BY "GRAVY."

American league pitchers are beginning to learn how to deliver the ball to Babe Ruth and the latter's batting average is dwindling.

The Giants have seven pitchers who are more than six feet tall—Causey, Winters, Peritt, Benton, Barnes, George Smith and Toney.

When Riggerts quits baseball he can always make a living by offering his head as a target for the visitors at country fairs who like to throw "three balls for a nickel." He was recently hit on the head by a pitched ball, but he hardly even lifted his hand to rub the spot where he had been struck.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS

THEATERS

AT THE EMPRESS.

The presentation of Eugene Walter's play of the north country, "The Wolf," is, aside from a few "bright spots," a mediocre production.

Andrew McTavish, the old Scotchman, transplanted in northern Canada, is ably played by Alf Layne. His dialect was perfect throughout and his playing excellent.

Miss Mary Newton as Hilma, McTavish's daughter, failed to convey the deeper emotions to her audience. Her voice is pure and musical, and during the lighter portions of the play she is charming, but in the parts calling for higher dramatic ability, Mary literally "blows up" like a high school girl rehearsing for the senior play.

William McDonald, the American engineer, is played by William Mayo, with his usual perfection. Mr. Mayo has long since demonstrated to the Emperess audiences that he is a true artist. Mr. Mayo's portrayals of characters so different from his own true nature are remarkable.

As George Huntley, McDonald's assistant, Harold Hutchinson delighted his audience. The sparkling, carefree American youth is a character especially fitted to Mr. Hutchinson.

Jules Beaubien, the French Canadian, is well played by Val Howard. Mr. Howard's dialect is good, but we'd prefer he would forget himself and drop it occasionally.

Baptiste La Grand, the old French Canadian is ably portrayed by Mr. McHowlan, his dialect being perfect throughout.

After the first act, which has rather a tense curtain, the Emperess Symphony Jazz orchestra suddenly jerked the audience from a peaceful little glade in the north woods and rudely dumped them on the floor of the Palais de Danse for their delightful rendition of "No Matter How Hard It Rains, the Rain Is Always Soft." The same thing was repeated after the second act.

This is rather a shock to one's nervous system, and one suggests to Mr. Belmont that he try to do something to prevent the Emperess audiences from becoming nervous wrecks.

Today's Anniversary.

Stow's Chronicle relates that on May 21, 1382, "there was a great earthquake in England, at nine of the clock, fearing the hearts of many; but in Kent it was most vehement, where it sunk some churches and threw them down to the earth." Rarely since that time has there been any report of any such disturbance in the British Isles. A song was written immediately afterward and this was sung all over England. It treats the earthquake as a great warning to an "overcareless people."

ATTENTION TAXPAYERS.

Editor Bulletin:

Under the Duncan administration one janitor looked after the cleaning of all offices on the second floor of the city hall, including the Emergency hospital. Under the present administration it requires the services of three janitors. Why the necessity of this extra help when the city is staggering under a debt brought on by incompetent mayors. As a taxpayer I am anxious to see wherein our present mayor has made one small reduction in the expense of running the city, while on the other hand the present revenue is insufficient to maintain a city of half its size.

Yes, one, Mrs. Bryne, did the work at the city hall, taking care of the second floor and the Emergency hospital. Today it requires three to do the same work. We are saving money, sure enough.

A TAXPAYER.

Editor Bulletin:

I read with some alarm the disclosures made of the prevalence of venereal diseases among the young people of the city and which only your paper printed.

Every day I hear some one say: "We would never have known anything about it, were it not for the Bulletin." I cannot conceive of anything of more vital concern to any community than the health of the young generation, and future parents of a nation.

It is conceded that this condition exists, so let's stop talking and do something to alleviate it. Many of our young girls, as well as boys, abuse the trusts their mothers place in them and rush headlong along forbidden paths to their own destruction. These young people must have firm guidance as well as instruction how to protect themselves.

