

SANPETERSHEAR SMOOTLER TALK

Churchman Will Make Good Governor.

Says So Himself, and Explains Why, at Mt. Pleasant.

Thinks Utah Needs Business Man to Run State Affairs in Business Way.

Special to The Tribune.
MT. PLEASANT, Utah, Oct. 14.—The Smootler campaign was opened last night by the church nominee for Governor, accompanied by Judge Frick and the Rev. Gies club, consisting of four little girls from the town of Richmond.
Among those seated upon the stage were President C. N. Lund of the North Sanpete stake, his first counselor, Peter Matson, and part of the bishopric of the two wards of this city.
W. D. Candland, local manager of the campaign for Senator Smoot's candidate, was also present.
The opera-house was well filled, especially with children. After a song by the four little girls and an encore, the Hon. J. C. Cutler was introduced as the next Governor of Utah.

Candidate Cutler Speaks.
Apostle Smoot's candidate began by saying that he was glad to see so many out, so that he could talk over matters with them before election. He admonished the young men who are about to vote for the first time that it was important for them to look around and see which party had done the most good for the country. He asked the audience how many would want to go into business with a poor corporation or a weak man; how many would want to start business without looking over the situation and being with those who do things, and do them right.
Gov. Wells had made a good Governor, he said, but what the people needed now was a good business man for Governor. He thought that Gov. Wells had no hard feelings in his heart toward him, as they were old friends, understood each other perfectly, and the Governor could assist him in his work. It would take a man of good business ability to expend the funds of the State in the best interests, and he believed that he would be elected Governor next November.

More of an Orator.
Judge Frick was next introduced. If comparisons were not odious it could be said that the would-be Governor, through as compared to that of Judge Frick's, was like that of a schoolboy just making his debut. The speaker could not always tell a Democrat because they were never known to smile. The smile came from the Republicans, and hence during the campaign, through Cache valley he and Mr. Cutler had been able to detect all the people who were Republicans. During the campaign, the valley of Cache the Judge had eaten chicken in every conceivable way, and he had concluded that the only way to get rid of the Democratic rooster was to kill it and eat it.

Exhibition of Democratic Gail.
One of the greatest sins that the Democrats were guilty of had been the gail exhibition in the State convention, where the prayer of the State convention had so impressed itself upon him that he repeated part of it to the audience.
The Judge spoke at some length on the issue of the campaign, calling attention to the fact that the Democrats had been more successful in the past, and that the Republicans had been more successful in the present. He said that the Democrats had been more successful in the past, and that the Republicans had been more successful in the present. He said that the Democrats had been more successful in the past, and that the Republicans had been more successful in the present.

The Price of Pleasure.

It is hard for a lovely woman to forego the pleasures of the life which she was created to enjoy and adorn. She may have to be busy all day in office or in store, yet she cannot deny herself the social pleasures which are offered her.

The fatigue is often too great for her, and she suffers from headache and backache as a consequence of over-exertion. Women who are tired and worn out find a perfect tonic and nerve in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures headache, backache and the other aches and pains to which women are subject. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I am so pleased with your instructions, I hardly know what to say. I have been using your kind favor, writes Mrs. Milo Bry-Crockett of Loda, Ill., Co. Ga. 'I suffered so much with general pains in my back and the lower part of my stomach and palpitation of the heart, that I could hardly lie down. Could hardly get up in the morning, but after using three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, I am like a new woman.'"

Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and confidential. Address Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Why the Greeks Were Organized

Secretary A. W. Charter Answers the Organ of the Labor Agent.

"After the meeting of the Western Federation of Miners at Bingham Junction Thursday night to act on the question of admitting Greeks to membership," said A. W. Charter, secretary of the union, yesterday, "Dr. P. G. P. Attias was escorted from the junction by Ira Beckstead because six Greeks, led by one Frank Soter (who, by the way, is a bartender running a saloon owned by Skirlis, the Greek labor agent) threatened to do him bodily harm."

"Skirlis," continued Mr. Charter, "has evidently enlisted the aid of the Democrat News in its efforts to keep the Greeks in ignorance and subjection, and between them, they have entirely misrepresented the movement in which Dr. Attias and I are engaged. The claim that Dr. Attias and the Western Federation are seeking to herd the foreigners into the polls to help the American party is false and absurd. In the first place, such action would be preposterous, because, under the system of ignorance to which Skirlis has subjected the Greeks, they have not become enlightened enough to get naturalized. Furthermore, the officers of the Western Federation of Miners are not such fools as to try to herd the members into any party Utah."

