The FOREIGNER

A Saskatchewan Tale

By RALPH CONNOR

One hundred and ninety-five thousand copies of "The FOREIGNER" is now in the hands of distributors and are on sale in the libraries and bookstores throughout the land.

A book of the same title was published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.

A book of the same title was also published in 1908 by the Foreigners' Club in New York, but this is a different work. It is a story of the life of the author's father, who was a foreigner in America.