PHIL KING HAS AGAIN RETIRED But He Will Be Up Betimes in the Morning. supplies are good. Some of the more sensible of the Dukhobor women are becoming anxious about their male relatives as the weather is cold and snow is falling. At the center of the village they stood in a circle and Zebroff, their leader, in broken English, addressed the curious villagers, stating their intention of converting the world to the true faith. He closed by asking the people for food and shelter for the short time they would remain and so help the cause of Jesus. There was a liberal response. A special from Newdale, 163 miles from Winnipeg, says the motley crowd of Dukhobors reached here at 6 o'clock last night, after a three hours tramp from Strathclair. Many of them were worn out and staggering from exhaustion. Zebroff, their leader, who is one of the biggest men in the crowd, and a blacksmith by trade, addressed the townspeople, who turned out in masses. He made an appeal, which showed traces of eloquence, for food and shelter for his weary, footsore followers. He moved his hearers to such an extent that there were tears in many eyes, and the villagers made every effort to feed and house the pilgrims. At 9 o'clock all were comfortably settled. The party expects to reach Minnesota to-night. A special from Portage la Prairie says: To judge from present appearances, Portage la Prairie will witness the final act of the Dukhobor search for Jesus. Chief of Police Sturdy received a telegram from Inspector Wilson of the mounted police, dated at Chater, requesting him to make all necessary arrangements for a force of twenty men and horses to go into camp here. Acting on these instructions, Chief Sturdy has made all the necessary arrangements for the men and has selected Island park as the camping ground. The park is especially suitable, as it has excellent stabling facilities. The contingent of twenty police, with their horses, is expected to-day. Some of the citizens believe that if they attempt to turn the Dukhobors back here, it will be necessary to call out the Canadian mounted rifles to give the police a hand. It is thought that twenty men are hardly adequate to cope with 700 fanatics, who are determined to reach Winnipeg at any cost. Captain Winstler of D squadron of the Canadian Mounted rifles was interviewed by the correspondent, and he said that, so far, he has received no instructions in reference to the Dukhobors. In view of the approaching crisis in the Dukhobor question, many Portagers are felicitating themselves on the fact that there are two squadrons of the Canadian Mounted rifles here.
