Memphis Theater. Taking into consideration the fact that here was a circus in town, and several minor entertainments, it was surprising to witness so good an attendance at the Memphis Theater last night, on the second appearance of Miss Mariau Mordaunt, and the repetition of Giver Taist. The piece was placed on the stage without due regard to scenic effects, and it took every effort of the "star" to give life or animation to the several scenes. When confronted with "Fagin" (Mr. Lang), "Syres" (Mr. Mordaunt), or "The Dodger" (Mr. Everett), everything appeared to pass off with spirit, and Miss Mordaunt showed she was an artiste of very superior ability. In the other scenes, however, everything seemed to be tame and commonplace, although Mr. Sutherland did his best with "Bumble," Miss Anderson with "Mrs. Corney," and Miss Ghiman with the character of "Oliver," there was an entire want of vim, and the several scenes fell flat. The slim attendance might have had a discouraging effect on the players, and it was only in the last act, on witnessing the death of "Nancy" (Miss Mordaunt), and the agonies of "Fagin" when condemned to the scaffold, that the audience was worked up to anything like a spirit of enthusiasm. To-night the popular comedy of Hearts are Trumps will be produced. There will be no matinee this afternoon. Taking into consideration the fact

The Circus. The Great Eastern circus entered this city yesterday with a grand procession, which attracted the attention of everyone. The entertainment, both in the afternoon and at night, was well patronized, and all who attended felt well repaid, and enjoyed the performance very much. In fact, this circus is one of the best that ever showed in Memphis, and it is natural that hundreds should flock to the tents of such an unexcelled exhibition as this proves to be. The jokes of the clown are fresh, original, and always apropos, convulsing every one with laughter. The trick-horses are unequalied and display wonderful training, which no one would imagine could be developed from the brute creation. The bareback riding of Professor Carroli and his little boy interests and receives the greatest appiause. The feats of the gymnasts and acrobats have never been surpassed, and this feature alone of the performance is worth the price of admission to the entertainment. In addition to the circus entertainment, there The Great Eastern circus entered this

In middition to the circus entertainment, there is also a grand meangerie comprising elephants, eiks, monkeys, hous, tigers, zebras and other wild beasts. This part of the show can be seen without entering the circus preper, and will prove interesting and instructive to the old as well as to the young. This afternoon and to-night will be the last performances by the Great Eastern circus, and we advise all to attend if they wish to be entertained in a most delightful manner. The generous kindness of the proprietor of the Great Eastern circus is shown from the following communication: owing communication: Manners, February 3, 1874. teverand Father Kelly, St. Peter's Church, Adam's street. The charter of this company is quite comprehensive, and designed to put the valley of the Mississippi in telegraphic communication with the world. It is a great enterprise, and meets the necessities of the valerprise, and meets the necessities of the val-ey. There is but one improvement that can compete with it in the development and ap-preciation of the rich valley lands—that is, a river railway; and we doubt whether even this last facility will equal the advantages of telegraph communication. Colonel Coleman is a telegraph expert, and whatever assur-ance he gives can be implicitly reited on by the people of the valley.

Destruction by Fire of the Shops of the Louisville, Nashville and Great Southern Bailroad.

Fireman McCarthy the Alleged Incendlary-His Attempt to Murder Watchman Roach.

INCENDIARISM.

Loss Estimated at One Hundred and Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars-Facts and Particulars.

Early last evening there was a destructive fire at the shops of the Louisville and Nashville and Great Southern railroad, involving a total loss of over one hundred thousand dollars.

is not exactly known, though there are divers rumors concerning it. The first evidence of the fire was seen in the master-mechanic's office, from the windows of which the fiames were bursting forth, when the alarm was given. The fire department responded promptly, but ewing to the inaccessibility of the locality and the scarcity of water, it was a long time before the engines could get to work. By this time the fire had made full headway, and soon the immense buildings, including the engine-shed, machine-shop, carpenter's shop, water-tank, etc., with five locomotives, eight tenders and five cars were enveloped in fames. Master-Mechanic Thomas Walsh and Superintendent Flynn, repaired immediately to the spot, but their efforts proved of no avail in suppressing the fire, which soon enveloped the entire building, locomotives and cars for a distance of two hundred yards, in fames.

THE SCENE OF CONFLAGRATION THE ORIGIN OF THE FIRE

THE SCENE OF CONFLAGRATION attracted hundreds of persons, and there was no little excitement as to the origin and ex-tent of the fire. The crowd was spread along the track for some distance and every spectator had something to say concerning the fire, but not one could tell how it happened. An investigation shows that is quite heavy. The caboose used for a paintshop, with all of its material, as well as the machine shop, a building three hundred feet long and seventy-five feet wide, and which was valued, with its contents, at $18,000, were destroyed soon after the fire commenced.

This building was fully equipped with firstclass machinery, and nothing whatever was saved, the flames spreading with such rapidity as to prevent any removal of the contents.
The engine-shed and carpenter's shop (valued at $2500) and patent-shop (valued at $5000), with their entire contents, were also lost. The engines commenced playing on the fire in time to save the blacksmith shop, which was in imminent danger of being destroyed from the water-tank, that was in flames. This tank, having a capacity for holding two thousand gallons, was entirely consumed—the great iron bands becoming redhot from the heat.
Owing to the fact that a portion of the shed was torn down, the flames were prevented from communicating with the blacksmithshop just across the railroad track.

