THE FANNY KELLY CASE.

The habeas corpus case in which the discharge of Fanny Kelly, committed by Judge Flammer, of the Tombs Police Court, for disorderly conduct, was asked for on the ground that there had been no examination or trial and that no record of trial existed, was disposed of yesterday by Judge Westexisted, was disposed of yesterday by Judge West-brook in Supreme Court Chambers. The Court de-cided that the official return of the police magis-trate as to an examination of complainant and de-fendant being had, should be accepted in the ab-sence of more than a mere formal tenial on the part of the relator. The writ is, therefore, dis-missed and the prisoner remanded.

THE FRAUDULENT BOND CASE.

The examination in the case of E. Nauitner, enarged with attempting to negotiate a $1,000 United States registered five-twenty bond which had been tampered with, was continued yesterday before United States Commissioner Osporn.

Mr. Molloy, a real estate broker, testified to procuring a loan of $700 for Naultner on his note, with the bond as collateral security.

Sub-Treasury Agent Patterson testified that the bond was a genuine one, but the figures had been tampered with, and the name of the payee crassed.

The examination was then adjourned until three clock on Thursday, for the purpose of producing Mrs. Pettus, wife of Spence Pettus, as a witness. It will be remembered that Naultner was a witness in the case of Roberts, who was tried in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for bond forgery some time ago, and that it was then shown be hat confidential relations with the Pettus-Roberts gang.

The examination has so far failed to show that Naultner had any guilty knowledge of the bond having been tampered with. He had the bond in his possession only a short time, having got it from Colonel Wood, ex-Olnef of the Secret Service, the day on which he attempted to negotiate it.

LIABILITIES OF CONTRACTORS.

The case of Dillon and others vs. Masterson came up yesterday in the Superior Court, Chambers, bee Judge Curtis. This action was brought to recover $5,000 for work and materials furnished by plaintiffs to defendant, a well-known wealthy city contractor, for the filling in of Seventy-eixth street, which contract plaintiffs agreed to finish by the 1st of June, 1s73. They falled to do so, and, as alleged, atandoned the contract, after partial performance, and the defendant was then obliged to finish. Hence the action for the value of work done. The defence interposed by defendant's counsel was that performance was to precede payment, and the plaintiffs, having failed to perform in full, could not recover, nor could they recover on a quantum meruit, as the contract called for a full performance before payment, and the plaintiffs, having neglected to complete, could recover nothing for the work done. The referee before whim the case was tried held in accordance with the above views, and found a verdict in favor of the defendant. Defendant's counsel was granted an admitional allowance, to be inserted in the costs. The decision has been appealed, and now comes in the nature of a motion that the Court direct the referee to make certain additional findings. Judge Curtis has made an order that the proposed additional findings be specifically passed upon by the referee and inserted in the case. Mr. Thomas Punnbly counsel for defendant. plaintiffs to defendant, a well-known wealthy additional findings be specifically passed upon by the referee and inserted in the case. Mr. Thomas Dunphy, counsel for defendant.

BROOKLYN COURTS.

SUPREME COURT-GENERAL TERM.

The Carroll Contested Will Case-Tale of Two Wives of a Treacherous Tailor-A Female Enoch Arden.

