

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION. A Leaf from the Log of the Congress.

Reading at Twilight Amid Icebergs—The Grand Displays of Aurora Borealis—Meteoric Lights Assuming Every Shape—Magnificent Arches, Columns and Spiral Stairways—The Summer Fisheries in Newfoundland and Labrador.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 10, 1871. I have procured the report made by the United States ship Congress on arriving at Disco on the 16th of August, when she met with Captain Hall's exploring expedition. The following is a correct copy:--

WE PASSED HUNDREDS OF ICEBERGS, but encountered no pack ice. As we advanced day became perpetual. The sun sank behind the horizon but a short time, and the twilight was sufficient to read by all night. The displays of the aurora borealis were extremely grand; meteoric lights, assuming magnificent arches, columns, scrolls and spiral stairways. We found the Polaris at Disco but six days in advance. Captain Hall with eighty Eskimauz boarded a mile from the harbor.

On Sunday the regular summer in Greenland. Disco is the official residence of Inspector General Smith, of North Greenland, and who received the Congress with a salute of fifteen guns. When we proceeded Secretary Robeson's letter, stating the object of our visit and soliciting the co-operation of the Danish authorities, it was cheerfully accorded. The stores which the Polaris could not take were left in Inspector Smith's care at Disco.

On Sunday the regular summer in Greenland. Disco is the official residence of Inspector General Smith, of North Greenland, and who received the Congress with a salute of fifteen guns. When we proceeded Secretary Robeson's letter, stating the object of our visit and soliciting the co-operation of the Danish authorities, it was cheerfully accorded. The stores which the Polaris could not take were left in Inspector Smith's care at Disco.

On Sunday the regular summer in Greenland. Disco is the official residence of Inspector General Smith, of North Greenland, and who received the Congress with a salute of fifteen guns. When we proceeded Secretary Robeson's letter, stating the object of our visit and soliciting the co-operation of the Danish authorities, it was cheerfully accorded. The stores which the Polaris could not take were left in Inspector Smith's care at Disco.

On Sunday the regular summer in Greenland. Disco is the official residence of Inspector General Smith, of North Greenland, and who received the Congress with a salute of fifteen guns. When we proceeded Secretary Robeson's letter, stating the object of our visit and soliciting the co-operation of the Danish authorities, it was cheerfully accorded. The stores which the Polaris could not take were left in Inspector Smith's care at Disco.

On Sunday the regular summer in Greenland. Disco is the official residence of Inspector General Smith, of North Greenland, and who received the Congress with a salute of fifteen guns. When we proceeded Secretary Robeson's letter, stating the object of our visit and soliciting the co-operation of the Danish authorities, it was cheerfully accorded. The stores which the Polaris could not take were left in Inspector Smith's care at Disco.

On Sunday the regular summer in Greenland. Disco is the official residence of Inspector General Smith, of North Greenland, and who received the Congress with a salute of fifteen guns. When we proceeded Secretary Robeson's letter, stating the object of our visit and soliciting the co-operation of the Danish authorities, it was cheerfully accorded. The stores which the Polaris could not take were left in Inspector Smith's care at Disco.

A SOUTHERN SCARE. North Carolina Negroes Arming for the Ku Klux--An Apprehended Raid on the Charlotte Jail--The Murderer Dunlap Expecting to be Lynched--Incendiary Language--The Ringleader Arrested and Bound Over to Court.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 16, 1871. For three or four days past the citizens of this place have been apprehensive of trouble on account of the threatening attitude of the negroes. It is said that since the recent apparent victory of the republicans on the convention question the colored population of Charlotte and of the State generally have assumed a bolder and more defiant demeanor toward the whites; but it was not until last Saturday night that any fears were entertained that this display of ill feeling would culminate in a serious difficulty.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

On the 16th of August, a colored man named James H. Dunlap, who had been arrested for the murder of a white man, was held in the county jail. It is reported that the white population of Charlotte were very much alarmed by the reports of the Ku Klux, and that they were preparing to take some action against the negroes. The police, however, were not long in coming to the scene of a reported danger, and after some delay and parley, found out that the cause of this threatened outbreak was the report among the negroes of a coming on the part of the whites that would result in the imprisonment of the negroes.

POLITICAL POLLUTION IN THE PELICAN STATE. An Outsider Defends Warmoth and Packard's Hostilities--Where Warmoth's "Mighty Have Put His Foot In It" and When Packard Did--A New Party Hostile to Both Being Organized.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 14, 1871. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-- Since the smoke of the memorable 9th has cleared away and the great impartial (?) committee have spoken their little piece to the President in the cottage by the sea, a disinterested outsider, by calmly gleaning might, perscance, gather a sheaf or two which may at once be both instructive and amusing.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

Warmoth has a great habit of saying of himself "that he has a head of his own," a disinterested outsider, by calmly gleaning might, perscance, gather a sheaf or two which may at once be both instructive and amusing. Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

Let me premise by stating that Governor Warmoth and United States Marshal Packard are rival candidates within the republican party for the next nomination for Governor of the State. Neither of them being men of anything but the very common talent and ability, they have allowed themselves to do many dirty little tricks for the purpose of annoyance and spite toward each other.