THE LOCOMOTIVES AND CARS DE-THE LOSS THE LOCOMOTIVES AND CARS DESTROYED

were on the side-track and in the engineshed, and owing to the fact that the fire commenced in the master-mechanic's office, at the lower end of the switch, they could not be removed. The flames spread with great rapidity, and seiz'd upon the engine-shed. No locomotive was present to haul away the rolling stock, and the fire was, therefore, allowed to pursue its course. Seven box-cars, each valued at seven thousand dollars, were burned, besides three freight-engines, Nos.
25t, 21t, and 27t, and two passenger-engines,
Nos. 25t and 25t, each being valued at fifteen thousand dollars. Engine No. 25t had jusbeen repaired, and was out of the shop only a few days ago. In addition to the above, several hand-cars, three tenders not connected with engines, but which were in the shop undergoing repairs, were destroyed. This makes eight engines, but which were in the shop undergo-ing repairs, were destroyed. This makes eight tenders in all that were destroyed. There was no insurance on any of the engines, ears, buildings, or material, and the entire loss is not far short of one hundred and thirty-eight

Full of Mistakes and Errors, and Utterly Unreliable and Untrustworthy-Warning to Our Citizens.

EDITORS APPEAL—A copy of Edwards's so-called directory for 1874 accidentally fell under my eye to day, and I regret to say into it fails far short of reasonable expectation. It should be called Edwards's indirectory, or else dated two years back. No one acquainted well in the city can be deceived into the belief that this work is anything more than a slightly corrected edition of Edwards's Directory for 1873. It is not correct even up to the yellow-fever or cholera period. Hundreds of changes which occurred six months ago are not noticed. I have no interest in this matter, except as a citizen who cannot will ness such a deception without indignation. Those who feel like giving five dollars for a new directory, which is the old one in a new cover and title-page, with a few statistics added from the census report, are twelcome to it. I would not give a dollar for this work, especially if I had an old one. And, to show that I am justifiable in this criticism, I call attention to the following glaring inaccuracies: Rogers, Dandredge & Co., Wheaton & Co., Ben. Debar, business manager operahouse; L. W. Blakeman, 177 Union street; George Shields & Co., Greenlaw & Amonett, R. W. Lightburn, wharfmaster; James W. Rogan, Estes, Fizer & Pinson, Frank Taft, cierk first circuit court; Kemphis Gayoso gas company, Memphis life and general insurance company. Respectfully, Z. ANOTHER COMPLAINT.

EDITORS APPEAL—I am a subscriber for Edwards's directory, and therefore have a right to criticise it. I find it defective in every particular, evidently a reprint of last year's book by the same gentleman. To prove this 1 offer the following as convincing evidence, giving the names as i find them, with proper corrections: H. D. Connell, died of yellow-fever, but still in busines; J. F. Titus & Co., not in business since early last summer; Lew Wexler, died last summer; Gayoso gas company, sold out early last summer; H. E. Hudson, died early last spring of cholera; Great Western Dispatch—Enoch Taylor, not a resident of the city for some months; J. Lawton, published as agent, has been dead nearly a year; J. C. Mason, published as agent Shore line, has not been agent for over a year; Real Educe Budlesia, John C. Lanier, proprietor, ceased to be published nearly two years since; Colonel James Coleman, of the Western Union telegraph company, has not been its superintelegraph company, has not been its superintendent for nearly a year; Merchants insurance company—E. McDavitt, president, Robert A. Parker, secretary—has been out of existence over a year; Memphis life and general insurance company talled last fall; M. E. At five dollars per copy we cannot conscientiously recommend the recent edition to those who have the eld one. The changes made are not up to the times, and not worth five dollars. It is asserted that no canvass has been made for this publication since the fall of 1872. Be this ing repairs, were destroyed. There make eight tenders in all that were destroyed. There was no insurance on any of the engines, ears, not far short of one hundred and thirty-eight thousand dollars. It was reported that another locomotive, the number of which is unknown, was also burned. Almong those destroyed were the F. S. Corsett, Beckett, and D. B. Mailoy. Engine No. 287 was not entirely damage. So far as we have been able to learn there can be no doubt but that the fire was the WORK OF AN INCENDIARY, who selzed upon the favorable opportunity for firing the master-mechanic's office. A watchman is always kept in the yard, and so far has proven quite efficient in the discharge of his duites by keeping a strict surveilance over the property of the railroad company. This watchman is not be polled force two years ago. It is reported that a fireman named McCarthy set fire to the master-mechanic's office, and was discovered in the act of placing fuel, in the shape of old boots, etc., to the stove, from which the first shorts. The intended and then fired the shots. Mr. ACARTHY in the right shoulder, producing a serious though perhaps not a fault wound. The two men then clinched, and after a rough hand to hand fight, Roach stared to take his prisoner to the stationhouse. EFFECT OF THE FIRE.

