Train To Be Tried at an Early Day-A Habeas Corpus Case-Trial of Patric

There was but a brief session of the Court yesterday, and the large crowd present, who came in the anticipation of some spicy developments in the case of George Francis Train, adjourned from the day previous, was doomed to disappointment.

Mr. Bell, the lawyer of Train, relierated his former argument, insisting that the indictment against Train was not valid on account of its indefiniteness. Assistant District Attorney Lyons contended that the indictment was valid, and that there was no reason why indictment was valid, and that there was no reason why the trial should not be proceeded with upon it.

Judge Davis held that the indictment, although slightly defective and bad in form, could be remedied by a verdict, and that as Mr. Train had already pleaded to it, he would try him on it as it stood.

Mr. Bell—I desire that an early day be set down for the trial.

Judge Davis—I am anxious, for my part, that the public mind be relieved of this matter as specifily as possible.

Mr. Lyons—We will give him a trial at the earnest possible day.

James Hovey was arraigned on a charge of contempt of Court. It appeared that some three years ago Mrs. Frank Clark gave her infant child to Mrs. Hovey to take care of, and that she now seeks to obtain possession of the child. Having obtained a writ of habeas corpus directing Mr. Hovey to produce the child in Court, be, it seems, on the writ being served on him, tore it up and paid no attention to it. Judge Davis ordered Hovey to be committed for contempt of Court. He had hardly given an order to this effect when Mrs. Hovey appeared on the scene and stouty begged the release of her husband. She said she was promised $12$ a week for tasking care of the child, and that it was only just she should receive all that was due her before giving it up.

promised $12 a week for taking care of the child, and that it was only lust she should receive all that was due her before giving it $10.

Judge Davis told her she must bring the child into Court and he would then examine into the merits of the case. He directed a Sherill's deputy to go with the woman while she went after the child.

Mrs. Hovey, with a deputy sheriff, left the court room, but returned in a few minutes, saying that the office would not go with her, and that she was afraid if she brought the child alone. He mother, who had several row dies outside to help her, would take it away from her.

Judge Davis said he meantum he my draw from her before the child ched in hearing her promised that she should be preceded in her rights.

Next was called the case of Patrick Leary, indicted for murder in killing his wife. M. Abe H. Hummel said that his associate, Mr. Howe, was absent on legal business in Albany, and he could not proceed with the trial in his absence. Judge Davis directed that a day be fixed upon with the District Attorney for the trial, and there being no further business the Court adjourned till this morning.

An Important Case-A False Paper Put in Evidence-Prompt Decision by the

in connection with additions and alterations to buildings 21 and 23 Third avenue, Brooklyn. A feature in the case was presented during the course of the testimony which induced the Court to hold an agreement purporting to have been entered into between the parties for the purpose of sending it to the District Attorney for his action in the matter. The facts of the case were briefly these:—The plaintiff swore that he contracted to draw up certain plans and specifications of seditions and alterations to be done to the premises is question, and to-draw up similar paners as plans or the erection of a hotel the building of which he was to superintend as architect. For the former work he was to receive $100, but the defendant extended his design and additional work was shown a paper baring his signature purporting to be a new agreement between the parties. The witness swore positively that the signature was not his; that it was an imitation of his handwriting, but a poor one at that. Subsequerly the detendant swore that it was the signature of the plaintiff, and the defendant's son swore he saw him sign it in the presence of the notary public whose signature and seal it bore. In the words of Judge Jeachimsen the paper was, consequently, either a forgery, supprited by perjury, or it was gennine and sought to be mvalidated by perjury. Plaintiff's son was a subscribing witness to the paper, but he could not swear whether he had subscribed to it in the presence of the notary public or not, although that official perfected the instrument by his own signature any seal, the document itself was a "patched up" affair, and bore evident signs of susplicion about it which could got sex spinined away to the satisfaction of the Court or he jury. The defendant's case was that the plaintiff had falled to finish his work within the specified time, and 21 and 23 Third avenue, Brooklyn. A feature in the cas

The detendant's case was that the plaintiff had falled to finish his work within the specified time, and that he was always unprepared on the several occasions the detendant called upon him for the plans, &c. The plaintiff, in contradiction of this, swore that he had yet two weeks within which to complete the work when the detendant ordered him to desist, and gave the work to another party. It was also contended for the defendant that he was not the principal, but the agent of the owners of the property in question. It was sworn by other with the was not the principal, but the agent of the owners of the property in question. It was sworn by other with cases that the work executed, although unninshed, was worth $150.

Judge Joachimsen, in charging the jury, said, with reference to the argument in question:—" If such an agreement was made by Jones, the plaintiff, that was the end of the case. But the contract is brought into court, and the proor with regard to it is, that the certificate to it was not honestly and truly made by the public officer by whom it is purported to have been signed, while the paper itself bears other evidence that it is frandulent, and that it never was sayned by the plaintiff. COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS. The Trial of "Wes" Allen for Alleged Burglary.

Before Judge Sutherland.

The trial of Wesley Allen, who is jointly indicted with Martin Allen and a man named Wiley, for attempting to commit a burglary upon the fancy goods store of Kohl-satt & Sons, Nos. 9, 11 and 13 Mercer street, on the night commit a burglary upon the fancy goods store of Kohlsatt & Sona, Nos. 9, 11 and 13 Mercer street, on the night of the 25th of March, which was commenced on Monday, was continued. District Attorney Russell called a number of police officers of the Eighth precinct who testified to seeing the prisoners in the locality of Kohlsatt's store on the evening in question; to the fact that Wesley Allen was in company with the others at an oyster saloon in Canal street at eleven o'clock that night, and was handling a red pepper box, and to the further fact that when "West" Allen was searched at the station house a brass padlock was found in his possession. The first witness called by the defence was Mrs. Sarah Daley, who undertook to account for Allen's possession of the padlock by saying that on the 27th of March she requested him to purchase one for her closet door, and that William C. Hull, who was present at the time in her apartments 99½ antity street, said that he would give him one which he had at home. The lady stated that she accompanied "Wes," to a bali in Mercer street on the following night, and that Hull, who was the manager of the institution, gave Allen the lock. Mr. Hull was also examined by Mr. Howe. These witnesses were severely cross-examined by Assistant District Attorney Russell. A car driver by the name of Thomas was called to prove that he recommented Wesley to use red pepper to cure rheumatism. This piece of testimony was introduced to account for the red pepper being in the prisoner's The case will be finished to-day.

