PROGRESSIVES AFFIRM

so completely in the hands of the electorate that the deliberate popular will may be reflected alike in the making of the laws and in their administration and execution.

"Our opponents, hostile to self-government, declare that this doctrine is dangerous and revolutionary, and that the machinery of government must be of such character or so far removed from the people as to yield, if at all to the popular will, very slowly and after long delay. This difference in principle forms the basis of the issues of this campaign.

Labor Should Get First Consideration

"On the economic side the differences between the progressives and their opponents are equally clear cut. We hold as fundamental the proposition that productive labor—whether it is of the hand or the brain, whether it is on the farm or in the city—is entitled to receive as nearly as possible the full value of the service which is performed. We also hold that the prime motive of every form of industry should be service, with just compensation for all those who contribute to its promotion, financing, management and operation.

"The position of our opponents, on the other hand, as proved by their record on all economic legislation, is that the producers in industry and agriculture, shall receive the least practicable portion of the product of their toil, and that the prime purpose of industry should be the amassing of the largest possible profits for those favored few who control industry.

"It is this philosophy which has made it impossible for our opponents to conceive any effective remedy for the condition of agriculture or for unemployment and the other evils to which the workers of the cities are subjected."

THE KALEIDOSCOPE

By I. C. McCUMBER

As announced, "Mac" started on a tour. And "Mac" took that tour. He happened to travel just a little bit farther. In fact, he went some fifteen hundred miles into a country that is not met up with every day. If it is, then the hypocrites have nothing to say about it. Why should the hypocrites say anything but "hallelujah"?

Portions of Canada are "dry." In passing through Toronto questions were asked of a very high official as to the best place to stop for the night. Following his direction, we arrived at a city just as a terrific rainstorm broke, 9:15 p.m. Presenting the official's card, to prove our worthiness, we had "lubrications" for the inner man as well as for the crank case of the motor. This lubrication was clandestine, but winked at the enforcers and the people. Hallelujah!

Two hundred miles and then another oasis. One hundred and twenty-eight miles more and Montreal. "First chance," remarked a man who stood on a front porch of an inn. Oh, boy! Such ale never had the opportunity to pass a parched throat. It responded nobly and different hands grasped the steering wheel.

Montreal: 11:15 p.m., Eastern time. Two hours before the "pubs" closed. And there we were, eats and liberty, with a portrait of King George looking at you, smiling his approval upon those who were not saying amen in the hypocrite corner. The La Corona hotel had its full quota of men and women who were spending good American dollars for a brief respite from those who pray for the other man but neglect themselves—the hypocrites. "Yes, we will send it to your room. The blue room, yes? How many bottles?"

miles of lake front and river front—the St. Lawrence river—afforded easy ingress and exit with portable liquids.

Had we arrived with a shipload of portable liquid we might have given it away within starting distance, but as it was more than a hundred gallons of gasoline had been consumed to go where liberty still flourished and as our only satisfaction could come from sampling that which we had paid for legitimately, none was given, sold or broadcasted. It was purely for medicinal purposes, as the hypocrite states when he informs his personal physician in the United States that a little fermented corn juice will take from him that chilly feeling as he prays for the soul of the other man and forgets his own.

Not one intoxicated person seen in fifteen hundred miles of government-regulated sale of potable liquor. Not one smashed car or motor accident. How different in "dry" United States. Limousines, coupes, touring cars and flivvers, junked and smashed because large profits were being taken in supplying infernal stuff to those who had the price. Glory, hallelujah! The home of the proverbial skintint and hypocrite.

PROGRESSIVES LINE UP TEXAS FOR LA FOLLETTE

By International Labor News Service.

Dallas, Tex.—Leaders of the La Follette and Wheeler forces in Texas have ignored the internecine strife here and gone calmly and systematically on their way. They held a rousing state convention, nominated their national electors and their state executive committee, and completely organized for the coming battle.

The progressive movement is being launched in thirty-one districts and organization is rapidly being pushed in all of the 252 counties of the state. District chairman and organizers are working steadily and earnestly at their tasks. Reports indicate a willingness to listen and to learn. Outlying territories are being canvassed and work pushed among the farmers who are feeling the hard grind with the prices of cotton held down by the gamblers until it has passed out of their hands.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A. F. Bentley, state chairman of the La Follette-Wheeler ticket, in a statement issued says that the sweep for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket in Indiana is beyond expectations. He said the demand for speakers and campaign literature and other campaign work was so great that the office was swamped and that present finances were inadequate. As a result he has issued an appeal for additional funds to aid the work in Indiana.

PROFITS IN MACHINE GUNS

Cleveland—The dispute as to who invented the Lewis machine gun will be carried to the United States supreme court. Involved in the case is world war profits that aggregate $20,000,000. The claim of Colonel I. N. Lewis, United States army, retired, that he invented the gun has been upheld by the lower federal courts.
