ANSCAL MEETING OF THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL COLLEGE -The first annual meeting of the trustees of the above Eighteenth street. In the absence of the President, ex-Mayor Havemeyer, Dr. A. Wilder presided. The report of the past year was then read, and this showed that suring the last winter a term of the college had been held which had been attended by thirty students, five of whore were tadies. Eleven of these, three ladies and eight gentlemen, had graduated at the first annual commencement this year, and their proficiency was fully equal to that of medical pupils in any medical institution in the United States. During the last year also a dispensary had been kept in successful operation at the college building on East Twenty-sixth street, and this had given gratuitous medical service and medicines to a large number of poor patients. This report was unanimously approved of, and resolutions were adopted to ratify the action of the Executive Committee, in order to enable them to make provision for the forthcoming session of the college, the matriculation and graduation of students, and all necessary expenses they will have to incur. THE FAIR IN AID OF THE CATHOLIC PROTECTORY.—The epening ceremonies of the grand charity fair in aid of the protectory for destitute Catholic children will take place in the building lately put up at Union Square, on Monday (to-morrow) evening, at eight o'clock. Mayor Hoffman will deliver the inaugural address on the occasion. This fair is the product of the joint endeavors of ladies belonging to the various Catholic congregathe mades belonging to the various canonic congrega-tions in this city, and it is expected to surpass anything ever gotten up for similar purposes. The object is a Christian one—providing for the wants of the orphan and the outcast—and the pecuniary returns that the fair ladies will reap in behalf of their darling project will, without doubt, be fully commensurate with the proud reputation that New York has ever borne for being the first city on the continent (if not in the world) for phil-anthreav and charity. nthropy and charity.

seared in the HERALD, under the head of "Voice of the People," commenting unfavorably upon the treatment horses employed in connection with the Fourth aveand railroad, the stables were yesterday visited, their condition, after minute inquiry and investigation, being such in all respects as to convince us of the injustice of the strictures of our correspondent. The stables were designed specially with a view to secure the utmost comfort and convenience attainable. Five hundred horses are employed in the city department and one hundred in connection with the New York and Harlem Railroad—those used on the Thirty-second street cars making three trips per day, and those employed on the City Hall and Thirty-fourth street ferry cars making only two. The allowance of food to the horse per day is eighteen pounds of corn meal—purity being secured by grinding in the mills of the company—mixed with about fifteen per cent of eats and from six to eight pounds of the best hay which the market affords. The stables exhaust every appliance of ventilation. Plentiful clean straw is allowed for bedding, and, for comforts to the horse, the accommodations of Fourth avenue depot would not compare unfavorably with those of any private gentleman.

Boous Triesgraph Despatches.—During yesterday age raffroad, the stables were yesterday visited, their

She was also heard to complain that she could get uo work. Her son Martin, who was called as a witness, admitted that he and his brother repeatedly beat her, and at one time she gave him $300, which he spent in liquor. Another cause that mainly contributed to her condition of mind was her arrest by an officer about two weeks ago under a mistake, supposing she had stolen a basket of clothes, but the poor woman was at once discharged on explanation. This practice of arresting persons on mere suspicion is becoming quite common, and the case of one of the aids to the chief is to come before the Police Commissioners at their next meeting.
