

WEEKLY TELEGRAPH.

A.SHTABULA:

Saturday Morning, Feb. 12, 1859.

S. M. Pettengill & Co.'s
ADVERTISING AGENTS for the American, New York, and State papers, are the Agents for the TELEGRAPH and the most influential and largest circulating Newspapers in the United States and the Canadas. They are authorized to contract for us at our lowest rates.

DOMESTIC MATTERS.

SIXTH LECTURE.

The sixth Lecture of the village course, will be given at Fish Hall, on TUESDAY EVENING, next, at 1-4 before 8, by Rev. C. E. Bruce—Subject—King Philip, Sachem of Mt. Hope.

INDIVIDUAL INFLUENCE.—The subject of the lecture of C. W. Kelso, Esq., before our citizens, on Wednesday evening last, was a creditable and much production. It was characterized by considerable thought, well concentrated, and logically traced. From atoms and facts, in their respective scales of importance, the lecturer ascended to the genius and intellect of man, which he characterized as unrivaled in its influence and power, scattering in his path way anecdote and illustration of the most striking and happy selection, and closing with an eloquent tribute to the intellectual greatness of Washington, who formed the beau ideal of individual influence. Some points in the lecture were so well made, as to elicit very flattering marks of approbation. Owing to the change of weather from tempestuous to rigorous cold, and perhaps in a greater measure to the change of the evening, the hall, though well filled, was not as crowded as on former occasions.

SLAUGHTER PARTY.—A numerous party of gents and their wives and sweet hearts, cosily "tucked up" in Buffalo and big sleighs, flocked in hand, sat off on Tuesday afternoon from this village for a good time at Conneaut. The air was genial as the hearts of the revelers, and the occasion was one of excitement and pleasure. Arriving at the Tremont, land-lord Blakely did the nice thing, by his kindly attention, & his generous provision for the creature comforts of his guests. Upon & West had been engaged for the occasion, and the merry dance gave wings to the passing hours.—The party we believe reached home in good time for a fresh and early start in the somewhat tame realities of life, the next morning. The Tremont seems to have won laurels on this occasion, if we take the compliments of the guests as evidence.

NEW LANDLORDS.—We learn from the Satellite, that Landlord TAYLOR late of the American House, Meadville, Pa., takes the Jefferson House at the County Seat.

O. BELDEN has taken the Geneva House, and intends, we suppose, to show that some things can be done as well as others.

E. G. GLEASON, of this village, has purchased the Pick House, K. L. Holbrook, proprietor, and will enter into possession in all the month of April. Mr. G. is no novice in the vocation into which he proposes to embark, and will no doubt make an acceptable landlord. Holbrook retires upon a popular reputation, to the tranquility and enjoyment of private life.

THE SLAUGHTER OF SHEEP by dogs in Wayne, is arousing considerable feeling against the canines. Some 25 or 30 sheep, we learn, have been either killed, or so brutally maimed and lacerated as to make the task of dispatching them an act of mercy.

COUNSELLOR RIDOL'S ARGUMENT in the Cole trial at Jefferson, in pamphlet form, has been sent at our disposal, at 15 cents each. It is a fine specimen of forensic ability, and gives a clear and succinct history of the case.

COLUMBUS LETTER.—We are disappointed in the failure of our Columbus letter this week; and as such failure can only be known one or two hours before going to press, we are unable to remedy the failure by providing other matter. Our legislature report, therefore, is meager indeed. Nothing, however, of trifling interest has taken place, but that has received a passing notice.

We have received the speech of Mr. FRENCH, of Lake, on the repeal of the 10 per cent law, which we have read with much satisfaction.—The effort was one alike creditable to its author, and flattering, from its ability, to his constituency.

KANSAS GOLD MINES.—How to Get to Them. A writer from Davenport, Iowa, Jan. 22d, says: "The gold at Pike's Peak is the topic of interest here and in all the west, and the best means of emigrating there in the spring is much discussed. The gold itself is a reliable fact; I have seen some of it. It is what miners call scale gold, not shot gold, which latter pays the best to mine; but where the scale gold is abundant, the lumps are pretty certain not to be far off. The outfit for a party of six emigrants, obtained at this point, may be put down as follows—outside prices:

Two pair mules, $600
Provisions for six months, 720
One wagon, 85
One extra pair axles, 10
Picks and shovels, 15
——— $1420

From this, deduct the first cost of the mules, which are worth more at the mines than here (as all transportation must be done at the mines by packing), and you have us the cost of six men after arrival, $820, or $127 each. The route in view, is from this point via Iowa City, Des Moines, and Council Bluffs, to Fort Kearney, and the mines.—To this must be added the cost of mule feed to Fort Kearney, which will be trifling with corn at 25 cents per bushel. From Fort Kearney the teams must be fed from the prairie. Time occupied in making the trip, 35 days. I have not enumerated in the above the cost of clothing or firearms.