"As to the charge that Dr. Attias is a professional labor agitator, I will say that until Thursday, October 13th, Dr. Attias never had any connection with a labor union. And as for him being an agent, this is exactly how the matter stands. Dr. Attias has been working for the last four months gathering data in regard to the Greek laborers in Utah. I have been investigating the same subject thoroughly for the last year and a half. The investigations conducted by me have reached the same termination as those of Dr. Attias. I had reached that point where I found it necessary to organize the Greeks to break the power of Skirlis, which was being used to the detriment of the Americans. I had no means of organizing the Greeks without the co-operation of an interpreter. Dr. Attias had reached that point in his investigation where he found that some kind of an organization was necessary to overthrow the Skirlis padrone system. We became acquainted. I proposed that he act as interpreter and organizer, and promised in return to afford him the means of organization. The meeting at Bingham was the result."

"In regard to the petition circulated by Skirlis at the smelters and printed by the News I have this to say. Skirlis did canvass the smelters and the Greeks signed because they had to hold their jobs. They do not respect Skirlis because they love him, but because at present he holds their livings in his hand. "The Americans are interested in organizing the Greeks because if no one will protect us we must protect ourselves. The importation of Greeks into the false inducements must be stopped. The attitude of the News will make it no friend to the smelters and miners. What little the Greeks buy is purchased from stores owned by Skirlis. If his people do not patronize them they lose their jobs. The farmers do not want to be surrounded by foreigners and the American laborers do not wish to be driven out of the country by foreign competition."

REGISTRATION IN NEW YORK.

First Day Shows Smaller Number Than Same Day Last Year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—This was the first day of registration in New York City. At a late hour the returns from Manhattan and Bronx showed a smaller number of voters for the first day than registered on the opening day in 1903. Returns from fourteen districts out of thirty-six showed that 44,491 names had been placed on the list, against 46,304 on the first day in 1903.

Complete returns from Brooklyn show today's registration in the twenty-one districts to have been 92,555, as compared with 92,433 in 1903.

The returns from the borough of Queens show a total registration in the three districts of 11,634, with the returns from the district of Richmond showing 5,599, against 4,577 for the first day in 1903. The total first day's registration in Manhattan and the Bronx in 1903 was 144,331; for Brooklyn for 1903 it was 144,331; in 1903 was 92,433. Throughout the State heavy gains were made in the registration.

OUTLOOK IN IDAHO.

Boston Banking Firm Believes Roosevelt Will Carry State.

SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.
BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 14.—Pearmain & Brooks, leading firm of bankers, have just completed a thorough, systematic canvass of the political and business situation throughout the country. A summing up of their reports from Idaho indicates that the State will elect the Republican electoral ticket, while Nevada will also elect Roosevelt electors, though a Democratic State in recent years. Business generally is better in that State than last year, and the conditions are much the same in Idaho.

FRAUD IS ALLEGED.

San Francisco Election Commissioners Accused.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—The grand jury of this city and county has recommended to Presiding Judge Lawlor of the Superior court that the District Attorney be directed to file allegations against seven election commissioners, accusing them of malfeasance in office in connection with the recent primary election. Charges of fraud at the same election have already resulted in several indictments and arrests.

Registration Slow at Modena.

SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.
MODENA, Oct. 14.—Two days of registration have passed without an entry upon the books, but as the total vote here is not overwhelmingly large, the remaining days will be sufficient for all who are entitled to register.
If all of the registrants of 1900 feel as several rather loquacious passengers do who passed through here yesterday, Judge Parker will not get many votes from the silverites.

Hand to Hand Struggle With Russians.

Japanese Run Out of Ammunition in Defending a Hill.

Met Soldiers of the Czar With Rocks and Clubbed Rifles.

MUKDEN, Oct. 14.—A Russian correspondent of the Associated Press gives the following account of the battle: Up to the present time the battle along the whole line has been one of varying success. We are now resting, cold, drenched and weary from a heavy thunderstorm which began last evening and continued this morning. We hold positions captured from the Japanese and are awaiting developments on the extreme east.

Fighting Was Fiercest.

The fighting on October 11 was furious and continuous along a front so extensive that it would be impossible to give details from any one point. Judging from the sound of the firing, the Japanese themselves assumed the offensive. Near the center it was quiet. We moved forward, occupying some of the small passes.

It should be pointed out that, with such an extensive front, it is difficult to say which position constitutes the real center. It will be more correct to distinguish the center and flanks separately of each division.

Japs Were Repulsed.