For many years the women's clubs of the city have urged the appointment of a woman "police woman," whose business it would be to help in public welfare by protecting young girls from their own carelessness, to visit cabarets, dance halls, and road houses, to appear in court with very young girls, when statutory crimes were being tried, to attend solely to affairs concerning women and young girls. Helena, Great Falls, Lewiston, and other cities in the state afford this sort of protection for girls and women. These women help the regular police force in many ways. It is only Butte who has failed to recognize the necessity of such protection for girls. Butte, who now comes forward with the startling statement that this most dreaded of all diseases has increased more than 40 per cent since the spread of the restricted district to all parts of the town instead of "restricting" it to one part of the town only.

I wonder how the ministerial association likes the result of their endeavor to "clean up" Butte, and how much help, real help, they stand ready to give Mr. Stodden in his efforts to do so now?

Beauty spots are very necessary in our city, but cleaner minds and healthier bodies are infinitely more so, and the preservation of our young girls more important than all.

THOUSAND TICKETS

Reports from members showing that more than 1,000 tickets have been disposed of for the dance to be held at Columbia gardens tonight, under the auspices of the Street Car Men's Hospital association, indicates that the affair will eclipse any event of the kind held in Butte in recent years. Elaborate preparations have been made by the car men for the affair, which is thoroughly enjoyable and is anticipated by those intending to attend.

EASTERN WORKERS

GET BIG INCREASE

Boston, May 21.—Wage increases affecting upwards of 150,000 textile operatives in New England and other northern states were made public today. In most instances the advance was announced as approximately 15 per cent. Both cotton and woolen mills are affected. The raise, which will become effective June 2, will bring mill wages to the highest level on record and in some instances represents a total increase of more than 100 per cent since 1915.

NORTHWEST NEWS

(By United Press.)

Portland, Ore., May 21.—If temporary divorces of three or four months were granted, instead of permanent separations, there would be fewer real divorces, in the opinion of Judge George Rossman, who presides over the municipal court.

"When one sees so many divorces, and their by-product, juvenile delinquency, he begins to ask himself is there no remedy for this condition," said Judge Rossman.

"As a solution, I would like to make the two following suggestions, which I have put into effect in a few cases where the result has been worth while.

"The first is to grant temporary divorces for, say, three or four months, instead of permanent ones, where the offense upon which the case is based is not beyond pardon. In the meantime, the parties may get together again, or they may see that divorce is not a fine thing after all. The woman may not enjoy her alimony as much as she anticipated, and the husband may tire of the boarding place. Thus, a divorce may be eliminated.

"A divorce is more of a social domestic matter than a legal matter for the courts to handle. I believe that if there were about five common-sense people before whom men and women, who find problems arising in their households may lead to divorce, might go, some good might be accomplished.

Very frequently men and women come into my court and complain about the conduct of their husband or wife, as the case may be, want their spouse arrested, and contemplate a divorce. When one gets right down to the bottom of the difficulty, he frequently finds that a little common sense advice will solve the trouble.

"This is especially so when you can get both parties before you, and spend a little time upon the case, and show them what a divorce would mean to the children. I am inclined to believe it would be a fine thing if parties seeking divorce would be compelled to go before such a body as I suggest and see if the matter could not be adjusted without a divorce.

"Neither of my suggestions would eliminate all divorces, but I believe that a combination of both would prevent some of them."

Seattle, Wash., May 21.—George W. Brunz, world war veteran, and suffered all kinds of hardships and privations when he went through the battle of the Marne, and was severely wounded.

Brunz has had all he wants of war, but he says he'd again go through the Marne, Chateau Thierry and all the other battles in which he participated rather than live with his wife, so he has filed suit for divorce.

Victor Lacey's attempt to collect $42,000 in damages from Sheriff John K. O'Rourke on the grounds of false arrest and imprisonment during the miners' strike in 1917, met failure at the hands of the jury which heard the trial.

The case came up yesterday morning in Dwyer's court. The evidence was all in at adjournment last evening.

This morning the jury was instructed, arguments were made by Attorney Tyrand for Lacey and by Attorney Jackson for O'Rourke and Mike Horie. The case went to the jury at 2 o'clock and a unanimous decision in favor of the defendants was returned at 3 o'clock.
