OUR ANNUAL STATEMENT.

Of the commerce and trade of Memphis, to be published on September 1st, will contain many facts that will be pleasing to the friends of this city. It will show that our merchants have done a large business, that several important permanent improvements are going on, that railroad and steamboat facilities are being increased, and that next winter Memphis will be in a better condition as a wholesale market than ever before. Copies of that edition should be distributed all over the country tributary to Memphis, and every business house in the city ought to be represented in its advertising or local columns.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

—The police docket yesterday was very small.

—Yesterday was a hot day, with chances of rain.

—Several motions were made in 'Squire Coleman's court yesterday.

—The population of Little Rock is, by the census-takers' books, 15,588.

—Yesterday looked something like the beginning of another warm spell.

—There will be a meeting of the Legislative Council at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

—Marriage license was issued to Joe Watkins and Nancy Brown, colored, yesterday.

—There was a good deal of heat-lightning flashing around the heavens last night.

—The will of Agnes B. Fleece was probated yesterday. She leaves all her estate to her husband.

—A Signal Service man is needed here for the public to vent its wrath upon, when the weather is bad.

—Collections are looking up. On State and county taxes the receipts yesterday were $1821; licenses, $60.

—It rained everywhere almost yesterday but in Memphis. This city only succeeded in getting a few clouds.

—Mr. M. F. Hampton was appointed yesterday administrator, with the will annexed, of the estate of Melissa Hampton.

—The Fort Smith Rifle Club desire to contest with one of the Memphis clubs in the fall. Memphis will beat them with pleasure. Come on.

—The Young Ladies' Journal, Revue de la Mode and Leslie's Ladies' Magazine, all for September, just received at Mansford's, No. 298 Main street.

—Bells were attached to the animals in front of each street car yesterday. This is the revival of an old feature, and the streets are now enlivened with a general tink-a-dink-a-ding-dong.

—An election of a magistrate in the Tenth Civil District will take place on the 30th of this month to fill the vacancy caused by the death of J. H. Abington, who was run over on the Memphis and Charleston road.

—The real estate speculators should make a note of the fact that the regular weekly chancery sales will take place at the courthouse to-day. A piece of ground corner of Main and Broadway and some land in the country are on the list.

—The "living skeleton," Mose Myers, who was mentioned in yesterday's issue of the APPEAL, died yesterday morning at half-past 11 o'clock. 'Squire Spelman held the inquest over him, and the jury returned a verdict of death from typho-malarial fever.

—At the Register's office inquiries have been made for the lease of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad to the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad company. It does not seem to be recorded here, and many persons would like to know why.

—Business houses will please give orders as early as possible for space in our mammoth edition of September 1st. Orders for extra copies of that edition should be sent in a few days ahead of day of publication, otherwise we may not be able to fill them.

—Manager Al Beer notified the Nashville nine of their date with the Memphis Reds to-morrow, but got no satisfaction, his letter having not even been answered. A game has accordingly been arranged between the Reds and the Eckfords, and will take place at the usual time to-morrow.

—The County Court is soon to be petitioned to order a survey of several of the prominent dirt-roads leading into our city, for the purpose of ascertaining the actual cost of macadamizing the same into the country a distance of five miles or more from the city. At the same time the member of Congress from this district might induce the National Government to macadamize from the end of the Poplar street boulevard to the National Cemetery. The Government would only have to duplicate orders given to Vicksburg, Mississippi.

THE PLANET MARS

Stands Over 'Squire Coleman's Office Directing a First-Class Free Fight Efficiently.

A Dispute Between Two Parties Adjudicated With a Chair and a Fist-Fight.

Memphis can boast of a good many things, but it is not often that she can boast of a fight between well-known men in a court of justice. Yesterday nearly the whole town was a tip-toe with curiosity concerning an encounter between Chief McFadden, of the Fire Department, and William B. Mattox, Superintendent of Construction of the Memphis Telephone Exchange. For some time past, it is said, these two gentlemen have not been on the friendliest terms. Both of them are men of courage, and seldom forget those whom they think have injured them. The affray which occurred yesterday was unfortunate in many respects, concerning, as it does, two men in public positions. However unfortunate it may be, it is necessary for the recording angel of the APPEAL to put it all down, and so he invokes the ethereal muse to tell the woes of McFadden and Mattox.

About 8 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the house of J. R. Garvin, colored, at 18 Avery street. Chief McFadden, as was his custom, rode hurriedly to the scene of the conflagration, and as he did so he came pretty near running over Mr. Mattox, who was viewing the fire with a spectator's casual eye. Now Chief McFadden was probably not thinking of Mr. Mattox, but was only actuated by a keen desire to get to the fire and superintend his men. Mr. Mattox, however, thought otherwise. He considered that the Chief was actuated by a spirit of taunting nonchalance and intended provoking him. The result of it all was that Mattox was provoked, and put his hand behind him as if he had a pistol and wanted to shoot the chief. The latter regarded it as a threat, and, meeting Captain O'Haver, asked him to search Mattox. No pistol was found.