Our losses on October 11 were comparatively small. In the small ravine where we were stationed the firing slackened toward evening, but recommenced after dark and continued with little intermission all night. On October 12 everyone looked for a crucial engagement, but though heavy fighting resulted, the result remained indecisive. The Japanese advanced boldly and attacked hotly on the extreme right at Yental and farther to the left. All their attacks were repulsed with great loss. We also suffered heavily. The conveyance of the wounded to hospitals was accomplished with difficulty, owing to the distance of the railway.

Stones for Weapons.

The division to which I am attached deployed on October 13 opposite two passes called Tounmlinsky, eight miles north of Beshan, and thus pass, drive and bayonet each bounded by high and almost perpendicular hills, which held Japanese. Our troops tried on the night of October 11 to take the passes during a storm. Several companies went forward, but they did not succeed in reaching the heights. Lieutenant Grodzki, who had already been decorated with the Cross of St. George for bravery, led another assault on the Japanese trenches at the top of the hill. The Japanese ran out of ammunition and met our men with stones and clubbed rifles in a bitter hand-to-hand struggle. In the meantime Japanese reinforcements and ammunition arrived. Lieutenant Grodzki was shot point blank in the chest. We were forced to retire.

More Hard Luck.

Another piece of hard luck was that one of our batteries, having spent most of the night in dragging its guns by hand up an almost perpendicular mountain and ousting the Japanese from the great affluents, was forced to retire. When a Japanese mortar battery got the range of its position.

well-concealed mortars which he was unable to locate. Capt. Michaels got the range of the Japanese batteries later and two of our shells put them out of action. The Japanese then seemed to lose their heads, swarmed out of the trenches and fled. Our infantry occupied the position, but it was a harder fight than Liao Yang.

Brown Men Were Brave.

We were considerably hampered in advancing through an unfamiliar country. I must say that the Japanese, as a rule, defend their positions with the greatest bravery. We are expecting a heavy attack. It is understood the Japanese have strong reserves and guns of big caliber.

Last night passed with the usual intermittent rifle fire, capped with a terrible rainstorm, which added to the discomforts of every one.

A Lothario Among Birds.

Since the time when Jenner first had the bad luck of witnessing the curious scene in which the young cuckoo ejects its foster brothers and sisters from the nest, this bird has always excited a great deal of curiosity in the female cuckoo. The nesting sense appears to be atrophied. "She does not think," says a writer, "of making a nest, though the instinct has not died out of the breed is evident from the fact that at least one of the species builds a nest like other birds. But in England the female cuckoo lays her egg at the hedge root, and afterward carried it in her bill and deposits it in the nest of some other bird. Probably connected with the dwindling of the maternal instinct is the fact that in the cuckoo the male bird displays the females. It is generally reckoned as a sign of decay either in a nation or in a species of country when this occurs. As long as a country, for instance, produces more females than males, it remains strong, healthy and aggressive, but when this ceases to be the case and the males outnumber the females, decay sets in. Thus the cuckoo must be described as the degenerate of the bird world. He is not a very pleasant creature, either. We welcome him in spring, not as we welcome the nightingale for the sweetness of his note, but because he is the harbinger of spring and all that is meant by it."

Science has shown that the male bird displays no paternal instinct at all. He courts his mistress and then forgets all about her. Far from saving off the egg, as many male birds do—notably the ring-dove, which spends as much time on the egg as the female, the male cuckoo always chooses to put her egg beside others which were similarly laid. But this is not so, as might be proved from the single fact that the hedgesparrow's nest is one which she greatly patronizes, and here the eggs are sky blue in color and no cuckoo ever laid an egg like them. Besides, there is scarcely one of our common wild birds whose nest has not been made the receptacle of a cuckoo's egg, and the coloration would indeed have to vary if it was to be suitable in each instance.

"But it is on hatching that the hideous tragedy takes place for which the bird has earned an evil fame. Self-preservation, it has been said, is the first law of nature, and, as a matter of fact, the only thing that can be predicated of life in its simplest form is that it strives to keep itself in being. But in no other creature does this instinct take a form so abhorrent as it does in the young cuckoo, which, while it is a blind, shapeless, naked little monster, begins to elbow its foster parents and drive them out of the nest to the ground, where death is certain and almost immediate."—Chicago News.

AN OLD IDEA

Shown to Be Absolutely False by Modern Science.

People used to think that baldness was one of those things which are handed down from generation to generation, from father to son—just like a family heirloom. Science has shown the fallacy of this belief by proving that baldness itself is not a constitutional disease, but the result of a germ invasion of the scalp. Herpicide can effectively rid the scalp of the germ which causes baldness. Washing only cleans the scalp of Dandruff, it doesn't kill the germs. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide will do this in every case. It is also a delightful dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
