KANGAROO "COPS" CAUGHT

Carnival Patrolmen Trapped and Their Wagon Stolen by Leather Men.

The carnival kangaroo court patrol wagon, and its detail of red-whiskered cop-pers were shanghaied last evening by a small but resolute band who not only resisted arrest, but captured the invaders and locked them up.

Warrants were issued early in the evening for the arrest of prominent members of the Northwestern Shoe and Leather association, which was dining at the Commercial Club. Judge Frank J. Jungen, of the kangaroo court, issued orders that the warrants should be served immediately and directed his minions to bring the shoe men before him in special term that evening on the grave charge of being accessory to the leather trust and accomplice to Dr. Lunyan.

After pinching Frank Wisner, of the Lyceum theater, who was charged with the heinous offense of having purloined a bottle of milk from a thirsty baby, the wagon sallied forth upon its secret service.

The leather men had adjourned from the Commercial Club and were holding a business meeting at the Grimsrud Shoe company's office, on Third street, when the chinchilla brigade burst unannounced into the assemblage and served warrants right and left. The prisoners apparently submitted in good grace and as they filed out one of them even ventured the information that four others were in hiding in a rear room and that they might as well all be in the same boat.

This observation did not escape Patrolmen Roger Charlton and Denny Sullivan, two of the super-fines. They marched right back into the den where the desperate characters yet lurked. As they did so bang went the door behind them and click went the lock.

"You don't belong to the regulars, you're only volunteers," sang the merry-makers outside, between alternate howls of fiendish glee, as the driver was pulled over backward in the wagon, gagged and bound hand and foot.

Then the hardened wretches touched up the nags and away they went Lake Avenue-ward. At midnight the outlaws returned by way of the Minnehaha line saying that the wagon and horses had been put away in a livery stable on the outskirts. What happened to the unfortunate driver may never be known.

In the meantime the men with the auburn Galways sang a heartfelt touching duet, the while they rapped vigorously on the windows with their shillalaws to attract the attention of the passing watch, who finally answered the summons and threatened to arrest them for impersonating officers.

IRVINE EXONERATED

Coroner Says Death of Irene Max Was Due to Unavoidable Accident.

Coroner A. W. Miller of Ramsey county, has issued a statement to the effect that the death of Irene Max, the 8-year-old child who was killed by an automobile last week, was the result of an unavoidable accident and that Horace Irvine, the owner and chauffeur was in no wise responsible. Coroner Miller examined all the witnesses of the accident and says that he is convinced that the machine was not running at too great a speed and that Mr. Irvine had perfect control of the car at all times. He recommends, however, that chauffeurs be examined as to their fitness to control a machine before being allowed to use the public streets.