Before Justices Barnard, Tappen and Talcott. Nearly a quarter of a century ago there came to the United States one John Carroll, then a young man, from England to seek his fortune. John had served his apprenticeship at the tailor's trade. He settled in Brooklyn, and soon made himself so popular in his business that he was enabled to open an establishment on his own account on Myrtle avenue. Business throve, and certain oppor tunities opening for investment in real estate Carroll was shrewd enough to avail himself of them. These ventures proved successful, and John Carroll, who continued to carry on the tailoring business, found himself three years ago with about $200,000. Shortly after coming to America he met Elizabeth Brady, a young Irish woman, and married her. They fived happily together, and she bore him three children, who are now living. In the fail of 1872 Carroll, finding that his constitution was breaking up, and acting upon the advice of his family physician, determined upon crossing the Atlantic and visiting freland, his native place, and England. Before setting sail he made a will, by which he bequeathed the bulk of his property to his faithful wife. Elizabeth and her children. In December, 1872, word came from England that carroll had departed this life on November 20th of that year. Soon after, when the will came before the Kings County Surrogate's Court, before Surrogate Veeder, an unlooked for claimant for the property of John Carroll put in an appearance in the person of an elderly woman, who gave her name as Margaret Carroll and claimed to be the first wife o. deceased, she having been married to him before he came to New York, upward of twenty-eight years ago. He had abandoned her in England, she affirmed, and it was only a couple of years previously that she learned he was living in Brookiyn. She was in the city before he led this country, had passed him on the street; but did not wisk to make herself known at that time. She now, however, claimed her who continued to carry on the tailoring business, he was living in Brocklyn. She was in the city before he let this country, had passed him on the street; but did not wise to make herself known at that time. She now, however, claimed her widow's dower. Her marriage certificate, duly authenticated, was also presented. Elizabeth, wife No. 2, and her children, contested the claim of No. 1 in the Supreme Court. Able counsel was employed ou both sides, and the trial occupied several days. The result of the trial was in favor of Margaret, the first wile, to whom was given the right of dower, the remainder of the property going to the second wife, Elizabeth, and ner children. Testerday this remarkable case came up before the Supreme Court, General Term, in the form of an appeal for a new trial on behalf of Elizabeth Carroll. The counsel for the lady takes exception to the assertion that the proving of the will is an evidence of the death of Mr. Carroll, and claims that Margaret's counsel must prove that John carroll sreally dead. A commission has recently been sent to England to take testimony upon this important point. Should Mr. Carroll prove to be in the land of the living it would put an entirely different face on the case. Fending the report of said commission the Court reserved its decision.

ANOTHER POLICE OUTRAGE.

A Peaceable Citizen Clubbed to Insensibillity by a Brutal Officer-The Legal Learning of Judge Sherwood-Against the Law to Stand on the Street on Sunday. Among the cases tried at the Special Sessions vesterday morning was one which was entered on the calendar as "assault and battery," entitled Castle vs. McCarthy. The complainant is a police officer, and when he was put on the stand he told the following story:- I was walking on my beat on First avenue, near Forty-ninth street, on the Sunday night before last, and noticing a crowd around the corner I ordered them to move off. They began to move down toward Forty-eighth street, laughed and I gave him a shove and he hit me with his cane; when he did this I clubbed him and he hit me again, and I clubbed him more. When I began to club him a crowd of radhans—some of the party whom I had chased away—began to peit me with stones, to prevent me from doing my duty. I brought him to the station house when I got the fight out of him and made a charge of disorderly conduct and assault and battery.

It may be well to state here that Castle is a man six feet high, with powerful himbs; while McCartby is a short man, about five feet, three inches. The cane with which the officer complains he was struck was a thin, flexible walking stick, while the officer's club was of the regulation size, weighing in all probability ten times as much as the cane.

Mr. Price, in his cross-examination, elicited the important fact that the officer did not at the time he clubbed him or since recognize McCarthy as one of the parties whom he had ordered off the Forty-ninth street corner. McCarthy was put on the stand to testify in his own benail. He swore that on Sunday night he was standing on the corner of Forty-eighth street and First avenue, about 150 feet from where he lives, when the complation that came up to him and ordered him away; shortly before the officer came a crowd of young men had been standing on the corner talking about some one who had done something to them; not knowing the parties, he did not interest himself in their affair, and they traved off, after standing there for some moments. Then the officer came up and took him by the collar, and shoving him with great violence, said, "Git away from here." The bandling of the officer was so rude that McCarthy tost his hat, and when he stooped to pick it up the officer hit him with the club across the thighs, accompanying his violence with abuse. McCarthy was so ourraged at the officer's abuse that he raised his rattan cane to strike, when the officer, who had a heavy club in his hand, began to use it. In a moment the blood began to sput from the gashes the club had made in McCarthy's head, and he was completely blinded with the warm red blood from his wounds; he could offer no resistance and the officer continued his cruel clubbing. McCarthy showed his wounds to the Court. The top of his head was covered with white spots in the pool has head was covered with white spots in the officer had not the prisoner, "Don't you know it's against the law to stand on the street?" Mr. Price answered for his client, "No, Judge, he does not, beither do you; and I, as a lawyer, know of no law which prevents a man from standing on the street on Sunday any more than any other day in the week."

Mrs. Donovan and Grs. McKenna, two ladies who saw the outrage, gave testimony which in every particular corroborated that of McCar Mr. Price, in his cross-examination, elicited the

Mrs. Donovan and Mrs. McKenna, two ladies who saw the outrage, gave testimony which in every particular corroborated that of McCarthy. The officer had no witness to prove the assertion that McCarthy out him. Certainly the officer at the desk at the time of the arrest could tell whether he was not or not. The Court, in deciding the case, said, "McCarthy, you are discharged," and the prisoner went his way, followed by the giant other, to whom the Court administered not one word of rebuke.

