Court Intelligence.

Cincuit Court, September I.—The court room his been much improved during the recess, having undergone a thorough repair. It has also been reconstructed, and the Judge's Bench has been removed to the eastern side of the court room. The Reporter's table has also been changed to a very good location. The 'bustle and preparation' at the opening of the term, together with the crowds of lawyers, who were in attendance, with their briefs and papers under their arms, indicate the prospect of a smart run of business during the term. The crivi calendar is unusually heavy. A few inquests were disposed of, when the court adjourned.

OYER AND TERMINER, September 1.—Before Judge Parker and Aldermen Messerole and Compton.—A Special term of this court was set down for this day, when, in the absence of Judge Edmonds, Judge Parker of the third district, opened the court.

Jurers.—Considerable delay was occasioned in procuring a jury, several who were summoned being excused from serving on various grounds, by which they stood exempt under the statute. No Grand Jury were sworn, the term being a special one, held to dispose of adjourned cases.

The difficulty in procuring a jury, many persons who stood exempt under the statute. No Grand Jury were sworn, the term being a special one, held to dispose of adjourned cases.

The difficulty in procuring a jury, many persons who were summoned preferring to pay flues rather than attend, shows the reluctance with which men of business will undertake the duty of jurors, without compensation for these services. The entire jury system in this city, is a radical defect in the law of the constitution. Jurors, in almost every other State than New York, receive compensation for their time and services, and the refinsal to pay jurors who serve and are kept from their families and business during an entire term, is a perfect anomaly in our history. Several cartmen, who have to depend upon their daily labor for their ordinary support, and to whom their families have to look up to for subsistence, were brought before the Court, and some only were excused from serving. The frequent complaints that have been made on this subject have passed away "like the idle wind," and all the clamor that may be raised against the abuses in the jury system will pass for naught, unless the parties who are interested and are most aggrieved, adopt such a course as will bring the matter under the consideration of the Legislature at its next session.

DESPERATE FIGHT.—A pair of vagabonds, named Jim Manley and Tom Gardner, had a fight in Baltimore on Saturday last, in which the latter was so shockingly beaten and maimed as to disfigure him for life.

Brooklyn City Intelligence.

Drad Child Found.—Yesterday morning, Andrew Oakes, Esq., Coroner, was called upon to hold an inquest at the house of Mr. Bartholomew Ward, corner of Bond and Atlantic streets, upon the body of a colored infant, apparently but a few days old, which was found dead in the rear of a cottage, situate at the corner of Bond and State streets. No information could be obtained as to the manner, or by whom, the body was thus deposited, and the Jurors returned a verdict of "Death by causes unknown."

Mysyranous Dram.—Last evening the Coroner hold an inquest at the house of Mr. John Cassidy, corner of Flushing and Franklin Avenues, upon the body of an aged colored woman named Filetta Townsend, who died suddenly at a dwelling occupied by her between Spencer and Walworth straets. It appeared from the testimony of Messrs, Charles Levises, James Criffith (a city watchman), W. C. Betts, and Mary Ann Townsend (a daughter of the deceased), that the latter had for some time past complained of a cholding sensation in her throat, and that to alleviate her distress, she had procured of Dr. Hudson, of Myrtle Avenue, some tartar emetic. After taking this, she stated she was much relieved, but in a few hours expired. The Jury found that she came to her death by causes to them unknown.

King's County Common Pleas.—The September session of this Court commenced yesterday morning. There are but a few causes to be disposed of, principally appeals from tribunals of lower jurisdiction, possessing very little of public interest or importance.

Brooklyn Common Council.—This learned and august body resumed their arduous official diffies last evening, after a very agreeable interegroum of one month. An immense amount of business had to be transacted, and the "city fathers" did not adjourn until a late hour. There is no "tea room" attached to their legislative hall, and it therefore shows well for the patriotism and industry of the municipal authorities, that they continued in so long assession.

Police Matters.—But ver

industry of the municipal authorities, that they continued in so long a session.

