

WOMAN IN HER WORK AND LEISURE-CLUB NEWS AND PRACTICAL ARTICLES

THE TACTLESS FRIEND By ELLEN ADAIR

Unfortunate Remarks

The woman who intends to have any sort of success in this world must be tactful. If she isn't naturally tactful, then the sooner she learns so to be, the better for herself.

In the small circle in which she lives and moves and has her being she is only tolerated—not really liked. She wonders why?

"I'm sure I'm as good-natured as possible," she will exclaim in a burst of confidence, to some friend. "But all the same, the other girls don't seem to like me at all."

And she is perfectly right. For how could Mary Brown enjoy herself when most of the time she was the unwilling victim of tactless remarks and tactless conduct?

"Dear," she says. "You know we are here. The tactless one looks incredulous, and makes some even more pitying remark, which is none the less galling for the fact that it is meant very kindly."

"After dinner she rushes up to her dear friend Mary. "I don't you stand another dinner partner for you?" she exclaims virtuously.

"What a charming girl Miss Brown is," remarks a genial old man. "It is a pleasure for me to talk with her. She is a wonderful conversationalist for one so young."

Later on, when Jim Smith became engaged to Mary Brown, the tactless friend was quite surprised that the happy couple didn't come to see her often. "It is extraordinary," she would exclaim in a melancholy tone to her small circle of friends.

"But I don't think it awful, I enjoy it," says the unfortunate visitor, plucking up sufficient spirit for the vindication of her chosen profession.

A SPRING HAT OF LEGHORN AND CHIFFON

THE DAILY STORY

BORDMAN PROPOSES

Although Bordman Sylvester had a great deal of imagination for an Englishman—and although he had listened to Margaret talk about college things by the hour on board the boat that brought her back from England to her senior year at Dover College and brought him on a week's visit to the States, and although his extensive roamings had taught him preparedness for anything, still his first half hour of Dover College fairly took his breath away.

"We are official guides," they seemed to say in chorus. "We will show you the campus, the lake, the rambles, the college buildings, the chapel, and indicate all the points of interest—all for a dollar. We are raising the money for the college athletic association."

Bordman fumbled in his pocket for a dollar and consented to be guided. "I want most of all to be shown to the dormitories," he said with an accent that seemed to delight his guides. He felt that they were casting approving glances over his head.

The guides smiled and led him through the campus entrance, walking faster and faster as they proceeded, one taking up the thread of the conversation while the other left off. Bordman laughed and talked pleasantly with them, and when they passed a group of 20 girls, clad in sweaters and bloomers—A group of undergraduates," as the guides explained, "returning from basketball practice."

"I don't know how fond I am of you," he began. "I have told you—"

Just then there was an ear-splitting sound of a song throughout the building. Margaret ran from the room, with Bordman following after. She had the best of the last part of the last and Bordman had mustered up courage to interrupt her before she began on any other explanations.

Interesting Doings

The Twentieth Century Club, of Lansdowne, will have a social afternoon today. The evening will be devoted to current events, and Warwick James Price will speak on "Poland."

Bordman waited half an hour and then Margaret returned to say that it was dinner hour and that as it was against the rules of the dormitory to be late to dinner she would have to leave him. He suggested that she come with him to his hotel for dinner, but when Margaret explained that this could be done only with the intrusion of a woman's instructor as chaperon, Bordman did not urge her.

"After dinner he reached Margaret on the telephone. "When may I see you?" he asked. "I have to leave here tomorrow morning at 6 and may be months before I can make another trip to the States."

Margaret considered. "I have a play rehearsal for the senior frolic" tonight at 7:30, that will last till 9. The lights are out in the reception hall at 9:20. I can see you for a half hour then."

Bordman arrived at five minutes before the appointed hour and Margaret arrived 10 minutes late, hot and excited from her rehearsal. First of all, she had to explain what a senior frolic was and then she had to tell Bordman the details of the play.

"I don't know how fond I am of you," he began. "I have told you—"

A SMART GIRL'S DIARY

More Spring Millinery

It is perfectly true that I am crazy about hats. I never do seem to have enough of them! And the more I get the more I want.

"Really, Dorothy," said mamma today, "you have quite enough hats to start with. Well-stocked milliner's shop with"

"But hats are the most important part of one's outfit," I said. "And when I see a particularly pretty one I just long to get it."

"Well, then," said mamma, in her kind, indulgent way, "since your birthday is tomorrow you can have another hat, and we'll go out together this very afternoon and choose it. You have the benefit of my advice on the subject."

Naturally I was perfectly delighted. I had had my eye on a very smart cerise confection for some time.

So, at 2 o'clock precisely, mamma and I set off for a shopping bout. We headed straight for the store where I had beheld the cerise chapau in all its glory.

"Why, that is perfectly hideous!" exclaimed mamma the moment she caught sight of it. "You don't really want to buy that, do you, Dorothy? It is vulgar in the extreme!"

However, I insisted that we go in and that I try it on. Certainly it was very smart, but at the same time not exactly becoming!

