Duluth Young Man Saves Money and Reimburses Those He Has Victimized.

Special to The Journal.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 24.—What can be done in the way of reforming a man who has gone wrong in rough company is illustrated in the case of Archie Lane, who was sent to the reformatory from this city three years ago.

He was arrested for passing forged checks on which he secured $200, signing all with the name of the Algering all with the name of the Alger-Smith Lumber company. When he was released on parole he went to work under supervision of Superintendent Frank Randall of the reformatory, to whom he sent all of his savings, and when his term was up he had accumu-lated a neat sum of money. He first sent the money to his former employers, Alger-Smith, thinking they had re-Alger-Smith, thinking they had remitted for the checks. RUINED BANK'S CASE SOUGHT BY MAD MOB

Sixty Policemen Overwhelmed rection. by Rush of Chicago Depositors.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Sixty policemen were overwhelmed today by a mad rush of men and women who were determined to get the first money paid out of the vaults of the ruined Milwaukee Avenue State bank. Receiver Fetzer had made arrangements to pay 20 per cent to 5,000 of the 22,000 depositors and everybody was anxious to be among the 5,000.

At daybreak the crowds began to gather around the bank and by 8 a.m. it was surrounded by 15,000 persons. The policemen detailed at the bank were unable to handle the crowd, the greater part of which was unable to understand the English language. Forty with difficulty.

It seemed impossible to make the de-positors comprehend that altho only 5,000 were to be paid today, the others would be paid just as much within the next few days. At one time the crowd threatened fairly to storm the doors, shouting in foreign tongues.

The receiver was all day paying the 5,000 and will pay as many tomorrow.

KNEELS IN PRAYER; GROUND TO PIECES

Foot Wedged in Railroad Trestle, Girl Meets Terrible Death.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 24.—Kneeling in prayer, after she had struggled vainto free her foot from between the ties of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad tres-tle, Miss Linda Rothwell, a charming young woman of this ctiv, was ground to pieces by a freight train. Her aunt, Mrs. Richard Rothwell, and a young cousin, Richard Rothwell, were with her at the time and both were injured.

There was a farmer's fair at the park and hundreds of persons saw the trag-edy, many women fainting. The party was crossing a trestle when a whistle around a bend in front of them warned them that a train was approaching.

The engineer saw the girl on the trestle and blew the whistle vigorously. He applied the airbrakes and reversed the engine. The drivewheels flew around backward, sending up showers of sparks that made the monster still more fearful, but the heavy train behind pushed it steadily on.

Nothing in the world could help Miss Rothwell then. She had to die and she knew it. Motioning her aunt and cousin to jump, she managed to kneel down on the trestle and folded her hands on her Reneath the trestle the crowd stood petrified with horror. There was no final scream from the victim. Only a crunching and a jarring of the loco-motive. Half an hour after the acci-dent Miss Rothwell's heart was picked up at the end of the trestle.

In this hour of the government's uncertainty many eyes are turned instinctively to the United States, not in the expectation of armed intervention, which the better informed realize would, except in the doubtful contingency that American interests were jeopardized, be quite impossible, but with the hope that the good office of her big neighbor may be used to restore tranquility in the republic.

The part that the United States played in bringing about an end of hostilities in the far east and more recently in the happy termination of the squabble between Guatemala and San Salvador has made lasting impression on the Cuban mind.

of law and order.

Meantime confusion exists as to where the lines may be drawn between the friends of the government and the malcontents. The most serious phase of the situation is the attempt of the disturbers to make the revolt a party affair. They claim to represent the sentiment of the liberal party which in turn maintains that it numbers a maturn maintains that it numbers a ma-jority of the Cuban people. If these contentions are substantiated, the affair will assume a graver aspect. In this connection the admitted lukewarmness of the rank and file toward the government is significant.

You may assure the people of the United States that I have not conspired to disturb the peace and prosperity of the country." Gomez declared that he had been arrested because many of his friends were in arms and he reiterated his denial of complicity in the insurrection.

What Steenerson Says.

Stenerson-I would say that, so far as the bill of grievances is based on the assumption that existing laws are being violated and are not enforced, the same is more properly addressed to the executive and judicial branches of the government in whose hands the enforcement of the laws and are properly addressed. ment of the laws and penalties for their violation has been placed. However much we may deplore lawlessness every-where, the remedy would seem to lie more in the direction of stricter en-forcement and an appeal to the moral sentiment of the people than in the multiplication of legislative enactments. Regarding the other class of subjects mentioned and the failure of congress to enact proposed legislation, I will say that I am in sympathy with annual distribution of dividends to policy holders.

This evening the committee expects to draft a standard form of life policy.
