Another Account. New York, March 24.—Dispatches from Nice say: The holocaust at the operahouse last evening was caused by a gas explosion at the back of the stage, which set fire to the scenery. The flames spread with alarming rapidity and soon enveloped the gas meter, and the supply of gas being cut off the body to extricate the people were hopelessly The scene was terrible. The shricks of the wounded, mingled with the cries of those in he galleries, whose every means of escape was cut off, was heartrending.

Up to midnight one hundred and fifty man who escaped from the upper gallery by jumping declares that with perhaps a dozen exceptions every person in his part of the house was burned. Some sailers were lost. A number of American and English visitors rendered great assistance in the saving of lives. The scene in town is indescribable. One lady, whose husband was burned to death, committed suicide. The usual com-plaints are made respecting defective means of escape and water supply. Although the Mediterranean washes the shore at the foot of the walls of the theater no water could be obtained when wanted, and the beautifu operahouse is a complete wreck.

Signor Ardeti, Signor Menti and Mme. Gerster's husband at the rehearsal to-day at the Academy of Music, in this city, were much depressed by the news of the terrible calamity at Nice. Donadio sang in New York with Albani some years ago. The tenor was known to be Devilliers, a Frenchman thirty-five years of age, and not remarkable for any excellence on the lyric stage. When I left in January the principal features of the landscape were the new Grand Central depot, the Mexican Central railroad, and the telegraph poles which were springing up as if by magic, indicating the rapid changes taking place there. Every facility and encouragement for American enterprise is afforded by the government officials, and

I was very much surprised to find that young men of the best families in Mexico— all of them wealthy—were willing to forego club life, pigeon shooting and polo playing, and take subordinate positions as accountants and draughtsmen in American railroad offices, simply to learn and to identify them-selves with the progress of New Mexico. Mexicans do not feel at all uneasy regarding the possible annexation of that territory. Annexation would bring untold troubles catholic population of this country would produce those political and religious effects desirable to avoid. The officials in Mexico with whom I came in contact are equal in intelligence, manners and education to our authorities in Washington.
