THE WINTER SNOWS.

Over the mountains the snow wreaths are drifting.
Hanging their gariands on laurel and pine, Robing the fields with an exquisite beauty, Bending the feathery sprays of the vine—Falling like down on the breast of the river, Crowning the maple trees over the way, Drifting along on the winds to the southward, After the vessels far out in the bays

In the red sunset the snowflakes are shining, Snow drift on snow drift and curl upon curl, Flashing back colors of exquisite-brightness, Diamonds and rose leaves and mother-of-pearl; Softly, ye snow-wreaths, drop over the hillside, Where in still slumbers the weary ones rest, Where by the pine tree my mother is sleeping, Tenderly lay your white fold on her breast.

Soon shall a springtime break over the mountains, Over its beauty no cold wind shall blow, Frost shall not breathe there to wither the flowers, Never again shall they hide in the snow;

Eye hath not looked on that spring in it beauty,
Songs of the seraphs shall welcome its birth, Come in the beauty and glow of the morning! Springtime eternal dawned over the earth.

Wine.

If cider, brandy and logwood, With drugs of all degrees, Can do the human system good By driving out discase;

If sugar-o'-lead and beet-root juice, With opium combined, Compose a draught of healing use

To sick and sore mankind—
Then use it ye, with hope and fear,
Who in affliction pine,
But in the name of all that's dear Don't call that mixture win

UNFORGOTTEN WORDS.

"Have you examined that bill James?" "Yes, sir."

"Any thing wrong?"

"Ah! let me see." The lad handed his employer a long bill that had been placed upon his desk fer examination. "Here is an error in the calculation of ten dollars which they have made against hemselves; and another of ten dollars in the footing."

"Also against themselves?" "Yes, sir."

The merchant smiled in a way that struck the lad as peculiar. "Twenty dollars against themselves," he remarked in a kind of pleasant surprise. "Trusty clerks they must have."

'Shall I correct the figures?" asked the lad. "No! let them correct their own mistakes; we don't examine bills for other people's benefit," replied the merchant.

"Let people look after their own mis-takes," said Mr. Carman. James Lewis pondered these things in his heart. The impression they made was too strong ever to be forgotten. "It may be right," he said, but he did not feel altogether satisfied.

A month or two after the occurrence of the bank mistake, James counted ever his weekly wages, just received from Mr. Carman, he discovered that he was paid half a dollar too much. The first impulse of his mind was to return the half dollar to his employer, and it was on his lips to say, "You have given me half a dollar too much, sir," when the unforgotten words, "Let peo-ple look after their own mistakes," flashing upon his thoughts, made him hesi-tate.
