CHURCH MOURNS ITS GREAT LOSS

Episcopal church. For five years he J. M. Berry. He was also the chosen friend and adviser of many public men, and was greatly beloved by the late President McKinley, whose funeral sermon he preached at Canton, Ohio. He was recognized as an adherent of discipline, and when presiding over annual conference sessions never failed to keep command of the sessions, possessing high executive and administrative ability. His strong human sympathy added to his pulpit power and it only needed an announcement that Bishop Joyce was to preach to fill any church in which he might appear, for his name was known and loved wherever Methodism flourishes. It is not too much to say that he has left an impression on the church and on its people second to no man in its recent history.

A Native of Ohio.

Isaac W. Joyce was born Oct. 11, 1836, in Hamilton county, Ohio. He was the son of James W. and Mary Ann Joyce. He spent his early boyhood in Ohio and moved with his parents in 1851 to Tippecanoe, Ind. He received a good education, graduating from Hartsville in 1858. He had already decided to make the Methodist ministry his life work, and one year later, 1859, joined the Northwest Indiana conference.

In 1861 he married Miss C. W. Bosserman of La Porte, Ind., who was a great aid to him in the work of the church, especially in connection with foreign missions. Bishop Joyce was first pastor at La Porte, and later presiding elder of the district. In 1880 he was transferred to Cincinnati, where St. Paul's church was his first charge. Later he went to Trinity church. He was a member of the general conference of the church in 1880, 1884 and 1888.

It was in 1888, while he was still pastor of Trinity, that the general conference, in session in New York city, elected Dr. Joyce a bishop. The election direct from a pastorate to the office of bishop was an unusual honor and one seldom conferred by the Methodist served as president of the U. S. Grant university, being a very successful head of the institution and much beloved by all the students. Two years, 1896 to 1898, were spent in the orient, presiding over the conferences and inspecting the work of the Methodist Episcopal church in various countries of the old world.

In 1898 the bishop returned to the United States, only to take up foreign field work again, this time in South America, where he made two extensive visitations in successive years. At the end of this time he again returned to his home country and has since resided in Minneapolis at 310 Groveland avenue.

Popular in the Church.

In the Methodist economy the bishops are "general superintendents," and have no specified territory, each being assigned to preside over a number of conference sessions in various parts of the country each year. Such was Bishop Joyce's popularity in the northwest, however, that he was frequently assigned in this section, and presided over the last sessions of the Minnesota and the Northern Minnesota conferences with marked ability. He was to have presided this summer over the Central Swedish conference at Moline, Ill.

Bishop Joyce is survived by his widow and one son, Frank M. Joyce, with whom he resided in this city.

DOLLAR DREW INTEREST

Good Boy Story Told by the Bishop Just Before He Was Stricken.

Late on the Saturday noon preceeding the day on which Bishop Joyce became ill, he walked up street with a friend and parted with him in front of the Journal office after making an appointment to see him again on Monday on his return trip from Red Rock. He was in fair health but said that the terrific heat during his work in St. Louis the week before had affected his stomach. Otherwise he was quite well and was scheduled for several meetings the convention.

A little incident occured while he stood in front of the Journal building. A prominent attorney of the city came along and shook hands with the bishop and after a minute's conversation on other topics said, "Bishop, when are you going to preach in Minneapolis again? I haven't heard a good sermon since the last time I heard you."

"Have you been to church since then?" asked the bishop with a twinkle in his eye.

"No," said the attorney, "I have not."

"Well," rejoined Bishop Joyce, "you see now how important it is that I studied law in my younger days."

"I see," said the lawyer, "you have grasped the principle of cross-examination of witnesses."

Bishop Joyce was asked when he was going to Denver.

"I don't know exactly," he said. "If my ticket comes I shall go Monday night. I have a friend in Chicago who sends me tickets whenever I have any traveling to do in this northwest country. He is a railroad man and I am going to tell you how I became a 'solid' with him, as the saying goes.