"You tried to run over me," insisted Mattox.

At this point it is said the Chief told Mr. Mattox that he was a "s—— of a b——."

At this Mattox asked Captain O'Haver to arrest the Chief.

"On what ground?" said the Captain.

"He has made an assault upon me."

The Captain could not see that this constituted an assault, and he refused to arrest McFadden then, telling Mattox that it was necessary that he should attend to the fire, and he did not want to interfere with him while in the discharge of his duty. If he wanted to arrest him in the morning it would not be difficult to find the Chief. Mattox persisted so that after the fire Captain O'Haver arrested the Chief and had him charged on the docket with abusive language. Shortly afterward Mr. Mattox came to the station-house and told Captain O'Haver to dismiss the charge, as he had a State's warrant in 'Squire Coleman's office. The charge was accordingly rubbed out.

The scene shifts now, and the second act of the tragedy is laid in Justice Coleman's office, 294 Main street. 'Squire Coleman, metaphorically putting on the judicial ermine, took a seat and rapped the court to order. A large number of spectators were present, including Captain O'Haver and several firemen. The charge against the Chief was assault. Silence was effected, and Mr. Mattox went on with his statement to show wherein the Chief had been guilty of assault. He described the scene at the fire. Chief McFadden interrupted him, and asked him if he had not put his hand in his hip pocket, as if on the point of drawing a pistol.

"I did put my hand there," said Mattox; "but I had no pistol. I did it to bluff you, and I can bluff you again." He then went on to state that McFadden had called him a s—n of a b—h. The Chief here interrupted him. The exact language he used is in uncertainty. Some of those present say he exclaimed "you are one." Others declare that he asked the question, "did you say I called you one." Whether he said one or the other did not impair the result. Mattox, who is quick to resent an insult and very capable of taking care of himself, thought he made a positive assertion, and, right in the midst of the small temple of justice, he seized a chair and rung it down on the Chief's head. The confusion resulting was wonderful to see. The court-room was turned into Pandemonium, Jr. There seemed to be a general writhing and heaving of humanity, and the spectator gained the idea that a small riot was breaking loose.

Captain O'Haver ran in with several others and separated the two chief belligerents, who were getting ready for a renewal of the fray. Several parties were the recipients of blows. At this juncture Captain O'Haver felt some one hustling by him and saw him rush up to Mattox and hit him three times. It proved to be J. Donohue, the efficient fireman of No. 2, who had sailed into the afray to help the falling Chief. There was a lively struggle to preserve order, which almost resulted in a free fight. The belligerents were finally separated and a fine of twenty-five dollars was imposed upon Mattox, and a fine of ten dollars upon Donohue. The clans Mattox, McFadden and Donohue then withdrew, and peace smiled again upon the embattled scene.

THE FLORIDA FEVER.

The New Eldorado Where People Expect to Make Fortunes.

Just at present Florida is the Eldorado where men expect to make handsome fortunes. The orange fever is just as strong as the gold itch, and fortunately it is a little more substantial. People are always glad to hear anything from the land where fortunes are made in the orange groves. There are those who contend that it is a craze and has nothing in it to justify the enthusiasm expended on it; but every year the number of enthusiasts increases, and so does the number of Florida land investors.

Yesterday afternoon an APPEAL reporter chanced upon Mr. William S. Moore, of Bradenstown, Tennessee, who has just returned from a two months visit to Florida, where he has made investments. Like all of those who have visited the enchanted land, Mr. Moore is enthusiastic. To the queries of the reporter he very cheerfully responded.

"I went to Florida," said Mr. Moore, "to look around. I chose this time of the year so that I might see the country in its worst light, and might not get any exaggerated notions of it. When I got there I put myself under the guidance of Dr. Hill, a brother of Senator Hill, who knew all the 'ropes,' and who drove me around in his buggy. I got the pick of any kind of land. You can get anything you want there."

"Have you seen anybody there who was dissatisfied with his bargain?"

"I never saw anybody in Florida who complained of his plantation. I saw an acre and a half of ground covered with orange trees which were not yielding fruit, which sold for $7000. The beauty about an orange plantation is that the longer it stands the more valuable it becomes. The first year a tree which has taken growth is worth a dollar. Each year adds a dollar to it. The second year it is worth two dollars, the third three, etc. An acre of yielding orange trees is worth $10,000, and you can make the trees yield every month if you are so inclined. I think I took the changing step in my fortune when I went to Florida.

