There is where they belong. We suggest that any Japanese found in Germany be put in the Zoo. But the chimpanzees object.

Accuse Allies of Conducting Campaign of False News

German Doctor Tells of Countless Despatches Sent Out by Enemies in Attempt to Deceive Neutral Nations, Especially Those in North and South America.

Do your best not to be sad. Consider that a war like this is not merely the work of men but that God permits it to be. We are proud to take part in this war. Think of France of the olden time, the leading nation of the world, and remember that we must avenge our fathers of 1870. On to victory, may the will of God be done, and O Lord, if Thou wilt not aid us help not the Germans!

With the entry of the German army into Belgium the lying press of the allies began a most unholily propaganda. Under the date of August 5 the Central News in London announced that at Arras on the Meuse, six miles north-east of Liege, a Belgian patrol had encountered the German General Staff, killing seven staff officers outright.

WAR AND CULTURE

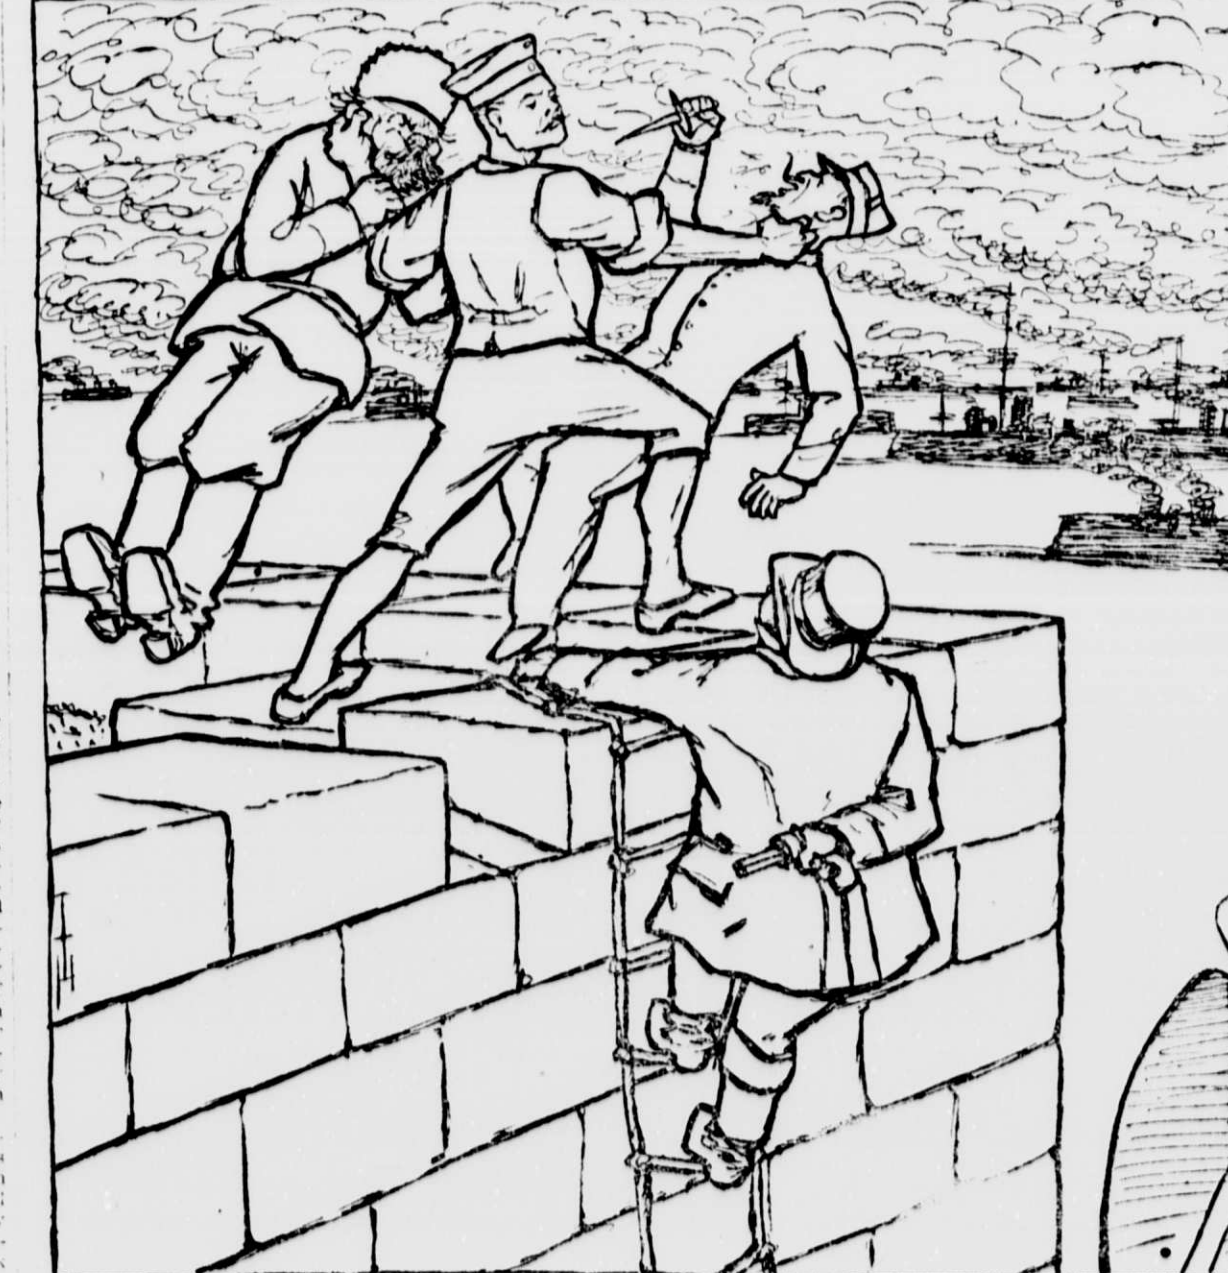

WAR AND CULTURE. BY DR. KARL LAMPRECHT. From the Illustrierte Zeitung of Leipzig. TIMES of war are the periods in which State and people evolve. The end of a career, with that war is the continuation of politics by other means is correct in every sense, as well for exterior as for interior politics. On the other hand culture is a product of the nation, the compass of which need in no way correspond with that of the State; it can be followed in a peaceful way only, and it indicates the real heart and soul of the national development.

The articles and other matter printed here come from leading German periodicals and other sources friendly to the cause of Germany in the war. They are published in order to present to the readers of THE SUN the German side of the questions now in controversy between the leaders of thought of the hostile nations, thus giving them an opportunity to form impartial opinions of the issues. THE SUN assumes no responsibility for any of the statements made or opinions expressed.

