Former ASFer In Upper Ten Of His Class

Frends of Hroshi Shibata, East Cleveland's 1958-59 American Field Service student at Shaw High School, will be delighted to know that he has been rated the top ranking senior in English in all Japan.

This high scholastic achievement came through tests given to the 30,000 high school seniors of the island. One of the pleasant surprises when this youth came to Shaw was his command of the American language. Japan, as most foreign countries, emphasizes the importance of languages, especially English.

Hiroshi is making good use of this accomplishment. He is tutoring two sons of his high school principal in this language.

Still another honor is being attained by this former AFS guest. He is in the top ten of his class of 600 at Kobe High School from which he will be graduated in March.

On his return from the United States, Kobe High offered Hiroshi his diploma, even though the subjects taken at Shaw were not in its curriculum. However, with an eye on the university entrance examinations, Hirohi deecided to make up the work missed by doing the Senior requirements there, rather than try and make them up in some other way. He hopes to enter the University of Tokyo and prepare for a diplomatic career.

While attending Shaw, Hiroshi was the "son" of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Lyndall, jr. 1021 Helmsdale rd.

We're a 750-car family

Serving YOU 24-Hours a Day

Every working day, George Cox and his colleagues drive a fleet of passenger cars out of The Illuminating Company's service centers and criss-cross Northeast Ohio. Their job: maintain a constant vigil to insure round-the-clock service to Illuminating Company customers.

If yours is a one- or two-car family, you know that keeping George and his co-workers on wheels costs money. Imagine, then, what the upkeep must amount to in a 750-car family!

In 1959, operating and maintaining The Illuminating Company's 750-vehicle fleet cost more than $1,500,000. Of that amount, gasoline and oil accounted for $250,000. License plates alone cost $73,000.

It's a well-assorted fleet. There are big line trucks, speedy radio-equipped service trucks, pole diggers, even motor scooters. All told, they covered eight million miles of Northeast Ohio territory last year.

This fleet—and instantaneous two-way radio communication—enables us to have our crews where they're needed in a matter of minutes. They're at your service 24-hours a day, to keep dependable, low-cost electricity flowing into your home.