DISASTER IN THE BAY. The Steamer Fort Lee Run Down by the Steamship Hercules, of the Boston and New York Line--No Lives Lost.

About half-past six o'clock yesterday morning the steamer Hercules of the Boston and New York Line, between this city and Boston, ran into and sank the steamer Fort Lee, just off pier No. 1 North River. The Fort Lee was at the time on her way to Fort Schuyler, from whence she was to convey a party of ladies and gentlemen over the course of the Williamsburg Yacht Club regatta, which took place yesterday. Immediately after she was struck her pilot ran ashore between pier No. 1 and Castle Garden, where she filled with water in about two minutes. For the purpose of ascertaining the full particulars of the occurrence a representative of the Herald was dispatched.

THE SINKING OF THE DISASTER about eleven o'clock yesterday morning, but finding nothing of the Lee above water but her pilot house, and smokestack, and none of her crew in the vicinity, he took himself to pier 11 North River, where he found the Hercules moored. Going on board, he was shown into the presence of Captain Bearer, her commander. Introducing himself, he requested the captain to give him a version of the collision, that he might lay it before the public.

"Well, sir, the Lee was clearly at fault. I was coming from the East River around into the North River, and he was going from the North River into the East. When I first saw him I blew my whistle once, which of course meant that I should pass him on the port side, as the law requires. We were going directly opposite directions, and I have no doubt but that he was under the impression that I was coming from the East River, and he was coming from the North River into the East. When I first saw him I blew my whistle once, which of course meant that I should pass him on the port side, as the law requires. We were going directly opposite directions, and I have no doubt but that he was under the impression that I was coming from the East River, and he was coming from the North River into the East.

After long and diligent search and inquiry an intelligent crew member was found, who informed me that he was one of the five who composed the crew of the Fort Lee at the time of the accident. He had been ordered to remain on the vessel, but he had jumped overboard, and was swimming in the water. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital.

After long and diligent search and inquiry an intelligent crew member was found, who informed me that he was one of the five who composed the crew of the Fort Lee at the time of the accident. He had been ordered to remain on the vessel, but he had jumped overboard, and was swimming in the water. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital.

After long and diligent search and inquiry an intelligent crew member was found, who informed me that he was one of the five who composed the crew of the Fort Lee at the time of the accident. He had been ordered to remain on the vessel, but he had jumped overboard, and was swimming in the water. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital.

After long and diligent search and inquiry an intelligent crew member was found, who informed me that he was one of the five who composed the crew of the Fort Lee at the time of the accident. He had been ordered to remain on the vessel, but he had jumped overboard, and was swimming in the water. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital.

After long and diligent search and inquiry an intelligent crew member was found, who informed me that he was one of the five who composed the crew of the Fort Lee at the time of the accident. He had been ordered to remain on the vessel, but he had jumped overboard, and was swimming in the water. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital.

After long and diligent search and inquiry an intelligent crew member was found, who informed me that he was one of the five who composed the crew of the Fort Lee at the time of the accident. He had been ordered to remain on the vessel, but he had jumped overboard, and was swimming in the water. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital. He was seen by the crew of the Hercules, and was brought on board. He was found to be in a state of unconsciousness, and was taken to the hospital.

YACHTING. The Challenge Cup of the New York Yacht Club. (From Land and Water, August 26.)

With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

THE CHALLENGE CUP OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB. (From Land and Water, August 26.) With the object of ending the controversy between the New York Yacht Club and the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club, it is decided to challenge the Commodore and members of the New York Yacht Club to a race on the 26th of August.

BROWNE'S BONES. THE WESTCHESTER MURDER MYSTERY.

Wrong Made Right--The Shoemaker's End--Story of His Life--The Malignant Dead--A Double Difficulty--Louis Long's Legacy--More Mystery.

During some alterations which were being made on a farm in Westchester county, which had belonged to Mr. Ephraim Jones, about ten days ago, a human skeleton was dug up by one of the laborers, and it was supposed the remains had been buried on the spot where they were discovered nearly a century ago.

The first theory that jumped into the minds of the rustic was that a murder had been committed, and they began to cast about for a likely man to do such a deed. Whether malice suggested the name or that it came prompted by dislike could not be easily guessed; but in a short time from the unearthing of the bones from their unhalloved resting place the name of old Mr. Jones was associated with the disappearance of the man whose skeleton now came forth grinning in the broad light of day. A number of sensation mongers seized upon the occurrence, and the thing at once assumed the magnitude of a STUPIDOUS HORROR.

