

POLITICAL.

MR. CALHOUN'S SENTIMENTS.

If the producer in any case, none will doubt that the burden would mainly fall on the consumer...

The tendency of the tax, or duty, on the imported article is, not only to raise its price, but also, in the same proportion, that of the domestic article...

To those who grow them, the increased price of the article, and domestic articles both, in consequence of the duty on the former, is in reality...

To show how, on this supposition, the burden and advantages of the system would actually distribute themselves between the sections, would carry me too far into details...

But whether the opinion, of its unequal action, be correct, or erroneous, nothing can be more certain than that the impression is widely extending...

FOOT HILLS, July 26th, 1831.

From the New York Journal of Commerce. NOMINATION OF JOHN C. CALHOUN, for the office of Secretary of the Treasury...

It was further resolved, that we have contemplated with serious alarm, the recent efforts of the Executive to procure the passage of the 25th section of the Judiciary Act...

ry reduction will, in fact, operate as a bounty to every other branch, except the one reduced; and thus the effect of a general reduction will be to cheapen, universally, the price of production...

It was further resolved, that we consider the prosperity of Commerce, the improvement of Agriculture, the extension of the arts, and the general welfare, as inseparably blended in one common cause...

It was further resolved, that we duly appreciate the honorable and victorious achievements of the Hero of New Orleans, and sincerely hope that he may weather the present storm...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

FOOT HILLS, July 26th, 1831.

It was further resolved, that we have contemplated with serious alarm, the recent efforts of the Executive to procure the passage of the 25th section of the Judiciary Act...

It was further resolved, that we have contemplated with serious alarm, the recent efforts of the Executive to procure the passage of the 25th section of the Judiciary Act...

troil, essential to an intelligent understanding of State Rights and the prerogatives and powers of the Union.

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

FOOT HILLS, July 26th, 1831.

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

with me he had no ground to change. He had assumed none except that which I have stated; nor did I ever make use of such an expression to believe that the plan for Mr. Calhoun's destruction had been settled upon by those gentlemen, before General Jackson's inauguration...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

FOOT HILLS, July 26th, 1831.

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

I believe General Jackson to be honest, but he has been badly advised by Van Buren, Eaton, and Elly Lewis, I have no doubt, and notwithstanding I believe that the plan for Mr. Calhoun's destruction had been settled upon by those gentlemen, before General Jackson's inauguration...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

FOOT HILLS, July 26th, 1831.

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

THE University of Virginia. The next session will begin on the 10th of July following, and continue until the 20th of July following.

Board, including bed and other room furniture, washing and attendance, Fuel and candles, to be furnished by the Proctor, at cost, and five per cent commission, estimated at 20

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

FOOT HILLS, July 26th, 1831.

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...

Resolved, That the practice adopted by General Andrew Jackson, of removing from office, efficient and honorable men during the recess of the Senate, and filling the vacancies thus created, without the advice and consent of that body, is a dangerous exercise of the appointing power...