Police Matters.—But very little business was transacted at the police office yesterday. Amongst the most important, was the arrest, by officers Bird and Felt, of a Mrs. Gray, the wife of the man who foloniously appropriated to himself the large sum of money lost by a gentleman at Providence, R. I., a short time since,—the particulars of which have already been stated in this paper. The man went off to Ireland, but a portion of the money was found upon the female arrested, and she is committed to prison to await an examination. The officers met with a desperate resistance from some of the woman's friends when they went to take her into custody.

A man named William Bennett (a common drunkard) was sentenced to six months imprisonment at the common jail, for an assault upon Mr. Pierson, of Bridge st; and a colored woman named Margaret Jackson was sent to prison, in default of bail, for throwing water upon, and otherwise assaulting a very pretty little girl named Nostrand, residing in Taliman street.

John Burns and Jeremiah Cochran had a fight in front of Cunningham & Harris's distillery, in Front street, and bedaubed each other, from head to foot, with the fith that lies there. They were fined each $4, and discharged.

Charles Barnes, a lad—attendant of an ice cart—was Lost Child.—A little boy was found asleep on board one of the South ferry boats on Sunday afternoon, with no one to protect him, and brought to the office of the Coroner. He was clothed in a plaid dress, and his age is apparently about two years. He could give no account of himself, but it is supposed his parents reside in New York.

of himself, but it is supposed his parents reside in New York.

Accident.—A man named King, was seriously injured at the Cobb dock in the Navy Yard, on Saturday last. He was driving a long iron bolt, when he slipped from the log on which he stood, and fell with his stomach on the head of the projecting bolt. He lay senseless for a long time; but he is now, although seriously injured, in a fair way of recovery.

A Pughlistic Hero.—A soi disant relative, and namesake, of the celebrated English puligist, Jem Ward, has been for several weeks in prison in Brooklyn, on a conviction for having been engaged in a prize light at Williamsburgh. Prior to the battle, (if such it may be called.) in which he was concerned, he had plenty of friends and backers but since his incarceration there is "none so poor as to do him revorence."

ROWDIES AND LOUNGERS.—We again call upon the popular and excellent Mayor of Brooklyn to remove from the side-walks, and the corners of three or four streets in the vicinity of the Police Office, a parcel of blackguards, who meet together for the express purpose of insulting females as they pass by. Although many of them are known to the officers as idle, worthless, and impudent vagabonds, no action has as yet been taken to abate the loudly complained of nuisance.

erhaps, no portion of the splendid decorations of this megni-icent yessel more worthy of notice or admiration than the ex-nisitely beautiful stained glass lamps, manufactured by Mr Thomas, of Spring street. In their workmanship and design hey are alike lauftless, and, as specimens of art, they canno lail to be highly appreciated by all counoisseurs. Mr. Thoma-has, for many years, atood at the head of his profession, an these new specimens of his skill and science will necessarily add much to his well earned distinction and fame.

It is thought that it will be raised.

Of the Portsmouth and Concord Railroad $600,000 h been subscribed. $200,000 more is required. It will probably all be raised in New Hampshire.

To the Worcester and Providence Railroad, $700,00 is subscribed. $300,000 more is required, but it is said that the feeling in its favor is subsiding, and that it will fall through.

To the Rutland Railroad $1,000,000 is subscribed in Vermont. $1,500,000 more is required. Books are ppened in Boston, but it does not move. If carried through, it will have to be done almost exclusively by Vermont capital. We annex a comparative statement showing the Increase...... $875,662 $875,662 Of the $71,762,409 imported in 1845, $37,011,135 were mported in the first six months of the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1844, and the balance, $34,751,274, in the last six months ending June 30th, 1845. The uniformity in the aggregate value of the articles included in the above table in the two years is most extraordinary, the difference being less than a million of dollars. The falling off in he importation of coffee in 1845, compared with 1846 can be accounted for in a measure by the fact that in the early part of the year 1844 immense quantities of coffee were imported in anticipation of an alteration in the tariff, placing a duty upon the article. The decrease in the quantity of sugar imported has been caused by the in-creased production in this country. The sugar crop of Louisians in 1843 was short, the yield not being muc more than half the average. In consequence of this, we had to import more largely than usual to supply the de mand for home consumption. The crop of 1841 was about double that of 1843, and the deficiency between the home supply and the home demand being less, re quired a more limited importation. The proportion of the tonnage transported on the Eric Canal, furnished by this State and the Western States and Canada, will be seen in the angexed statements. More than one half of the aggregate quantity transported, was the produce of this State, and the aggregate ton-

