One Check For Husband-Wife S. S. Payments

Social security payments to some elderly couples will be combined into a single family check next month. A. W. Boehringer, manager of the East Side district office at 10002 Euclid ave., made this announcement today.

Retired workers' wives, who have filed claims since September, will have their wives' benefit amounts combined with their husbands' old age retirement checks where they are living at the same address. However, no combined husband-wife checks will be issued where they are living apart, or where part of the wife's payment is based upon her own work record. Furthermore, separate checks will continue to be sent out where either is incompetent to handle money.

About a million and one-quarter wives are entitled to benefits on their retired husbands' records. Up until now, Mr. Boehringer said, each wife has been receiving her own check each month. For the present, combined checks will be issued only as newly eligible wives receive their first payments, or where the couple's benefits had been stopped and are being resumed. This new procedure of paying husbands and wives by combined checks will be extended to more couples receiving monthly retirement checks as soon as possible.

The Social Security Administration has combined benefit payments to children living in the same household into a single check since 1951. The procedure has resulted in considerable savings. By combining husband-wife payments into a single check, the Government will further cut expenses in issuing checks as well as relieving the mailing problem for the Post Office Department.

Cashing a single government check will be simpler for many couples. Besides, if they've been paying fees to cash their checks, they will now have to pay only one fee instead of two. The combining of the husband's and wife's benefits into one check in no way affects either's right to their check, nor the amount of the benefit. Both must sign the check before it can be cashed. In concluding, Mr. Boehringer stated that any beneficiary who objects to the combined payment will be paid by separate check.

Railroaders Meet Cards For Cage Opener

Although football is still "in season" Collinwood and Shaw will make the switch indoors when the two neighborhood rivals meet in an independent basketball game on Wednesday, November 21st.

The cage action takes place in the Shaw Field House starting at 7 p. m. when the Junior Varsity Squads tangle.

This year's contest will mark the 31st meeting between the Railroaders and Cardinals since the first contest in 1926. Last year Coach Joe Lesko's lads turned in a 41-32 decision to make it 17 wins in the series.

Coach Lesko of Collinwood and Coach Grant Kibbel of Shaw are still experimenting with various combinations so varsity berths are still wide open. Since both schools just ended their football activities last week, no doubt are still trying to shake off football bumps and bruises which could bring about changes in the basketball squad.

Don Hicks On European Tour

Cleveland Community Chest Red Feather agencies served 15,527 Euclid area residents during the past year, according to a study recently completed by the Research Department of the Cleveland Welfare Federation.

In the study, the services of the Chest's 125 agencies were broken down into four classifications: Group Work and Recreation, Health and Rehabilitation, Casework for Adults and Children, and a miscellaneous category.

Group Work and Recreation classification posted the largest number of Euclid area names. The report showed that 3,892 local people used the services of the Young Men's Christian Association, and 7,630 boys were active in the Boy Scouts.

Euclid women also figured prominently in the Group Work category. The Young Women's Christian Association has 814 women on their membership scrolls, while 1,827 young girls filled the ranks of the Girl Scouts.

Euclid's Campfire Girls numbered 321 and 49 local people were students at Music School Settlement House. Nine persons took part in the group work at Karamu House. All are Red Feather agencies.

Under the Health and Rehabilitation classification, 298 persons were treated by workers in the Visiting Nurse Association. Of those Euclid residents that have a speech or hearing handicap, 113 were treated at a Hearing and Speech Center. During 1955, 36 of Euclid's blind were served by the Society for the Blind and 35 new people utilized the services of the Rehabilitation Center.

According to the study, 177 Euclid area families would have had to live from day to day with unnecessary and undesirable problems if it were not for the work of a family service agency. Sixty-one young people found guidance at a youth serving casework agency, and 79 of the area's children used the services of a children's casework agency. These are only a few of the listings under this category.

The study's miscellaneous category was filled with two and three numeral figures on Euclid residents. For example, 176 local people were helped with their legal problems by the Legal Aid Society. As for people who are not quite sure what job they are best suited for, 39 found guidance at the Vocational Guidance Bureau. Nationalities Services helped 25 of this area's residents.

These are only a few of the many items listed in this study. Cleveland Community Chest is again endeavoring to raise funds to continue these vital services. The annual Red Feather appeal this year starts October 15 and continues through the 25th. A challenging goal of $8,834,000 has been set, and this figure represents only the minimum amount needed to continue Chest supported health and welfare services in Greater Cleveland.