NIXON AND HIS DOOM.

How Nixon, the Murderer, Meets His Coming Fate-The Resignation and Religious Hope He Manifests-Devotion of His Wife-A Luck of Public Excitement as to the Execution on Friday.

The execution of Nixon is fixed for Friday morning. His counsel, Mr. W. F. Howe, still continues his unremitting exertions to obtain a stay of proceedings, and yesterday, with associate counsel, he applied to Judge Ingalis, at Albany, for a stay of proceedings. He also has asked Governor Dix for a respite to enable an argument for a stay of proceedings to be heard in the Court of Oyer and erminer in this city. No decision in either case has been arrived at yet. In the meantime Nixon, with a wisdom that is very commendable, has resigned himself to his fate, and expects to die at the bands of the public executioner on Friday. Under the faithful and wise ministrations of Father Duranquet Nixon has passed out of the region of despair which so thoroughly surrounded him for several days after receiving his sentence into an unconditional resignation to the awful circumstances in which he finds himself. This quiet calmess is manifestly traceable to his implicit trust in the faith of his Church. Religion, as manifested in Catholicism, has lit up the valley and the shadow of death, and he walks toward the threshold with a consciousness of hope that fears no evil. Instructed in all his religious duties by Father Duranquet he has been an apt and confiding son, and he has not now for many days passed allowed his mind to be distracted by any other occupation than that efreading religious books. He objects decidedly to professional it cerviews; he has a horror of newspapers and a wholesome dread of notoriety. He sees very few of his friends. His regular visitors are Father Duranquet and the Sisters of Mercy. His wife, of course, is in attendance every day upon him, and manifests the deepest solicitude for his comfort. The Scriptural aphorism, illustrative of the devotion of women, that finds its expression in "The last at the cross, the first at the sepulchre," has its truthiuness shown in the faithful attendance of the wives of the murderers. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Simmons and her beautiful children, Mrs. King and Mrs. Nixon were in the Tombs together; each of these doing all that their love could suggest to smooth the pathway to the grave which their respective husbands are fast approaching. The officials at the Tombs are somewhat surprised at the apathy of the public interest that generally surrounds these dread events. Nixon is attended night and day by two deputy sherifs. On Thursday the gallows—that hideous wooden instrument of death—will be brought has been arrived at vet. In the meantime Nixon, with a wisdom that is very commendable, has

LUIGI LUSIGNANI.

The Last Hours of the Wife Murderer MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 13, 1873.

Luigi Lusignani, the Italian wife murderer, who to-morrow expiates his crime upon the gallows in Morristown, has developed another strange freak. A few days since he announced his intention of starving himself to death, so as to anticipate his execution, and with this purpose in view he steadily refused the food that was set before him. He adhered to his resolution for a day or two, but He adhered to his resolution for a day or two, but was so inconsistent as to drink quantities of Rhine wine and tea, which were supplied him by some of the inhabitants of Morristown, who sympathized with him in his unfortunate position. Lusignani soon tired of the starvation dodge, finding how pleasant it was to live perhaps, and has gone upon the opposite tack. He has commenced to eat so ravenously that his meals are becoming too limited for him, although provisions enough for any ordinary man in good health are furnished; but whether he is endeavorprovisions enough for any ordinary man in good health are furnished; but whether he is endeavoring to kill himself by gluttony, as he intended to do by starvation, cannot be ascertained, as he has given no reason for his sudden increase of appetite. Since his incarceration he has been greatly addicted to profane language, and, sad to say, as his end approaches this tendency is not in the least abated. His spiritual advisers are doing all in their power to prepare him for his fate, but hitherto they have not met with much success.

Capture of Several Old Offenders on New Charges.

Besides the large number of wealthy criminals who live in style in Williamsburg, but who practise their "profession" in more inviting fields, there is a large class of petty larceny thieves and sneaks who give considerable annoyance to families who cannot afford to keep a private watchman under pay. A batch of these, arrested by Detective Martin Short, of the Sixth precinct, were fully committed for trial yesterday, by Justice Eames, on a charge of having committed a burglary on Sunday morning at the cigar store of John Felton, Montrose avenue. The prisoners are known as Eugene Seymour, alias ked Riley, aged twenty-one years; George White, aged twenty-one; Edward Parker, alias Faulkner, an East New York traveller, aged twenty-three; Lewis Fuchs, aged twenty-mand James Smith, members of the South Fifth street Battle Row gang, were committed by Justice Elliott to answer charges of robbery and assault and battery. They attacked the driver of a wagon containing valuable globes, and succeeded in getting away with one for a short distance, but the driver pursued the thieves and took nossession of the globe. They then assaulted him with stones and ran under cover, but were soon afterward captured by Officer Canfield, of the Fifth precinct, who found on the person of one of them a knile of very disagreeable appearance.

Mr. Henry Englehardt, who was assaulted by unknown persons at Hunter's Point during the recent charter election there, died at his residence, 132 Dupont street, Green-point, on Monday night. Mr. Englehardt was a very old