The effect of the fire will be sorely felt by a large number of mechanics who depend upon their daily labor for a living. They will be thrown out of employment for a short while, but, we understand, the company will at once; proceed to rebuild the ruined works. Arrangements will be made immediately by which to replace the locomotives, so as not to occasion any delay to the ruining of the regular trains. The master-mechanic, Thomas Waish, recently came here from Louisville, where he was engaged by this company in the superintendence of their workshops. He advised the company a few days ago to tear down the old buildings and replace them with new ones. The loss from the buildings will not prove very great, as they were old and not of much value.

EDITORS APPEAL—I am not a subscriber to Edwards's directory for 1874, and feel that I have no right to criticise it; but having seen one to-day, and heard so much complaint about it, and one of the charges against the work being that it is a copy of Edwards's directory for 1873, I only wish to correct this impression. The book is, barring the few incidents given of the yellow-fever visitation and some of the changes in the municipal offices, and probably a few other things, almost a fac simile copy of one issued by Boyle & Chapman in 1875—I mean the contents; the material does not begin to compare with that of the Boyle & Chapman directory, nor of the previous editions of Mr. Edwards.

BAPTIST UNIVERSITY.

Outlines of the Plans of the Committee Approved by the General Association of Middle Tennessee and North Alabama.

At the last meeting of the general association of Middle Tennessee and North Alabama, says the Nashville Banner, resolutions were passed in favor of establishing a central university for the Baptists of the southwest. Similar resolutions were adopted by the West Tennessee Baptist convention, at its recent meeting in Brownsville. A few days since the board of trustees of Union university adopted resolutions inviting the trustees of Georgetown, Bethel, and Mossy Creek colleges, "to consider the question of the establishment of such a university, and if it meets their approval to unite with us in the consummation of the proposed undertaking." A committee appointed by the above named bodies, to communicate their action to the Baptist colleges of Tennessee and Kentucky, and to unfold to them the plan of union, have recently presented, through the various Baptist denominational mediums, and ally prepared paper, setting forth the argument to the surface of the asignification of such At the last meeting of the general THE PLAN OF UNION.

THE PLAN OF UNION.

The following extracts from the paper pared by the committee contain the gener features of this new educational effort: "College can successfully compete with o State universities, agricultural colleges public high schools, without being descendent in a great degree tuition fees, as a means of sustaining faculty; and no college can be independent in the fees without a large endowment. The day has forever passed in which a college companies of apparatus, and then employing faculty, leaving them dependent on tuiting the effect of apparatus, and then employing faculty, leaving them dependent on tuiting the same and the parent of a summary of a summary of the series of a paratus, and then employing faculty is a means of securing their salaries. The great educational lesson of the age is that university can exist without large endowment. As illustrations, the committee cite is recent additional endowment to Richmon college of three hundred thousand dollars, which they propose to double subscriptions from the people. The presbyterians, at a recent mession the general assembly of Kentucky, to the preliminary steps toward the establisment of a similar university. Action looks to the preliminary steps toward the establisment of a similar university. Action looks to the presbyterians of Tennessee and Mississip in their synods and other ecclesiastical meetings. Let

THE BAPTISTS OF THE SOUTHWEST learn from their brethren of Virginia, what other denominations have learned, that a other denominations have learned, that a university must in present times possess un emple enchument. The report of the committee concludes as follows: "It may be that some of the Baptist colleges now in operation within the bounds of the southwestern States, will not immediately consent to a removal of any large amount of their funds, in order to contribute to the establishment and endowment of the proposed university; but if it was so organized as to comprehend these colleges as part of itself, and to make them an integral part of its own organization, we believe that, seeof itself, and to make them an integral if its own organization, we believe that, a ring the advantages to be derived therefor they would come into the organization. It he result would be that we should hose central university, with one or more leges in each of the States, which we be co-ordinate with respect to each of but subordinate with respect to the university all united under a general organization. sty-all united under a general organization so as to form one great university, compre-hending many colleges, which is, in fact, the true idea of a university, as we derive that bern from the universities of England and of continental Europe. LOCATION Such is the title of a work kindly sent to this office by the publishers, who half from Chicago. It purports to be complete to date, and if no other directory had ever been published for Memphis it would have more merit. Unfortunately, the issue before us is too nearly a copy of the directory issued for a former year. The title page is new, and some few facts compiled from the census of 1870. Also, the names of aldermen and councilment. is necessary to be done in order to establish it. To consummate the union of the Baptists of the southwest in the establishment of the Central university, the general association of Middle Tennessee and North Alabama has indicated Murfreesboro as ciation of Middle Tennessee and North Alabama has indicated Murfreesboro as the place, and the tenth day of April next as the time of holding a convention for the purpose of discussing and determining the whole question, and has appointed delegates to that convention. West Tennessee Baptist convention has also appointed a delegation. Bethel, Georgetown, and Mossy Creek colleges have been invited to send delegates, and the undersigned respectfully express their personal desire that large delegations may be sent to the proposed conveation, so that there may be a full expression of the views and feeling and the denomination, in reference to the enterprise pre-eminently worthy their favorable consideration and regard.