THE MORRISANIA POLICE.

Occasion has been taken before now to criticise the conduct of the policemen under Captain Robbins. Those of them who are stationed around the populous places in the lower part of the district from the bridge to Seventh street, are the most officious class of men to be found anywhere. Those who are stationed out along the Boulevard are never to be seen after dark, and unknown outrages are committed on this lonesome highway every week. People who have to go to Port Morris after dark prefer to go to the Remsen House and remain over night, owing to the chance they run of being garroted on the way by a gang of rufflans who hang out along the road from Christ's Park to the Port. Within the last month no less than three burgiaries have been committed in and around Wilton, and in one instance, when the OUURT CALENDARS—THIS DAY.

191, 194, 199.

MARINE COURT—TRIAL TREE—Part 1—Held by where they went. Since the occurrence just glosen of the men at the bridge are most wonderfully "inquisitive." There is a prophecy current among the force that the man in Witton will be found while crossing itariem Bridge in possession of all the inquisitiveness, and if a lady goes by that way after dark she is infercepted and her luggage examined without any warrant, and the same way with a man. He must not bring anything out of West-chester county without going through the police custom house. A case in point is that of Martin Schweid, a poor watch tinker, who was tried at the Special Sessions on the charge of a tempiting to take officer McDonough's line. It appears from the evidence that Schweid was on his way from White Plains to New York, where he proposed to buy a new coat. It was about six o'clock in the morning evidence that schweid was on his way from White Fians to New York, where he proposed to buy a new coat. It was about six o'clock in the morning when he got to Filth street, Morrisama, where officer McDonough happened to' be; the officer stopped him and wanted to know what he had in his bag and in his pockets. The tramp refused to allow him to search, and the officer resorted to force, whereupon the tramp put his hand into his inside pocket and attempted to pull out a navy revolver about twenty inches long. The officer caught his wrists and held him until belp came, which was called by the tramp, who nowled "Murder!" and "Police!" as lond as he could.

The Court held the tramp, as he did not consider him of sound mind. He will be examined to-day by the doctors, and upon their decision as to the soundness of his mind will depend his detention or discharge.

NEW JERSEY.

The highway robbers are again visiting Hudson county. A laborer named George Dunfrey was knocked down and robbed of his wages while on his way homeward, in West New York, on Sat-urday night. The shoe store No. 62 Washington street, Hoboken, was burgiarrously entered on Sunday night and robbed of $75. The Weshawken woods are a lavorite rendezvous for those thieves.

The project of the Hudson county Water Commissioners for the introduction of water into the northern part of the county at a cost of $5,000,000 or $6,000,000, was considered by the Hoboken Council in Committee of the Whole, last evening, when it was resolved to report haverably thereon, Owing to the prospect of a "oig joo" in the matter, and the allowance of none but interested property owners to vote in approval of the project, the enterprise meets with heavy opposition. An animated debate is expected at the next meeting. meeting.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

The Renewal of the Championship Contests-An Important Victory by the Mutuals. Since the departure of the Athletic and Boston clubs for England the enampionship arena has not peen as well patronized as it was before; but now that the two most prominent contestants are home again a revival of interest has taken place; and what, with the two exciting contests in Philadelphia and Boston last week, between the Boston "Reds" and the Athletic "Blues," and the singular game of Monday, there has been a decided reaction, and yesterday not far from 3,000 spectators witnessed the contest between the Mutuais, of this city, and the Athletics, of Philadelphia, which city, and the Athletics, of Philadelphia, where took place on the Union grounds, Brooklyn. The game opened in favor of the Athletics, who led by I to 0 at the close of the first innings, they opening well both at the bat and in the field. In the second innings the Mutual3 took the lead, but in the third lost it sgain. The next innings, however, they scored a single, after blanking the Athletics, and this lead—4 to 3—they kept up to the close of the game, the Athletics isling to add a single run to their score after the third innings, the Mutuals in the interior scoring three singles, which finally gave them the game by 6 to 3. The style in which the Mutual fielders in every position supported the effective pitching of Matthews afforded ample proof of their ability to have won even a third more of the games they have played than they have done. Hitherto, however, they have failed to play win any united effort in all their games, and hence their record of seventend the distribution of the fielding errors proving costly. To-day the Athletics play the Atlantics, when it is likely they will score a victory. The excellent umpiring was quite a feature of yesterday's game.