"Let's go somewhere else," I said, so mamma breathed a pleased sigh and we set off for another store.

Hats are gloriously pretty just how we do like the new shades. There is such a wide range and variety in them. I understand that they will be more popular this year than the smaller models, although the smart woman can wear either small or large and still be quite in fashion.

The new style of hat with its wide brim holding pressed flowers between layers of chiffon is very dainty. I'm afraid it would not stand rain or weather very well, however. And so resisted the temptation.

The new shade of seagull gray is very pretty. Mamma bought her a very smart little shape in that color, trimmed with gray quills and a gay little millinery caubouchon in Belgian colors, which gave a bright note to the whole.

The hat I finally selected is charming. It is a large, flat shape, shown by the Lit store. The crown is of leghorn, with a wreath of pale yellow around it, and the brim of palest yellow chiffon, the edge being of leghorn faced with black underneath. I like the transparent brim very much, and altogether am delighted with the hat. It is certainly a very nice birthday present, as I had mamma when I thanked her for it.

PRIZE SUGGESTIONS

PRIZES OFFERED DAILY

For the following suggestions sent in by readers of the EVENING LEDGER prizes of $1 and $50 cents are awarded daily.

A prize of $1 has been awarded to F. M. P., 61th and City Line Aves., Overbrook, Pa., for the following suggestion:

When making blouses, if you sew the hooks and eyes on a piece of tape instead of on the blouse itself, you will save trouble when you go to launder the blouse. You can remove the tape with the hooks and eyes on it, and they will never rust on your material.

A prize of 50 cents has been awarded to Agnes M. Bilyeu, 702 South 51st Street, West Philadelphia, for the following suggestion:

An economical way to keep white woodwork clean and also to preserve its original lustre is to wipe it with suds made from bran. Bran may be bought at any feed store for a trifling sum, and should be boiled until it is very soft, and then strained. A large quantity can be made at once, as it will keep indefinitely if you bottle it.

A prize of 50 cents has been awarded to P. K. 3021 North 12th Street, Philadelphia, for the following suggestion:

A reliable cure for a very bad cold, or one which is just coming on, is the following: Mix a teaspoonful of ground ginger in a glass of water and take this before retiring. As this has a tendency to heat up the patient, it would be better to take this as you get into bed.

A prize of 50 cents has been awarded to Mrs. J. J. Lightfoot, Jr., 1324 South 53d Street, Philadelphia, for the following suggestion:

To have an odorless garbage pail I have the garbage drained and securely wrapped in newspapers, which not only keeps the pail odorless, but prevents freezing during the winter.

Every guest chamber should have its bedside set of tiny pitcher and drinking glass, perfectly covered, and candlestick and match box.

Green sweet potatoes before they are put into the oven to bake; they will bake in half the time and the skins will be soft.

THE CHAFING DISH PARTY

So many girls are giving chafing-dish parties nowadays that you will find yourself quite out of fashion if you don't know one. A girl who wouldn't ordinarily learn to cook would almost be willing to learn if she had a chafing dish to practice on.

Many useful animals can be had in a very little. A large tray to hold the dishes, a cooling apparatus, and the food as well as the chafing dish, and all the good things.

These, by the way, are not in the set. The alcohol dishes are very nice and safe, especially if you use the solidified alcohol in place of the liquid. The electric dishes are higher in price, but your house has electric connections if you pay you in the long run.

ERIN'S GREEN COLOR NOTE FOR ST. PATRICK'S MENU

Harp and Shamrock Motif for Decorations—Green Mayonnaise a Quaint Culinary Conceit Among Novel Recipes for Paddy's Day Parties.

"St. Patrick's Day Salad." "Emerald Isle Gelatine" and a number of other recipes are contained in a menu for St. Patrick's Day. Greens and potatoes figure prominently on the bills. The three meals, following an ingenious arrangement of foods, will go about like this:

- BREAKFAST: Baked Apples with Green Sauce and Cream. Steamed Cornmeal with Raisins. Poached Eggs on Toast.

- LUNCHEON: "Erin-go-Bragh" Bouillon. Thin sliced Breast of Veal and Cream. Irish Potato Croquettes with Shamrock Shamrock Sandwiches. Emerald Isle Gelatine with Whipped Cream and Pistachio Nuts. Cocoa or Tea.

- DINNER: Little Neck Clams. Emerald Isle Soup. Belfast Broiled Steak and Mushrooms. Limerick Stuffed Murphys. Spring Beans. St. Patrick's Salad. Pistachio Ice Cream garnished with crystallized Mint Leaves. White Shamrock Cake. Black Coffee. Sweetmeats and Nuts in Green.

Use green for all decorations. Place in centre of table a bunch of smilax or a little harp (inexpensive), which might even be gotten up of gilt paper over cardboard, shaped into harp form, and decorated with smilax. Have twisted strips of green crepe paper in graceful festoons draped from centre of chandelier or dome to all four points of table, where is placed a green-shaded candle at each terminus. Place small pots of shamrock at each guest's place.

