

WORKS THROUGH FIRE WRAPPED TO CHILD

Mrs. Esther Miller, 836 South Fourth St., Uses Blanket as a Shield in Dash Down Hall

SAVE 2 IN PORTER ST. BLAZE

Mrs. Esther Miller saved her two-year-old baby, Betty, from a fire this morning by throwing a blanket over herself and the child and running through a second-floor hallway which was in flames at 836 South Fourth street.

Mrs. Miller was asleep when the blaze started in a closet in a hallway leading to the stairs. Mr. and Mrs. Al Kerner, whose home and dry goods store are in the building, were downstairs and knew nothing of the fire until Mrs. Miller rushed down with Betty in her arms.

Rather than frighten the Kerner, who are past sixty years old, by screaming in the stairs, Mrs. Miller, who was awakened by the fire, decided to try to escape through the flames, protected by the blanket. The child was nearly overcome by smoke, but was rescued early this morning after they had become bewildered by smoke and found escape cut off.

The woman disappeared after she had been assisted to the street by policemen. The man, a cigar store proprietor, in whose home the fire took place, is Louis Cohen, 831 Porter street. He was uninjured.

The fire was discovered shortly after 6 o'clock by his wife, who had risen to get breakfast for Cohen and the woman, a lodger. When Mrs. Cohen reached the lower floor the front room of which is occupied by the cigar store, she found the hallway filled with smoke. As she opened the door into the shop, she was met with a burst of flame, the fire having already swept completely over the front part of the house.

She rushed to the stairway to awaken her husband and the woman. The flames spread so rapidly, however, that their way to the ground floor was blocked before they could seize enough clothing to make the trip.

Mrs. Cohen ran into the street screaming for help. Her calls were answered by Sergeant Schrock and Patrolman Murray, of the Fourth street and Snyder avenue station, who ran to the rear of the home and made their way to the second story by a narrow stairway, which the trapped ones had forgotten in their confusion.

Seizing the panic-stricken man and woman, the policemen led them from the smoke-filled rooms to safety by way of the rear staircase.

The lower part of the house was a complete loss. Damage is estimated at between $1500 and $2000.

CULTURE BUSTED IN EYE

Ridley Park Unappreciative of Chief's Digestif Symphony

Culture has received another death-blow.

It all came about through the laudable effort of Chief of Police Hardy, of Ridley Park, to cultivate a naturally esthetic nature by having music with his Sunday morning breakfast.

All might have been well had not the chief selected as his musical ministrant an itinerant Italian organ-grinder whom he had picked up the night before for disturbing the peace. As it was, the neighborhood, deaf to the appeal of art, but not to the hurdy-gurdy, rose in its might and demanded that the musician be silenced.

The denunciation of irate citizens, upon arriving at the local Bastille, found the chief at his ham and eggs with a truly beatific expression upon his mobile countenance, while the Sicilian ground out a variety of familiar melodies.

There were sharp words, and the outcome of it all was that the musician was returned to duress vile, while Mr. Hardy continued his breakfast in gloomy silence, deprived of his soul's solace, and what faith he had before entertained in the capabilities of his fellow-men to appreciate the higher and better things in life.
