$15,000 Worth of Loot.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—One of the biggest criminal captures in the history of the local police was made late this afternoon in the arrest of Clarence Howlett, alias Wilson, alias Oliver Reeves, alias Kenneth Freeman, wanted in Washington, D. C., on the charge of stealing diamonds valued at $20,000, the property of Mrs. Frederick Bugher, of New York City, who was robbed while on a visit to Mrs. Nicoll Ludlow, wife of Rear Admiral Ludlow, U. S. N., in Washington.

In the prisoner's pockets when he was searched at the Central Police Station were found nearly $15,000 worth of loose diamonds and set stones. The arrest and the recovery of the diamonds were due to the shrewdness of Jacob Garmann, proprietor of a jewelry store at 434 North Calvert street, who held Howlett a prisoner in his store until the arrival of the Central district police.

Appears in Disguise.

Howlett admitted that he had stolen the jewelry. He came to Baltimore at 3 o'clock this morning and registered at the St. James Hotel under the name of J. Moses. He wore a false mustache and told Capt. Henry he was trying to locate a Hebrew peddler. He wore the mustache when he went to the store of Garmann. He went into the store and offered for a sale a single carat diamond valued at $150. At first he told Garmann that he wanted the stone set in a pin, and then he tried to sell the stone for a small sum of money.

"I know who you are," said Garmann to Howlett. "You are this man on this paper," exclaimed the jeweler, holding up the police bulletin with the picture of Howlett on the first page. "The police are already coming and you have got to stay here." With that Garmann ran to the door and called for an officer.

After being locked up, Howlett was asked why he robbed Mrs. Bugher and how he eluded the police for two weeks.

Was Born in Washington.

"My right name is Clarence Howlett, although I have used other names. I was born in Washington, D. C. My father is a retired government employee, and lives in the suburbs of Washington."

When Howlett left Washington he took with him Paul Bragg, a fifteen-year-old boy living at 6 Capital Circle, where Howlett lived. He said it was impossible for him to resist the temptation to steal the jewels after he had seen them sparkling on the wife of the New York deputy police commissioner.

"I was employed by Mrs. Ludlow just one week when Mrs. Bugher came down from New York," said Howlett. "I saw the jewels, and they fascinated me. I planned to get them. On the afternoon of Tuesday of last week Mrs. Bugher went out for an automobile ride. I, as butler, had access to the whole house. Mrs. Bugher's son was on the second floor. When I went to that floor I found the maid in Mrs. Bugher's room, and I immediately sent her to another part of the house. I found the jewel case in a traveling bag, and on opening it I saw

BOROUGH BANK CLOSES.

Second Failure in Brooklyn Blamed to Rush After First.

New York, April 7.—Without previous notice to the depositors, the doors of the Borough Bank of Brooklyn, at 20 Court Street, Brooklyn, were closed to-day. A slip of paper pasted across the main door of the institution read as follows: "This bank is closed by order of the State superintendent of banks."

After a conference with the superintendent of banks regarding the unusual demands being made upon the institution at its Eighth ward branch, and considering the character of the assets, for which the present management asserts that it is not responsible, the board, it was announced to-day, decided to request the superintendent to take possession and thus preserve the best interests of the depositors.

DIE SIDE BY SIDE.

Broker Brothers Who Lost Fortune
Found in Woods.

Kansas City, Mo., April 7.—Evidence that Nels Olsen and his brother, formerly operators on the Kansas City Board of Trade, carried out a threat of suicide, following the loss of their money last January, was disclosed to-day when their bodies were found by fishermen in the underbrush about a mile and a half south of the Milwaukee Railroad bridge in the East Bottoms.

Conclusions of a double suicide, carefully planned, are induced by the presence of a revolver with two empty chambers, the folded overcoats of the men disposed carefully beneath their heads, and the evident care they had taken to destroy possible marks of identification.

The bodies appeared to have been lying as found more than a month.

CANADIAN TREATY
CONCERN OF TAFTWill Urge Payne to Report
Ames Resolution.

Plans for a Canadian reciprocity treaty assumed something of a definite shape yesterday afternoon, following a visit of Representative Butler Ames, of Massachusetts, to the White House.

The President is expected to call upon members of the House of Representatives to pass a resolution offered by Mr. Ames declaring in favor of opening negotiations with Canada for close commercial relations.

Mr. Ames discussed the subject fully with Mr. Taft. It is expected that the President will have a consultation with Representative Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House. The Ames resolution is now in the hands of this committee, and it may be stated that the President wants it favorably reported.

It is believed by Mr. Ames that the moral effect of favorable action on his resolution would aid in expediting the Canadian negotiations for a reciprocity treaty. Mr. Ames said yesterday that he knew full well the President can enter upon negotiations for a trade treaty with Canada without the passage of any resolution or action by Congress, but the discussion of the resolution has introduced a new factor into the administration of the plans of the administration.

If it is found that the Committee on Ways and Means does not intend to report on the resolution, it is Mr. Ames' intention to circulate a round robin in its favor. He has obtained the support of many members of the House, including, first of all, those of the Massachusetts delegation and the border States. Mr. Ames' action will depend upon the result of the President's conference with Mr. Payne.

MORSE TO HIGHEST COURT.

Attorneys for Convicted Banker
Shift Fight to Washington.

Atlanta, Ga., April 7.—Following a conference to-day between Martin W. Littleton and Hoke Smith, the decision is announced to shift the scene of the legal battle for Charles W. Morse's liberty from the Federal courts of Atlanta to the United States Supreme Court at Washington.