"Years ago I was the pastor of a little church in an Indiana town and in that town was a boy who carried papers, to help his mother, who was a widow. He used to bring around New Year's greetings and I would give him 10 cents, or whatever I could spare. One New Year's, I remember, I gave him a dollar. It was a big dollar to both of us, because he did not have any and I had very few. Well, you should have seen that boy go whooping down the street with that dollar in his fist.

"Years afterward I was a pastor in Cincinnati and wanted a clergyman's permit, which would give me reduced rates on railroads. I knew from the papers that my little friend of the dollar, who had grown up and become a great railroad man, was in Cincinnati, so I went to his office for his assistance in getting the permit. I went into the office and asked for him by name.

"He was not in, so I named my business to the clerk, saying, 'I want a clergyman's permit. I am a preacher here and my name is Joyce.'

"'Joyce,' said the clerk, 'why, we know all about you. Mr. ——— has told us all about you, and said that if you came in here to give you anything you wanted, except the rails.'

"So you see," said the bishop, with a little smile, "the Methodist church has been drawing splendid interest on that dollar. It has often made me think we little know the possibilities in the little boys running among our feet. My friend has often told me that that dollar that day was worth more to him in giving him confidence in the future than any $10,000 he ever handled afterward. Preachers and business men cannot take too much notice nor learn too much about the boys."

SULTAN SEES HAND OF GOD IN ESCAPE

Constantinople, July 28.—In reply to a Mussulman address of loyalty and gratification at his escape from assassination by the explosion of a bomb thrown by an unknown person at the conclusion of the Selamlik ceremonies on Friday last, the sultan says that the protection of Divine Providence on that occasion was God's reward to him for constant endeavors to promote the peace and happiness of his people. The only feature of the incident which deeply affects him was the fact that so many of his dear, devoted soldiers and well-beloved people were killed or injured.

"BART'S" CARTOON PULLED ON HAYS

Wilson Points to The Journal as Proof Hays Is "Like Rest of Us."

By W. W. Jermane.

Washington, July 28.—Secretary Wilson met Professor Hays, his assistant, in the corridors of the agricultural department today. "Have you seen the Minneapolis Journal of Tuesday?" he asked him. "Yes," was the reply. "Have you?" "I have," said the good-natured secretary, "and I saw in it the cartoon of yourself. You have ranked as a pretty good man in the department thus far, and I had been inclined to put you on a pedestal as a model in every respect, but my hopes have been dashed to the ground. You are now on the same plane with all the rest of us. The cartoonists have got hold of you, as they have got hold of us, and I welcome you to our lowly class."

Just the same, Secretary Wilson enjoyed the cartoon very much. He received several copies of The Journal yesterday containing it. They had been mailed him by friends in Minnesota and Iowa. Professor Hays also received half a dozen copies.

The cartoon expresses the Hays situation thoroly. He is sitting on the lid and seems abundantly capable to take care of it and himself. His work is receiving high indorsement in the east, and official Washington is looking on him as a wonder. No man in his position in any of the departments has ever so impressed himself upon the government and the country in the same length of time and in the same way.

The Crop-Report Order.

The department of agriculture is anxious to have it known that its resolution to give out the monthly crop reports, or so many of them as can be prepared in time at noon the 10th of each month, was not taken as the result of the action of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday. Official word of the action of that body has not reached the department, and all that Professor Hays, assistant secretary, who has this matter in charge, knows about it, he got from the daily papers. The Chicago Board of Trade met to consider the same question, and after a debate, declined to pass any resolution requesting the reports at the earlier hour.

When Professor Hays first came to the department he had pronounced ideas regarding this question, and yesterday's order was made by him, with Secretary Wilson's consent, without any reference to the action in either Minneapolis or in Chicago, because, as the result of his experience and general knowledge of the situation, he believed that the earlier hour was the better hour.

BURGLARS GET WATCHES AND RINGS.

Special to The Journal.

Fertile, Minn., July 28.—The jewelry department in Dr. A. Nelson's drug store was entered last night and a big lot of watches, gold rings and chains stolen.

