Some Winter Vegetables That Are Prepared in a Different Way to Vary the Monotony of Carrots, Turnips and Beets

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

ORIENTAL LAMB POTPIE, Sweet Home-made Pickle, Spinach, Cole-slaw, String Beans, Fruit Pudding, Coffee

SUPPER: Olives, Salted Nuts, Home-made Relish, Carrot Souffle, Cheese Sauce, Hashed Irish Potatoes, Cole-slaw, Apple Cake, Chocolate Sauce, Tea

The market basket will require: Two medium sized pumpkins, One-half pound of butter, One-quarter pound of cheese, One-quarter pound of macaroni, One-quarter pound of spinach, One small head of cabbage, One bottle of olives, One-half cup of raisins, One quart of carrots, One-quarter peck of potatoes, One pound of apples, One-half peck of string beans, One-half pound of apricots for pudding, Two ounces of suet, Two stalks of celery, One pound of rice, One pound of onions, One turnip, One-half cup of porkerbs, And then the usual weekly staples.

Brushed Carrots: Scrape the carrots and then cut in pieces about one and one-half inches in length. Trim into a cork shape and cook in boiling water until tender, then drain. Now place in a frying pan or skillet.

Four tablespoons of bacon fat, One tablespoon of sugar, One tablespoon of flour.

Mix well and then add carrots and toss to blend. Add two tablespoons of water and cook slowly, occasionally until well glazed. Add: One tablespoon of vinegar, Three tablespoons of finely minced onion, Three tablespoons of finely minced parsley.

Toss to mix and then turn into a dish and serve.

Carrot Croquettes: Cook the carrots until tender and then mash. Now mix:

Three slices of bacon, One large onion, Brown the onion and bacon and add to the prepared carrots. Season and then mold into croquettes and dip in flour. Dip in beaten egg and milk and then roll in fried crumbs. Fry until golden brown in hot fat. Add salt and then sprinkle with grated cheese.

Julienne of Carrots: Cut the carrots into strips as thin as match sticks and then cook until tender. Drain, turn on dish. Season and add three strips of bacon, minced fine and slowly fry in hot fat and then sprinkle with grated cheese.

Carrot Souffle: Place in a mixing bowl: One cup of mashed carrots, rubbed through a sieve, One cup of cream sauce, One teaspoon of salt, One-half teaspoon of pepper, One tablespoon of melted butter, Three tablespoons of finely minced parsley.

Three tablespoons of melted butter, Vials of two eggs, Beat to mix and then fold into stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Turn into well-greased pudding dish and bake in a slow oven for thirty minutes. Serve with cheese and parsley sauce.

THE HUSBAND HATER

By HAZEL DEVO BATCHELOR

Jean Northrup, brought up as a beauty, suddenly finds herself the victim of her father's death of poverty forces her into a marriage with her guardian, Mark, who is a miser.

"You Are My Wife?" JEAN came out of her room slowly, defiance in every line of her. Mark stood by the table waiting for her. There was no compromise in his face; he looked stern and unforgetting; his features dark and regular as though cut out of bronze.

"You must eat something." She shook her head. He pulled out a chair for her, and she sat down more for the reason that she wanted to avoid an argument than anything else.

He sat down opposite her and helped her to food, but she did not eat. "Come," he said authoritatively. "You must eat something."

"You wanted to speak to me?" she said coldly, ignoring his remark. "Time enough for that afterward," he returned evenly, and Jean felt somehow impelled to eat whether she would or not.

She pushed her plate away finally and rose from the table.

The Question Corner Today's Inquiries: 1. In what useful way is a new standard ashtray made? 2. When the visor of a cap is broken, what can be used to mend and stiffen it so that it will wear as long as the rest of the cap? 3. How can the effect of a plain white amino shade be changed from time to time? 4. When the edge of the shoe wears a hole in a cloth spot, how can it be mended so that it will scarcely show? 5. Describe a good-looking, inexpensively made slipper case. 6. In what novel way is white or dresden used to trim a dark taffeta dress?

Yesterday's Answers: 1. Most of the new high and low shoes seem to have the low, square walking heel. 2. Set an alarm clock as a reminder of the time that a cake should be done when baking in the between times with other duties. 3. Fur should be cut with a sharp knife on the wrong side. 4. A pretty pin-cushion is made under the skirt of a doll with a ribbon turned up around the edge of it to form pockets for tape measure, needle case, etc. 5. A soft brown leather with designs attached on each side in color. 6. A fashionable new headress for evening is composed of a scarf which is wound around the head and ends in a long train in the back.

Tomorrow—Dick Mason

Some Lines on Luck To carry the knuckle bone of a ham will give you good luck. To rid yourself of bad luck, throw a penny over your shoulder, and the one that comes up will get the bad luck. Unlucky at play, lucky in love. One extreme follows another. If you sing all day today, tomorrow you will probably cry.

When you desire that a friend shall have good luck in any undertaking, walk around him two or three times, in the direction of the sun. It is said good luck and bad luck come in waves, one following the other. This may have given rise to the adage: "It never rains, but it pours." If one has good luck he must not let it go, or it will turn to bad luck. The wisest never speak of himself in the third person.

FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE

By CORINNE LOWE

"Ha, ha," says the clever miss, "I'll go to the ball as the ball." Following out this modest trend of thought, she decides that all the balls—golf, tennis and moth—the snowball is the most decorative. Hence she proceeds to fashion for herself this unusual little costume of white satin trimmed with fluffy white eiderdown. Even the tassels under their furry tops. Last, just for fear you may not suspect her real motive, she holds a muff ball of the eiderdown.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES

By JEAN NEWTON

Applying the Big Things things with which we are constantly shaping our lives and the lives of others, how many of us really do ourselves justice, how many of us live up to the best that is in us as we do in the big things?

When we stop to think about it we realize that our little acts of every day count more in the long run than what we may do in the few emergencies; but when we are in the midst of a crisis we forget about their cumulative importance—they are so trivial we just brush past them—careless, indifferent, callous.

If we would keep in mind every little thing we do the big thing it should express and be guided by it, it would help us to control the little things in our lives, and to act in them as we really wish to. It would bring smiles instead of tears, shed back on us the sunshine we reflect upon the world, and avoid useless self-recrimination and regrets.

Don't Get You, My Dear Dear Cynthia—Wednesday, the Evening Public Ledger I read an epistle signed "Whitey." While agreeing with many things in it, I paid make things of my own. I thoroughly disagree with his statement that a girl should get half an hour's danger ahead. That was a dare and since women are not able to take danger, the consequence must be that in a few years' course of time women will be treated the men's way—receive manly finishes, that sort.

Then you contradict yourself when you say you would not kiss and in the next breath you openly declare you "always ask for a kiss." The fellows blame the girls for kissing them, yet they would not kiss a girl who would claim for her good, old-fashioned girl with her modest ways, but still you persuade them to become just as particular, "Whitey," but men in general, don't mean you in particular.

While you are right in your attitude, "Skeets," you are not fair when you say "Whitey" contradicted himself. He says he would not kiss a girl who would claim for her good, old-fashioned girl with her modest ways, but still you persuade them to become just as particular, "Whitey," but men in general, don't mean you in particular.

Girls Does Not Name Date Dear Cynthia—I've been reading your column for some time and noticing of late the subject upon "True Love" my opinion on it is this: When a girl comes, it is the only time any one could realize who love means.

Now, if I have something on my mind, which I can't settle myself and I would appreciate your help or advice, I will write you several times, always trip out in the western part of the States. I met a girl friend in Cleveland and was introduced by one of my relatives. To make plain to you, this girl is known by many of my relatives and by the name of "Whitey." I have known for five weeks, I took a fancy to this girl and we fell in love with one another, she is selling me everything and her circumstances. We went out together quite a great deal.

And in July she came to this city with one of my aunts. And my mother and I went along with them to Atlantic City and were at the same hotel. She made friends with my people, who now think a lot of her. While staying at our home she promised she would come and let me know when she could settle things in Cleveland and come to Philadelphia to see me. I promised her I would let her know when she could settle things in Cleveland and come to Philadelphia to see me. Please Tell Me What to Do

Margie Upholds Cynthia Dear Cynthia—I heartily agree with you and loudly disagree with "Whitey" on the subject of a young man's evening clothes. I am sure you are right.

If he thinks the conventional habits of the past are a "ditch" before the girl it is to be a Dutch treat before attending the invitation.

It is my opinion that a number of girls make as large a salary as their boy friends, and the boys for us to pay "fifty-fifty." I vote for it.

Perhaps they wouldn't like so much if they were made conspicuous by their girl companions paying the fare in the street cars.

There is a "circle" where a girl has to "pay" for any slight attention of a man, but the young men who average business girls these are not of that type, thank goodness.

Understand, Cynthia, I don't believe any respectable, sensible girl should allow a man to spend large amounts of money on her, but her expense.

WHAT'S WHAT

By HELEN DECIE

Christmas gifts should be acknowledged promptly, although perhaps not birthday and wedding gifts. Any time during the holidays will do. Also, where there is a wide circle of gift-givers or gift-exchangers, acknowledging the receipt of every Christmas token consumes a great deal of time. If a personal letter of any length is sent to every "presenter" the usual way to bridge this difficulty is to send a New Year's card to each giver, with a few grateful words and thanks.

Of course, where the gift sent is of unusual intrinsic or artistic value, it is well to send a letter conveying sincere and real appreciation.

Adventures With a Purse I know of a little shop that specializes in Madeira pieces and laces, which is a little away from the center of the shopping district, and which has one of the most interesting collections of Irish laces and insertions I have seen in many a day's walk. There I have seen a loose weave Irish edging fully two and a half or three inches wide for seventy-five cents a yard. It is particularly effective on one's best combination or camisole. There are other lovely designs, some very close and fine, others coarser. But all the prices are reassuring.

It has been not more than three or possibly four months ago, if my memory serves me correctly, that I first heard of the lovely soft imported French face powder with its unbelievably fragrant scent. At that time, I bought my first box. I paid either $2.25 or $2.50 for it. I am not sure which. And I felt very extravagant, but it was so nice, so clinging and soft and thoroughly just what a face powder should be that in a way it seemed worth its price. Not so very long after that I was surprised and not a little discomfited to find that the price had been lowered to $1.50. But now comes the part that seems almost too good to be true. For now I have found a shop that has a whole big supply of it for $1—the very same powder, the very same boxes, the identical clove or fragrance. I tell you it seemed worth its price.