The story was that at one time, some twenty-three years ago, Mr. Jones, who was a shoemaker and carried on an extensive trade in that line, had a workman named Thomas Browne, who suddenly and mysteriously disappeared from that part of the country. People often wondered what had become of him, and how he had disposed of himself; but nothing was known until he arrived at it. It was well known that his employer and he had frequent quarrels, and Jones had on one occasion knocked down Browne for hitting a knife at his (Jones's) wife. These things were all public property, and not by any means contradicted by Jones; but a suspicion of his having been the cause of Browne's exit from life was never entertained until the skeleton was found, and then all the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant. The first point once concluded upon, the conclusion was reached that Jones was the murderer, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant.

It was known that Browne had the wages of several months due to him from his employer, amounting to $117. This was paid to him before he died, and the skeleton was found, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant. The first point once concluded upon, the conclusion was reached that Jones was the murderer, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant.

It was known that Browne had the wages of several months due to him from his employer, amounting to $117. This was paid to him before he died, and the skeleton was found, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant. The first point once concluded upon, the conclusion was reached that Jones was the murderer, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant.

It was known that Browne had the wages of several months due to him from his employer, amounting to $117. This was paid to him before he died, and the skeleton was found, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant. The first point once concluded upon, the conclusion was reached that Jones was the murderer, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant.

It was known that Browne had the wages of several months due to him from his employer, amounting to $117. This was paid to him before he died, and the skeleton was found, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant. The first point once concluded upon, the conclusion was reached that Jones was the murderer, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant.

It was known that Browne had the wages of several months due to him from his employer, amounting to $117. This was paid to him before he died, and the skeleton was found, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant. The first point once concluded upon, the conclusion was reached that Jones was the murderer, and the old history was gone over, and the heavy-headed jokers at once leaped at the conclusion that Jones was the murderer of his whom assistant.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. The Chamber of Commerce in Newfoundland is its most consequential establishment. They recently held their annual meeting at St. John's, and drew up a full report of the condition of the island, showing a marvellous increase in its agricultural, mineral and fishery resources. The chief point discussed by the Chamber was the proposed extension of the Newfoundland trade to the United States, and the proposed extension of the Newfoundland trade to the United States, and the proposed extension of the Newfoundland trade to the United States.

CAUTION TO IRISH CATHOLICS. Father Corrigan Righted. NEW YORK, Sept. 20, 1871. I read with great pleasure the incendiary remarks in the Herald of Tuesday last to a libel by Rev. Mr. Buckley upon myself. His very unfriendly and unprincipled attack upon me was such a terrible violation of charity and truthfulness of religion that I cannot leave him to the sting which he seems to enjoy from the dictates of conscience in speing his venom around me, and I claim an opportunity to defend myself from his malignant calumny. I am, sir, fully authorized by the Most Rev. Father General and Provincial of my order to collect money, in the language of the authority by virtue of which I carry out the duties of my office, and I am authorized to collect money for the building of the Church of the Most Holy Trinity, Cork, just as well as an authorized collector for the building of the Church of the Most Holy Trinity, Cork, just as well as an authorized collector for the building of the Church of the Most Holy Trinity, Cork.

RENUNING NOTES--POLITICAL AND GENERAL. "Everything is placed around the City Hall," says a morning paper. A sort of Tweed plaza! The Boston Advertiser states that Senators Wilson and Sumner both deplore the extraordinary canvass which General Butler has precipitated upon the Commonwealth. Both those gentlemen owe most of their greatness to Butler, and his equanimity is not likely to be disturbed on account of their opinions, be they one way or another. They had better be looking after themselves before Butler gets after them. We are informed an Eastern exchange that it is the wish of Governor "Greenback," who is returning Ohio for the democratic nomination.

BURGLARS IN JERRY. At a very early hour yesterday morning a bold burglary was perpetrated in the village of Franklin, N. J. The residence of Mrs. James Ackerman, a widow, was entered by a brace of burglars, who had adroitly abstracted from under the very pillow on which rested the head of the sleeping lady and her daughter, her purse containing $100.00, and other valuables. The thieves next entered the bedroom of Mrs. Ackerman's nephew, a young man named M. Kessler. A few days ago he returned from a visit to his friends in New York, where he had spent $15; the balance he placed in his wallet, and that under his head. With this money he was sleeping, and the burglars, who were in the morning a waterproof cloak, enveloping a large bundle of new and old, and other goods, were found in the garden. The thieves were digested and doubtless dropped it.

PETH AMBOY AS A COAL DEPOT. A Mr. Packer, of Match Chunk, Pa., purchased lately 500 acres of land at Perth Amboy for $150,000, with the intention, as it is reported, of making that city the great depot for the supply of vessels with Pennsylvania coal. The land is situated on the shore and is one half salt meadow.

SAFE ROBBERIES IN RHODE ISLAND. PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 20, 1871. A safe in the counting room of the Harris Manufacturing Company, in Phenix village, was blown open with gunpowder last night and robbed of its contents, chiefly papers. Subsequently the safe in the office of the Lamplighter Machine Company, in the same village, was blown open. The noise awakened a citizen, who threw a brick at the robbers, returned the fire and fled without securing any booty.