of her neighbors in the vicinity of Gramercy Park. The drawing room was sters in Master Lenahan and Miss Joyce arranged to represent a small theatre. Chairs were placed in front of a temporary stage that had been erected at one end of the room, and throughout the little drama will be repeated this afternoon. house were decorations of holly and other afternoon.

The play had to do with Man's trials nd tribulations in his efforts to fathom and tribulations in his efforts to fathom Mystery. It was in one scene representing a cave in which Mystery had her abode, with all the undiscovered secrets of Nature. Ignorance, in the shape of a giant, guarded this cave, but Woman, by her smile and apparent affection, managed to overcome this guardian of the depths led Mystery forth bearing The Per-Child. Mystery called on all the Unseen Powers to worship this Perfect Child. This they did while Mystery handed he child over to Woman, and Woman, in turn, called upon Man to become its grand Woman's persuasion, he made many sacrifices, became reconciled to his fate, and while Ignorance, puzzled at the whole situation, shrunk back to be routed by all the little Mysteries, Mysteries scored r triumph and freedom. Miss Candace Hewitt had the title role of Mystery, while Benjamain Burton played the part of Man. Dagmar Perkins portrayed the role of Woman, and Ashley Cooper Hewitt took the part of the giant, Ignorance. The other parts were played by Ann Tonetti, Lucy Hewitt, Abram Hewitt, Lydia Tonetti and Sylvia de Kay, who represented Fire, Electricity, Explosion, Steam and Radium, respectively Crispin Cook was The Perfect Child. Some of those who made up the forces of the Little Mysteries, Unseen and Liberated Powers, were Theodora Goddard. Joseph Tonetti, Frances Colby, Eunice and Carleton Smith, Sylvia Goddard, Eleanor Hawkes, Katherine Tonetti, Goodwin Cook, Alexander Smith and Master Leavitt.

The play, while merely serving as a source of amusement for the children, their parents and friends, who witnessed it, contained some lines of truth and fact us enough for deep thought.

After the performance the children were entertained by the appearance of a young nulan student at Carlisle, who is a riend of one of the members of the cast. e wore his war clothes, paint and athers, and interested and amused the Little Drama of Allegory Produced by Young Guests at Her Home.

FOOD IN IT FOR GROWNUPS

When Holbrook Blinn first acted "Ib and Little Christina" at the Madison Square Theatre thirteen years ago last September it was presented before "Coralle & Company," one of the masterpieces of boulevard drama to which the Charles Frohman Comedians at that time devoted their services. So the combination was not the kind to show the sentiments of a Hans Christian Andersen fairy story at its best. Basil Hood, barring the excessive emphasis of the black earth, has made a poetic form of the story in three scenes. Of its genuine charm there is no question. The play does not however, seem to have found its proper milieu here, although Martin Harvey acted it with success in London, and there Mr. Blinn saw it and it was brought here by Charles Frohman to introduce it to local audiences.

Massachusetts Senator Has Recovered From Recent Illness,

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 -- Senator Lodge of Massachusetts has returned to Wash-ington after a long absence in Massachu-setts on account of illness. dangerous surgical operation. It was not until they read in the newspapers that the operation had been performed and that the Senator was in a critical condition that most of Mr. Ledge's friends in Washington were advised that for many months he had been suffering from an ulcerated stomach.

The Senator had hoped to be in Washington for the vole on the currency bill but was unable to come to the capital. His letter stating his reasons for opposing the bill was read in the Senate by Senator Weeks, who paired Mr. Lodge against the bill and then voted for it himself.

There have been anxious inquiries daily concerning Mr. Lodge by his colleagues in the Senate. There is general rejoicing here over his restoration to health and return to active work.