Use Irish flags for room decorations. For favors or souvenirs, placed at each guest's place, use little Irish flags and Paddy's hats filled with white and green candies.

BAKED APPLES WITH GREEN SAUCE. To make sauce, take one tablespoonful corn starch, one pint cold water, pinch of salt and three tablespoonfuls sugar color with green vegetable coloring. One can use a little apricot (cooked and pressed through sieve), place coloring in corn-starch mixture and place in pan around the apples. Stir sauce several times while apples are baking.

Serve when cold with cream and sugar. Garnish with green. When parsley has served its purpose as a garnish it can be placed in a dry jar and covered with a little oil. If set in cool place it will keep a week, and can be used as needed.

ERIN-GO-BRAGH BOULLION. Two flour can be bought for 15 cents a small can, which makes one gallon soup. It will serve a family of four for four meals, counting one bouillon cup to each, at the nominal cost of 24 cents. Mix with hot water as much as needed and season to taste. Serve in bouillon cups with spoon of whipped cream on top of each. It is really not so bad.

LIMERICK STUFFED MURPHYS. Cook three soft-boiled, mealy potatoes, wash carefully and dry; place in oven and bake about forty-five minutes, or until a silver fork will pierce them easily. Remove from oven, cut in half lengthwise, carefully take potato out of skins, mash through sieve and season with little salt, butter and milk. Beat well with wire fork, spoonful of mixture on each garnish all around with pimento-stuffed olives cut into rings. Top it off with sprig of cress or parsley.

dash them thoroughly through sieve, beat up well with two tablespoonfuls of milk or cream, add salt and chopped parsley and a half onion minced very fine. Heat mixture when cold with an egg well beaten, reserving a little egg to dip croquettes in. Make potato mixture into balls dip in egg diluted with a little milk, fry in deep fat, drain and serve hot, garnished with shamrock on top of each croquette.

SHAMROCK SANDWICHES. Take thin slices of bread, cut in heart shape, spread with butter, lay one leaf of salad, minced hard-boiled eggs, celery and nuts mixed with mayonnaise and a few drops of lemon juice on buttered bread, press smooth heart-shaped pieces on top and tie with green ribbons.

EMERALD ISLE GELATINE. Mint may be the flavor or any other desired. Use a little green vegetable color. Some green-tinted prepared gelatines are on the market. Ornament with whipped cream and pistachio nuts. This dessert can also be made the previous day and will be all ready for the whipped cream Wednesday.

WHITE SHAMROCK CAKE. Any good white cake recipe may be used for this. Ice with white icing and decorate with pistachio nuts.

EMERALD ISLE SOUP. Put one pint of milk over the fire in double boiler and add to it one ounce pistachio nuts chopped fine. Add a half teaspoon of almond-paste and mix well; then boil 20 minutes. Pick over one pint of fresh green spinach, tender parts left in enough boiling salt water to cover them. Wash tenderly drain and chop fine and press to a pulp. Add spinach to soup, mix thoroughly; add one teaspoon of butter. Moisten one tablespoon of arrowroot with cold water. Add a little hot liquid to it and then stir into the soup and cook until the consistency of thick cream. Just before serving add a half teaspoon of pepper, salt and a dash of white pepper.

LIMERICK STUFFED MURPHYS. Select three or four even-sized potatoes, wash carefully and dry; place in oven and bake about forty-five minutes, or until a silver fork will pierce them easily. Remove from oven, cut in half lengthwise, carefully take potato out of skins, mash through sieve and season with little salt, butter and milk. Beat well with wire fork, spoonful of mixture on each garnish all around with pimento-stuffed olives cut into rings. Top it off with sprig of cress or parsley.

ST. PATRICK'S SALAD. Take a small portion of veal and cut into cubes, equal amount of celery, cut up; mix well with green mayonnaise. Place spoonful of mixture on each garnish all around with pimento-stuffed olives cut into rings. Top it off with sprig of cress or parsley.

Green mayonnaise is made by taking yellow of raw egg and yolk of hard-boiled egg mixed together smoothly with a little mustard and pinch of salt. Then drop olive oil to mixture, stir very slowly, working all the time, then gradually taste, alternating with a little vinegar, until of mixture on each garnish all around with pimento-stuffed olives cut into rings. Top it off with sprig of cress or parsley.

UNTIDY CHILDREN IN COURT

Their Father Warned to Keep Them Clean or Suffer Penalty.

Five little children whose hair was disheveled and their faces smeared with dirt, appeared today as witnesses against their father in the Criminal Court, Camden. The father was arrested on complaint of health officers, who charged him with sending his children to school while in an unhygienic condition.

Richard Marsden, of 917 Pine street, Camden, told Judge Boyle that the law should dictate to him as to how he should dress his children. He was reminded by the judge that he had obeyed the law he would be fined $50 for each child.

Each of the five children testified that they were willing to keep clean. Marsden was released after he agreed to change his views.

Estimates on the number of new voters whose names would be placed on the books during the day ran as high as 100,000. It was admitted by politicians of all parties that the women voters would outnumber the men.