As a place to fit out there is none better than this city west of the seaboard. Mules are plenty, and wagons expressly for the trip are manufactured here, which cannot be beat for service, and the cost is $35, complete. A word as to routes. Every little 4 by 6 sheet on the western Missouri border has raised its puny cry in favor of the thousand and one cattle paths, leading west. But the only best route is via Mississippi river bridge, through central Iowa to Council Bluffs, and up the north side of the Platte. This was the route taken by the last three divisions of the 2,700 Mormons, who preferred it to all others; and the elders had certainly sent trains enough to satisfy themselves as to which was the best trail.

New York Produce Market—Feb. 9.

FRESH—The market is high and prices rule low, with for example, Corn, $1.00 per bushel, State 1 & 2, $0.90; 3 & 4, $0.85; 5 & 6, $0.80; 7 & 8, $0.75; 9 & 10, $0.70; 11 & 12, $0.65; 13 & 14, $0.60; 15 & 16, $0.55; 17 & 18, $0.50; 19 & 20, $0.45; 21 & 22, $0.40; 23 & 24, $0.35; 25 & 26, $0.30; 27 & 28, $0.25; 29 & 30, $0.20; 31 & 32, $0.15; 33 & 34, $0.10; 35 & 36, $0.05; 37 & 38, $0.02; 39 & 40, $0.01.

FRUIT—The market is high and prices rule low, with for example, Apples, $1.00 per bushel, State 1 & 2, $0.90; 3 & 4, $0.85; 5 & 6, $0.80; 7 & 8, $0.75; 9 & 10, $0.70; 11 & 12, $0.65; 13 & 14, $0.60; 15 & 16, $0.55; 17 & 18, $0.50; 19 & 20, $0.45; 21 & 22, $0.40; 23 & 24, $0.35; 25 & 26, $0.30; 27 & 28, $0.25; 29 & 30, $0.20; 31 & 32, $0.15; 33 & 34, $0.10; 35 & 36, $0.05; 37 & 38, $0.02; 39 & 40, $0.01.

WHEAT—full a bushel, $1.00 per bushel, State 1 & 2, $0.90; 3 & 4, $0.85; 5 & 6, $0.80; 7 & 8, $0.75; 9 & 10, $0.70; 11 & 12, $0.65; 13 & 14, $0.60; 15 & 16, $0.55; 17 & 18, $0.50; 19 & 20, $0.45; 21 & 22, $0.40; 23 & 24, $0.35; 25 & 26, $0.30; 27 & 28, $0.25; 29 & 30, $0.20; 31 & 32, $0.15; 33 & 34, $0.10; 35 & 36, $0.05; 37 & 38, $0.02; 39 & 40, $0.01.

CHEESE—Steady at $1.15 per lb.

MISERY EGYPTIORITY.—The late Isaac of Convent, whose sudden death, was stately and sorrowful, by a sound throat under the dome of heaven, and thus the unceasing shade was to give solace to the silent language, of all those who mourned the passing of one, which had fallen irretrievably as that composed of, deserves. Our sympathies are with the disseminators, but some slyer fair ones, and her appeal is gaudy headed.

THE CURSE—Original.

I dare to forget me,
Go where wiles thou will!
Then know thy way was falsehood,
Thy heart was full of guile.
And yet I could not tell
But to predict thy sin.
But, oh! this was not fit to think,
Thine care must be to think.

Then go, that thought will render thee
A dastard in thy flight;
And when at night you sleepless too,
With shame it will torte.
Remember, to the utmost need,
Lovers did shrink;
But, come to this infidelity,
Thy love is now to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!
And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee—
The ghost of the dark doom!

And the beauty have thy faire board,
To thy mortal bane.
For these fatal smiles are on thy lips,
They care must be to think.

I have the fond and well,
With woman's true, trusty friend,
Thy joyful heart will tell.
How false—how thin's been to me.
Go wonder earth's fair confines,
Thus east and west I drink.
There's misery in the mists!
They care must be to think.

Go seek delusion and revelry,
And drink the night to more.
The ghost of that shall follow thee