STATE OF TRADE. Thursday Evening, Jan. 18.

CORN.—There has been a further decline in four this day. It is now $8.50 a $2.75 from common to face; and nominer at even this reduction. About 40.50 bushels of foreign wheat in prime order was sold this day at $1.55 a $1.60.

The Baltimore papers which from the commencement have carried out views far different from our own, contain the following singular article on floar.

"The stapic is still heavy with a tendency to decline. We notice that throughout the country a depression has taken place in the prices of flour. This has been attributed by some to erroaceous estimates of the stock on hand in the different markets, published in some of the papers, and not to an excess on hand, which is thought to be not larger than usual at this season of the year. The Philade phia price current has taken pains to obtain as accurate information as possible on the subject, and subonits the annexed estimate which it is probable will be found very near correct:—

This precious document states that the tendency to decline is owing to the erroneous stat such so the stock on hand; and in order to carry out the heat it gives a statement altogether incompatable with the truth, which we have quoted above in order to show its utter absurdity. The fact is that the Journal of Commerce of this city, the Estimore American, and the Phinadelphia Commercial List have, from the commencement of the season, whether through interest or ignorance we know not, and we care not, lent themselves to the wishes and views of the speculators most completely. The statement in question is ludicrous beyond description. It shaws a sock inferior to that of last year when flour from the known and acknowledged searcity of the crops was at $12 per barrel; but now the stoca has been pleatiful. We have taken pains to ascertain this fact to its full extent. We have employed agents who have been interested neither in government agencies nor in private speculations, but in the cause of truth which it has been their provence to investigate and which they have inveiting the produced. The inspectors report at Baltimore gives 399,064 barrels of flour in the vear 1837; sow the population of Baltimore at the present time gives a consumption in that city of 210,060 barrels which according to the report of the inspectors, would give a surplus of 189,664, instead of $3,000 as the Phitadelphia Price Current states.

Our assertions will like found much nearer the mark. We give from actual survey, acres to the eight [wheat growing countles in Maryland, 224,484 to 1973, 452

The difference here is immense. As regards the New York stock the average is doubtless as stated by us, at least 230,600 harries. A four merchant in this eity has stated that the Baltimore papers are near the truth in their statements, and he nocounts for the small stock here in consequence of a large quantity of the large stock, which it cannot be devied, has come into this city on account of the mildiess of the season—going party. Eastward and partly to the West Indies. We have already proved, however, the the stock has set gene to any structure asswards from this port; that market having been supplied, to a considerable extent, from the South. In the table we have quoted the largest statement of which will be found to be nearest the truth—the diston aggregate is not stated. It shout 160, for the largest statement of the first statement of the largest statement of which will be found to be nearest the truth—the diston aggregate is not stated. It is about 160, 660 barrels. There is so much mystification in the corn market that it is almost impossible in ser ring clearly. Condents, Rev. York, Tumberland, 1830, Plusthon 1830, 183

ME MORANDA

We find the following in a Barbadees paper:

"A derelict and water logger schooner, of about 160 tons burthen, of Baltimore build, and apparently coppered, laying enher larboard side, was towed into Ely's Harbour, yesterday evening, by the West End Pilots. Both her masts are gone; her bowspri only standing. She has a little lumber en board. Her name could not be a certained, being under water, and covered with barnacles, but she sails from New York. It has fully proved itself a most valuable application in inflammation and weakness of the eyes. These that have been diseased for years, it has perfectly cured in a few days, and is negagaged to do so.

The Rev. J. Harrison, 41 Thomoson street, procured a bottle of the above for M. s. Harrison's cyes, and to his astonishment it has removed the dimness and pain, which has been excessive for many ears. She had used many eve waters, but they all failed. I therefore hope the public will soon appreciate its value.

This is to certif that I. Mrs. McGaffrey, No. 2 James street, wildow at the late Dr. McGaffrey, has used Dr. Francis' eye water, which I am happy to state had the desired effect, and I may say saved me from absolute bilinders. I therefore can safely recommend it as a most sue and valuable eye water—and only requires to be knews to make it supersede all others.

From the testimany of those who have used the Eye Water prepared by Dr. Francis, I have no hesitation in recommending it to the special notice of the public.

OREM IS 1007 H PASTE—A new anti-eigant article for the Teeth.—The Orris Tooth Paste, while it beautifies the teeth, removing and preventing every appearance of lartar, and giving to them a clear and peerly whiteness, also beightens the color of the lips are guina, and gives additional beauty to the tout ensemble of the mouth—by its disinfecting properties it greatly tends to preserve the teeth from decay, and to purify the breath—and it also adds that peculiar and fragant sweetness to the breath for which the Grits Root is so justify celebrated, as that article enters largely into the composition of the Orris Tooth Paste, giving to it its name and essentially contributing to that agreeable taste and fragrance, which this Paste so pre-eminently possesses. To those who have a partiality for a tooth wash, the Orris Tooth Paste will be particularly acceptable, as it can readily be converted into a pictastal and most excellent tooth wash by dissolving a piece of about the size of a pea in a small quantity of water, which can be done on the instant. The Orris Tooth Paste thus possesses all the advastage of a tooth wash whom the objections that can be brought against the manner in which an article of the latter description must of necessity be put up—and it is equally free from the many objections that are applicable totooth powers from their want of neatness as an appenance to the tolet.—The great number of articles that have been submitted to the public for improving the appearance of the teeth, and which have so generally proved unsatisfactary, induces the proprietor of the Orris Tooth Paste, so confident is he of its superior excellence and virtue, to observe, that should it in any case prove ineffective the money will be returned.