"It must have been pretty warm there?"

"No, you are mistaken; it was not as warm there as in Tennessee. A splendid, refreshing breeze comes from the ocean and keeps the temperature lower than it is here. I would rather spend the summer there than in Tennessee. The prettiest and at the same time the poorest county in the State is Orange. There are any number of beautiful lakes in it, clear as crystal. The upper counties, where oranges are not raised, are high but flat, and the rain-water accumulates on them. To make them suitable for orange growing they would have to be drained. The facilities for shipping are being increased every year, and by the time a man's trees yield, say five years, the State will be covered with railways."

PORTER GUARDS.

Organization of the New Company, Saving the Election of Officers.

The differences existing in the Bluff City Grays, Porter Zouaves and Captain Waldran's company are in a fair way now to be permanently healed. It will be remembered that some time since five men were chosen from each company to select from them all eighty-two men to constitute a new company, to be called the Porter Guards. As long as dissensions were in vogue the effectiveness of the companies was impaired. Each company was pledged to stand by the action of its committee of five and the joint action of the committee of fifteen. Last night the committee met. Dr. Rogers was called to the chair, and Sergeant Wildberger was appointed secretary. The eighty-two men were then chosen, and it is said they form an excellent company, into which it will be hard for dissension to creep. Next Friday the officers will be elected. They are pretty well decided upon now. Messrs. Waldran, Wildberger and W. H. Pullen were appointed a committee to draft the constitution and by-laws of the new organization. There can be no reasonable or allowable ground for opposition, and a bright career is probably in store for the newly organized company.

FIRE YESTERDAY.

A Defective Flue Plays Havoc with a House on Avery Street.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock yesterday morning an alarm of fire sounded from the neighborhood of Vance and Avery streets. The engines arrived promptly on the scene and found that the fire was in the two-story frame house of J. R. Garvin, colored, on Avery street, below Vance. There were sufficient goods in the house to make the building and contents worth four or five thousand dollars. The flames were almost confined to the upper story, which was pretty badly damaged. The lower story was somewhat injured by water. It is estimated that the loss is about $1000, which is covered by a policy in the Hirsch Insurance company of London. The fire first appeared near the chimney, under the roof, and a defective flue is thought to have been the cause of it. There is no evidence of an incendiary. The flames were quickly subdued by the fire department, and the loss was kept down by their well-directed efforts.

MARION, ARK.

Only Half a Crop of Cotton—Movement to Stop the Sale of Liquor.

MARION, CRITTENDEN CO., ARK., August 16, 1881.

Editors of the Memphis Appeal:

The farmers are very much discouraged on account of the recent drought. The majority of the people think there will not be half a crop made in cotton. The corn in this part of the country is an entire failure; that which was planted early is pretty fair, but late corn is gone. I have been over here three weeks, and the citizens say they have had no rain of any consequence since June.

There is a movement on foot at Marion to stop the sale of liquor. There is considerable excitement about it. The petition is headed by some of the leading citizens of Marion, and is being signed by a number of citizens, both white and colored. The dealers have resolved to resist the petition, and think they will gain. They style themselves the "Remonstrance Gang." The anti-whisky men say they will make it hot for them. The "Remonstrance Gang" have secured the services of Colonel O. P. Lyles, of Memphis, to defend them, while the "A. W. Gang" have Hon. R. F. Crittenden, of Marion, he being the framer of the law which they will enforce. The law says that no liquor shall be sold within three miles of any church, public institution or academy, etc. The colored brethren are wondering where their winter drinks are to come from now.

The severe drought is killing the timber in the woods, and seems to be very hard on timber off the ridges in the bottoms. The cattle are suffering a great deal for water to drink, and some farmers have to drive their stock several miles to water. No more to write at present. VISITOR.

DETROIT SAFE CO.

A Sure Protection from Fire—Safety, Utility and Beauty Combined.

THE DOOR-FRAME AND JAMBS OF THE Safe are made of MALLEABLE ROLLED STEEL, with six flanges or rebates, on which the company holds a patent, the advantages of which are these:

It is much thinner and stronger in proportion to thickness than cast-iron, and [illegible] power to conduct heat through the joint between door and jambs is much less than with cast-iron.

A much closer joint can be obtained through [illegible] flanges than with cast-iron.

The Bolt-work is all placed in the inner flanges [illegible] The filling between [illegible] which no amount of heat can exhaust.

The corners of the Safe are not mounted and [illegible] by Bent Plate, thereby affording greater strength to resist the concussion which a heavy fall or falling timbers might give it.

Before purchasing elsewhere call at the Agency, 211 Main St, Memphis, and examine Safes.