A Business Axiom

One of the axioms of this institution is "one price to all." We believe that this has become well understood and that it is appreciated by our patrons. Such a merchandising principle is the only true one today—it cultivates the closest of harmony between the consumer and the distributor of goods.

Shopping by Mail

We want you to try our mail order department—we wish you to see how it is possible to effect as great savings, and obtain as satisfactory wares in buying by post as though you walked in our doors and chose the articles from the shelves. It's possible for a merchant to deceive you once, when you trust to his honesty, not twice, though.

48c Brownie Overalls, 25c

Overalls in blue and red-striped materials, red trimmings and stitching and pockets, sizes 1 to 6 years, former price 48c, special, 25c.

Swimming Dolls

Just the thing for the little tots to amuse themselves with—light as a feather, but wonderfully strong and so constructed as to float on the water, different sizes, priced at 15c, 20c, 25c and 50c.

—Infants' Department, Second Floor.

Children's White Dresses

These come in white lawn and are most desirable garments. Here are a few examples of the half-price reductions—

$2.50 dresses now reduced to $1.25.
$3.50 dresses now reduced to $1.75.
$5.00 dresses now reduced to $2.50.

Children's Colored Dresses

These come in ginghams, madras, linens and brilliantines, ages from 6 to 14 years, the lines are broken from this season's selling, the styles are Buster Brown, blouse and suspender effects and sailor suits; we have divided the entire stock into seven lots for quick selling—there are all sizes at each price but not all sizes in each kind—they range as follows:

At 25c we have wash dresses that were 50c and 59c.
At 45c there are wash dresses that were 75c.
At 60c we have wash dresses that were 95c and $1.

At 95c there are several styles of wash dresses that have been reduced from $1.50.

At $1.45 we can show you beautiful little dresses, in plain colors and plaids; reduced from $2.25 and $1.95.

At $1.95 there are several pretty styles of dresses that sold at $2.95, (this lot includes some brilliantine dresses in sailor effects).

At the $2.95 figure we have included all of our higher priced dresses formerly sold at $6.95, $5 and $3.95. This lot includes some excellent values in all-linen suits.

Shirtwaist and Jacket Suits

Everyone of the silk shirtwaist suits have been cut in price. This policy has been pursued throughout the garment section of the second floor, and it will pay you to come and read the prices on the tickets if you have the least idea of investing in something stylish to wear.

And remember that a great number of our shirtwaists have met with reductions—we quote you a few examples—

At $1.25 we have several styles of tailored waists in white lawn and white madras, fancy stock collars; they are regular $2.50 waists; we have marked them at $1.25.

At 95c we have beautifully tailored waists in fine, sheer materials that ought to sell at from $1.25 to $1.50 and $1.75. The special price is 95c.

We have a large assortment of different styles in embroidery-trimmed and tucked fine lawn waists; they ought to be marked $1.25 and $1.50, but they go on sale at 75c.

Washable Fabrics

These are the wanted goods—the fabrics that are in demand right now. Summer is hardly here yet, judging from the "wearable" standpoint, there's lots of good, hard value to be had out of a wash dress in the season of 1905.

Irish dimities and Arnold's organdi, in white and tinted grounds, with dots, stripes and floral designs, regular 25c goods, special, yard 15c

Basement Wash Goods

Cotton challies, and full standard comforter prints, a big assortment, yard 5c

The New Fall Dress Goods

You're missing one of the treats coming to you if you fail to see our showing of new fall Dress Goods—among them the best weaves of the famous "Jamestown Mills."

Henriettas are going to be worn very much this season, both in black and colors, we invite you to call upon our Dress Goods Department on the ground floor and see the showing we have for your inspection.

In plain fabrics we have all the popular weaves, such as Roxana, Readona, Mohdalaine, Melrose, Panama, Prunella, etc. They are a feast for feminine eyes.

Rainproof Goods Showing

These are among the latest triumphs of the weaver's art, absolutely waterproof—but they look like the plain fabric—come in checks, plaids, herring-bone stripes—and in almost every color and quality one could desire.
