Applying Manure to Land
From Industrial Journalism Department, Kansas
State Agricultural College.

Manhattan, Kan., Oct. 24.— The amount of manure that it is safe to apply to the wheat field is considerably less than that for the alfalfa field, according to R.
I. Throckmorton, associate professor of agronomy in the Kansas State Agricultural College.

Heavy applications cause the wheat to lodge and burn, and in this way decrease the yield. Professor Throckmorton advises that the surface dressing on the wheat field be not more than six or eight tons to the acre, in the eastern part of the state, and much less for the western.

The manure spreader is the best means of applying the manure. If it is allowed to remain in bunches, these will tend to smother the plant. Under no circumstances should it be hauled to the field and piled to be scattered at some future time.
By this practice a large amount of the fertility will leach out, and an exclusive amount of nitrogen will be deposited in local areas, causing the crop to lodge readily.

All manure that has been formed during the summer months should be applied to the alfalfa fields this fall, or to the wheat fields as soon as the fall growth has ceased. At the present prices of wheat and alfalfa no farmer can afford to allow this byproduct of the farm to be wasted.

BEGIN WHEN YOUNG

Music Lessons Should Begin
When Children Are Six or Seven Years Old

Lawrence, Oct. 24.—"When should little son or daughter begin taking music lessons?" Harold L. Butler, dean of the school of fine arts, University of Kansas, says it should be at 6 or 7 years.

"When a child is 6 or 7 years old," says Dean Butler, "a competent teacher acquainted with the child mind can determine whether or not the child is likely to develop talent. That is the age for a child to begin studying piano. The violin should come a year or so later, using a three-quarter size instrument at first and a full size violin when the child is 13 to 14 years old. It rarely is advisable for a child to begin on the cello before 10 years old. No child should be compelled to study music until a competent teacher has had a chance to determine whether or not the child should take lessons.
If a child resists all attempts to be taught it is probable the youngster has little or no talent.
However, most children will object if taught the old-fashioned way of learning the technical side first; that is, learning notes and staves first." The ultimate success of the pupil depends upon the start. Only teachers thoroughly qualified should be employed. Mistakes made in the beginning are most difficult to remedy in later years.
