as found by Mr. Pyle, assayed about $2,000 a ton, and that if the vein averaged that it would be one of the richest mines in America. Still the Title Guarantee Company is not going to tear down its new million dollar building to

Murderer Awaiting Death Penalty Flees While Officers Subdue Crazy Man.

BALTIMORE, March 5 .- Isaac Winder colored, who was in Towson Jail awaiting execution March 30 for the murder of Frederick T. Reinhardt, escaped this afternoon and is now being hunted by the police and a mob.

Workmen have been repairing locks at the jail, and it is believed Winder got some of their tools. Yesterday it was found that he had cut a bar and was reaching for the lock with a wire. He was removed to an upper cell, where the officers would at all times have him under their eye.

To-day a crazy prisoner made things lively, and the warden and his two deputies rushed back to overpower him. While they were busy Winder, who had gotten his lock open, dashed out of his cell, through the door which the officers in their hurry had left open and took to the woods.

Now Owns the Little Neck Estate o 200 Acres-Price Not Made Public.

BABYLON, L. I., March 5 .- The Little Neck farm at South Lindenhurst was sold to-day to ex-Borough President Joseph Cassidy of Queens. The property consisted of 200 acres and was owned by Benjamin F. Tracy. It is situated on the proposed Babylon and Huntington trolley line. The tract was originally owned by Thomas Wellwood. Mr. Tracy was his counsel, and about thirty years ago he acquired the and for services rendered. He foreclosed the mortgage and bid in the vast acreage

The terms of the sale to Cassidy were private. BELLBOY WITH PAWNTICKETS.

Guests at the Hotel Netherland Hay Been Losing Things Lately. Herschel Brooks, a colored boy who came from Savannah a month ago and got a job at the Hotel Netherland, was arrested by Central Office detectives last night on suspicion of stealing from the rooms of guests Within the last two weeks six complaints of petty thefts have come from the hotel. Most of the complainants lost pieces of jewelry. One of them, A. B. Connelly, had a valuable watch taken.

The police found several pawntickets in the colored boy's pockets and a pass key. They will trace the pawntickets today. Brooks denied any knowledge of the thefts.

THE MUTUAL TURNS TO CHOATE

PRICE TWO CENTS.

INVESTIGATORS ASK HIM TO SERVE AS COUNSEL.

He Refuses to Accept Until He Knows More of Their Purposes-Speyer Resigns

From the Board-McCurdy and Hyde

Under Pledge to Return if Wanted

When Joseph H. Choate returned to his offices in Wall street yesterday after an beence of several days he found awaiting him the request of the Mutual's self-investigating committee that he serve as counsel for the committee. Mr. Choate notified the two remaining members of the committee, William H. Truesdale and John W.

Auchincloss, that he would like to have a alk with them before returning his answer. Mr. Choate, it is understood, proposes to find out the exact conditions in the comnittee before accepting any retainer. The meeting has been set for to-day. Its outcome will be most important, both for the Truesdale committee and the management of the Mutual Life. Those who are conducting the company's affairs are depending on the acceptance of Mr. Choate to restore the confidence of the public in the committee. Should Mr. Choate refuse to serve, it would be a hard blow to the Mutual's inside reorganizers. Mr. Choate was retained several weeks ago by the Mutual as advisory counsel in the suits that have been brought against the McCurdys and Raymond & Co. The acceptance of Mr. choate also would exert a strong counter influence against the movement that has been started in England in support of the Fish policyholders' committee. Two more resignations from the Mutual's poard of trustees were announced yesterday. They were those of James Speyer, head of the banking firm of Speyer & Co.; and Dudley Olcott, president of the Mechanics and Farmers' Bank of Albany. Neither would say anything yesterday as to his reasons, but both have been counted from the beginning of the trouble in the Mutual as among Stuyvesant Fish's supporters. Mr. Olcott mailed his resignation on Saturday. This was the day that the Truesdale investigating committee's modified requisition, which omitted all inquiry in regard to the trustees' personal transactions, was made public. Mr. Olcott joined the board in 1880. This makes seven trustees who have resigned from the Mutual Life since the asurance scandal started. The other five are Elihu Root, Rufus W. Peckham, Richard A. McCurdy, Robert H. McCurdy, Stuyvesant Fish and Effingham B. Morris, It is expected that there will be other resignations in the next few days. Cornelius Vanderbilt is one of the remaining trustees who is said to side with Mr. Fish. It has been reported several times that he was about to send in his resignation. He refused yesterday to say what he will do. Work in organizing the international policyholders' committee, which Mr. Fish is to head, is being pushed fast, and a definite announcement of its personnel will be forthcoming in a few days. It was said yesterday that many prominent men have pledged their support to Mr. Fish. The selection of a prominent German representative and a representative from France has been left to Lord Northcliffe-Sir Alfred Harmsworth. The committee intends to send a representative to the hearing before the Legislature on March 9 to ask that the recommendation regarding the annual elections of the mutual companies be altered. The recommendation names November 15 as the date on which the terms of all the trustees shall expire and new boards be elected. The Fish committee wants the State investigators to set the election several months earlier. They argue that the postponement of the elections until November 15 will give the management of the company too much of an opportunity to entrench itself against outside attacks. The following letter is quoted in the London Review as having been written by President Peabody to an English policy-

DEAR SIR: I received your letter of December 29, and thank you very much for your thoughtfulness. It relates to a matter, statements in the newspapers, as to my connection with the Standard Oil Company, are nothing but the dreams of sensational journalism or the malicious products of those who wish to injure the company. I have never had and have not now any connection or interest in the oil business. I am glad you have thus given me an opportunity to contradict the errone

Very truly yours, CHARLES A. PEABODY. James Hazen Hyde, as well as Richard A. McCurdy, placed in District Attorney Jerome's hands before sailing for France a signed pledge that he would return to this country at any time that his presence might be required in connection with the affairs of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. It was said yesterday that if Mr. Hyde had not acceded to District Attorney Jerome's request some action might have been taken to prevent his leaving the There was a meeting of big life insurance agents in this city yesterday, at which plans were announced for the attendance of the agents at the public hearing in Albany on March 9. The New York Central will run a special train, leaving the Grand Central Station early in the morning. A special rate also will be made for agents. It is expected that several hundred will go to Albany to back up their protest against the recommendations curtailing the expenses of the companies. There was a meeting yesterday between the committee representing the smaller New York companies and the committee of seven appointed to represent the outside companies. It is understood that the outside companies' representatives accepted the programme adopted at the meeting in the Mutual Life

Building on Saturday without any change. Attention was called yesterday by an insurance lawyer to what he regarded as a discrepancy between a recommendation made by the committee and the actual bill introduced in the Legislature. The committee's report says: "It seems to the committee that an amendment to the insurance law should be enacted giving to the directors of life insurance corporations with capital stock authority to confer upon policyholders the right to vote for directors with the concurrence of a majority of the stock, and the committee so recommends.

The lawyer had been unable to find any provision in the bills introduced giving the board of directors of a stock companthe right to confer upon the policyholder the privilege of voting. Senate Bill No