Canal. The tables show the amount of each description of merchandise, transported in each year :

gate amount of the agricultural productions of this State reached tide water on the Erie Canal, within the past nine years, as from all the other States put together. The ncrease in the quantity of the productions of this Statereaching tide water from year to year, has not until within the past year been very large. The amount transported in 1843, was only fourteen thousand tons more in than 1836. The increase from 1842 to 1843 was one hundred and twenty thousand tons, and from 1843 to 1844 one hundred and thirteen thousand tons. In 1836, there was mly a little more than fifty-four thousand tons of the productions of other States transported to tide water on the Eric Canal; in 1839, the quantity had more than doubed, and in 1844, it had reached three hundred and eight thousand tons, or nearly six times as large a quantity as was transported in 1836. It appears, therefore, from this statement, that the sources of any increase of consequence in the tonnage transported to tide water on the Eric Canal, are beyond the limits of this State. The transportation to tide water of the productions of our own State, on our own canals is not very difficult to secure, but it is the transportation of the productions of other States on our canals that we aim at, and which we should leave no effort untried to secure. Neighboring States, East and South of us, are making desperate attempts to draw the westesn trade away from this city, but our natural and artificial advan-tages are too great to be successfully contended with The internal improvements progressing so rapidly in the Western States will, when finished, be of immense benefit to our public works. Since the opening of the Miami Canal extension in Ohio, merchandise can be transported from this city to Cincinnati for one dol-lar and twenty cents per hundred, by the way of the Eric Canal and Lake Eric. By the way of Pittsburg it costs from $1,75 to $2,50, according to the state of water n the Ohio. This opens to our public works, the transpertation of merchandise to all parts of the Western Southern and South Western country, by the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, as the expense is less than the cost of transporting the same kind of goods from Philadelphia of road Accident. The first of September has arrived, the time looked for ward to by our merchants with so much anxiety for s verification of their anticipations with respect to an extensive fall trade. But the season has, so far, greatly anticipated itself, large numbers of merchants, principally from the Far West, having already arrived and made their purchases. With a proper display of energy, ac-tivity, and enterprise, a sufficiency of the Southern and Western dealers, who pass through Baltimore on their way to the North, could be detained to greatly enhance the commercial character of the city. Within the last two years, however, much attention has been given to this business, and the trade of the city has, consequently, been nearly doubled. If these dealers had to pass through New York to get to Baltimore, I expect very few of them would ever reach their destination, even if our market should in reality be superior—so the Yorkers must not grumble when they miss the sight of some of their old customers.

[Correspondence of the Herald.] BALTIMORE, Sept. 1, 1845. Business Prospects Brightening-Democratic felo-de-se-Gamblers Arrested - 2ccidental Death-Nativism-Rail

The Democratic Convention have disregarded my advice, and nominated for the Sheriffalty the candidate of the Tylerite wire-pullers, John Kettlewell, with the understanding that if elected Charley Loran is to be Deputy. Never was a more suicidal course adopted, ensuring as it does the defeat of the party, beyond all peradventure. Had they taken up John Mitchell, David Hudson, or any other but the friendless and unpopular John Kettlewell, they could have walked over the course. The whigs have a clique, a "Court-house clique," it is generally admitted, but they have never trodden down the interests of their party with the tyrannical power exercised by the new-langled "Tylerite clique," which has assumed the control of the democracy. I see that John Mitchell has come out nobly in opposition to their tyranny, and will receive three votes to Kettlewell's one, as an independent candidate. Kettlewell's nomination has also brought out James O. Law, the most popular man in the city, as the whig candidate—so, you see, the coons have the upper hand of the roosters so far, and are in excellent spirits.

Writs were issued on Saturday last, for the arrest of the gamblers concerned in "clearing out" young Isaac Jones, and George Campbell, George James, and Willemen.