Military Significance of the Capture of Antwerp

Gen. A. von Janson Sums Up the General Result of Move and Its Effect on Future German Operations - Its Political Import.

ANTWERP was taken after only twelve days of siege by the Germans, an unprecedented feat in the history of sieges, when it is considered that it was a great fortified city, equipped with the most modern weapons of defence and defended by the remnants of the Belgian field forces and an English body of troops. We face a most puzzling condition: Belgium's most modern fortress was reduced to surrender in the shortest possible time while supported by forces of infantry, yet in France less modern fortresses, without similar support in the field, have been able to withstand attack for a much longer period.

It is all in vain that the Government of the Netherlands has in the most loyal way granted its neutrality, not permitting anything but the most inalienable to be brought into its ports. It has warned England away from the Scheidt and disarmed English or Belgian soldiers who crossed its borders. No one needs to know any secrets of statements to be sure that Germany would not have exposed a neutral neighbor to the dangers to which England has exposed Holland, and that in our hands the neutrality of the Netherlands was never safer than it is now. It is clear that our interests are here, and that we are ready to stand by her.

WANT MORE X-RAY STATIONS

German Medical Men Urge Benefit to Wounded Soldiers. HENRY, via London, Oct. 26. There is a great call for X-ray stations throughout Germany. It is being raised by the medical authorities, who make a vigorous appeal to the public to aid in every way possible to let the hand of the "angel of mercy" get to the wounded soldiers. On account of the expense as well as the difficulties connected with their establishment there is a marked lack of stations. A regular X-ray apparatus costs at least 1,000 marks, and the same machine in this way is a transportable X-ray instrument.