Writs were issued on Saturday last, for the arrest of the gamblers concerned in "clearing out" young lease Jones, and George Campbell, George James, and William James, were arrested, and held to bail in $1000 each, to answer. The whole amount of the money lest, is $19,300, but the tale accompanying the writ for the arrest of the parties, shows him to have been the most verdant youth that the thirteen original States can boast. Had I have been in his place, I should have pocketed my loss and said nothing about it, rather than have exposed myself to have been such a double-distilled ignoramus as he now represents himself to have been. But a confession, it is said, is good for the soul, if not the pocket, and Abraham Hyam, and Green, the reformed gambler, should take him around the country, and show him up as one of those peculiar geniuses, who are annually victimised by the Baltimore gamblers.

A young man, named James Fogler, was instantly killed on Saturday night, being run over by an engine, whilst going to a fire at the Marine Railway of Mr. Skinner, on Federal Hill, which was wholly consumed.

Capt. Henry A. Thompson the valorous hero of Fort McHenry, who thought that his commission was of no value only during peace, and threw it up at the ghost of a Seminole Indian, is going to lead the aboriginal natives on to victory or death in the coming congressional campaign. He thinks that congressional campaigns, perhaps, however, he had joined the Peace Society and felt conscientious qualms with respect to being shot at from the Everglades. At any rate, if there should be a war with Mexico, we natives are not going to fight whils there is so many infernal frish and Dutch in the country to fight for us. Come on, Bustamente, who's atraid.

The train of cars that left this city last night for Philadelphia ran over a man lying on the track, supposed to have been drunk, about fourteen miles from the city, killing him instantly. The Odd Fellows had a procession to-day for the purose of participating in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of a new Hall, about to be built at the corner of 6th and Haines streets, near Race. They did not turn out with their regalia, but in lieu thereof, wore white strips of ribbon in their button holes. They made quite a stirring parade, but about three o'clock their ranks were somewhat thinned by a heavy shower. It cleared off, however, in a few moments, and they marched the balance of their route without interruption.

Sailors' Home - Sailors' Parsons - Markets - The Weather -Steamer Hibernia, &c., &c.

A splendid building, named the Sailors' Home, in this city, which has been frequently alluded to in your paper is now nearly completed. It has accommodation al equal to those of our first hotels, for one hundred ar fifty sailors. Rev. Mr. Lord, favorably known as a warm establishment. If sailors understand their own interests. they will give it a hearty support. By doing so, they will not only be greatly benefitted themselves, but will also be the means of shutting up many of the abominable in which are now open as sanor coarding notice, and in which every crime, not excepting murder, is frequently committed. Another such an establishment in the north end of the city, I believe would ultimately be productive of much good. Father Taylor, the sailor parson, in this section of the city, has great influence productive of much good. Father Taylor, the sailor parson, in this section of the city, has great influence with seamen, and is much beloved by the community at large, and if he, therefore, would take hold of a project to erect another Home, he could carry it through successfully. The old fellow is of the right temperament to go ahead. Nothing that he undertakes earnestly can fail for want of a fair trial. As there is nothing of great importance sturring at present, I will relate a small anecdote or two of this joily sailor parson. A few years since he was blazing away from the pulpit, broadside after broadside against the wicked mess of seamen. Hell and all its terrors were laid so completely bare that only a very small effort of the imagination was necessary to smell the brimstone, and hear the howling of tormented fiends. As he was in the middle of one of his most terrible pictures, an old rusty-looking sait got up and was walking towards the door, when the parson sung out "the enemy flies—our fire is too hot for him—we have knocked his top-hamper down, and now he is crawling off under his lower masts." All eyes (the church was crowded as it always is when he preaches) were turned towards the sailor, who, perceiving that the last remarks were levelled at him, turned round, and looking the old man full in the face, said, in a pretty loud voice—"you're damnably mistaken, old cock, if you think your shot has made this craft haul off—you never saw the day you could make me a story lower. I'm only jist going to get a glass of grog, and if you'll take a turn there till come back, I'll let you see how I can stand your broadsides." "Good" cried half a dozen sailors, "go it Jack," cried others, "you'll make a first rate parson—try again," and other expressions followed. The whole audience was in an uproar, some laughing, others, more pious, hushing and endeavoring to restore order. When all was quiet again, Father Taylor, by no means disconcerted,—having apparently enjoyed the joke himself,—said, "that is a tough old