The case will be taken before the Supreme Court as soon as Mr. Littleton returns to New York.

Mr. Littleton gave out a statement that the United States Supreme Court had, on April 1, handed down a decision saying that in case an appeal for habeas corpus on statutory constitutional grounds was taken before a Federal court and failed, it would not have the right of appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The Morse case, coming under the points involved, will now be taken before the highest court.

THOUSAND IN PANIC
ON BURNING LINERBaby Killed and Score Hurt
in English Channel.

SEVERAL FALL INTO THE SEA

All Rescued After Captain and Crew of Emigrant Ship, Bound for America, Signal Two Other Vessels to Aid, Which Transfer Passengers in Fight to Save Lives.

London, April 7.—With nearly a thousand people on board the steamer Cairnra, from London for Portland, Me., caught fire in the English Channel this morning.

There was a panic among the passengers, who were chiefly Russian emigrants, and escape from a great tragedy was only due to the officers and crew keeping their heads and forcibly holding the terrified passengers under control. A child was killed and several persons were injured by explosions.

The Cairnra was off Beachhead at 5:20 a. m., when one of her boilers burst. Her bunkers caught fire. Several women, some nursing children, were sitting on a hatch on deck when a violent explosion blew off the hatch, hurling the women and children in all directions. Some were badly hurt. A child was killed outright by falling on the iron deck. Sections of the shattered hatch struck several of the passengers, causing wounds. Nine of the crew below were also injured by the explosion.

Panic Becomes Rife.

Panic immediately seized the passengers, men and women running frenziedly about the deck, gesticulating and screaming. The officers vainly tried to calm them. A thick black smoke poured out of the hold. The officers signaled for help, and the signals were seen by the steamer Kanawha, from London for Halifax, and the Swedish steamer Upland. These two vessels bore down on the Cairnra, whose captain transferred his passengers to them.

It was then the crew were compelled to do their utmost to prevent the passengers from trampling upon and throwing one another into the sea. Wild fights raged for several minutes around the davits as the Cairnra's boats were being lowered. Men fought women to secure places, while the women shrieked hysterically and several of them fainted. The officers took prompt steps, and forcing their way with part of the crew among the struggling maniacs, felled several men with their fists and threw others across the deck, thus clearing a space for the women and children.

Several Fall Overboard.

After that everything went smoothly, except that some of the emigrants in their haste to leave the steamer fell into the sea, from which they were rescued with difficulty. The Cairnra's Kanawha's, and Upland's boats promptly transferred all the emigrants to the Kanawha and Upland. The crew stayed by the Cairnra and finally got the fire under control.

The refugees were landed at Dover this evening. There were about 850 steerage passengers and a number of gentlemen returning to America. The British Atlantic fleet happened to be at Dover. Prince Louis of Battenberg, his commander, was giving a dinner on the flagship when the refugees arrived. He broke up the company and, with his wife, officers, surgeons, and sailors, went to the pier to help. Numbers of the refugees were exhausted by hunger and cold, especially the 400 on the Upland whose resources were meager. All had to stay on deck in a keen north wind. Hot rations were served from the fleet and from the hotels. The injured were taken to the hospital.

WATTERSON PAYS
HUNTER TRIBUTE

Louisville, Ky., April 7.—In an editorial in the Courier-Journal to-morrow morning, headed "Whither," Henry Watterson will say:

"The time has come for the people of the United States to consider Theodore Roosevelt as they have never considered him before, to take him more seriously than they have ever taken him, to realize that he is altogether the most startling figure which has appeared in the world since Napoleon Bonaparte—a circumstance not without significance and portent. He must be a poor American whose heart does not glow with pride at the unwonted honors bestowed upon this representative of this country, and swell with exultant admiration at the splendid way he is carrying himself."

It is too late, if it were not personally offensive, to talk about self-expulsion. Taken in connection with what appears to be the hopeless breakdown of the Taft administration, it constitutes an event of the first consequence. Before we get into the acrimonies of party conflict, the Courier-Journal asks its contemporaries throughout the country to reflect without passion or levity and to answer to themselves, amid the blaze of light which casts an aureole about our wandering Ulysses, whether representative and whether the only cure for the evils which are admitted is the one-man power, because they may be sure that the return of Theodore Roosevelt to power will be so construed by Europe, and that on this account the demonstration of monarchism has its chief significance."

ASSAULTED BY ARABS.

Four Americans and an Irish Priest
Beaten and Robbed.

Cairo, April 7.—The Egyptian Gazette reports a savage assault on an Irish priest named Mullin and four American students by Arab boatmen at Haifa, on the Bay of Aden. The Arabs were rowing the visitors to a steamship at night, and demanded treble fare. When this was refused, they attacked the visitors with knives and a fierce fight followed, in which the boatmen were worsted. They continued rowing, but the noise of the fight had attracted other boatmen, who rowed alongside the visitors' boat and battered the travelers with their oars. Another struggle ensued, and the visitors were overcome. Their pockets were rifled and their baggage stolen. The first crew took them to the steamer, and they landed them on the gangway, and then decamped in the darkness. The travelers were exhausted. They had numerous but not serious wounds. The British and American consuls are investigating.

WIDOW LIVES TO KILL.

Vows to Take Man's Life Who Said
He Wasn't Married.

Macon, Ga., April 7.—Declaring that she had been wronged by a prominent official of the Central of Georgia Railway, Mrs. Lily S. Miller, a pretty young widow, publicly announced her intention to kill the official. His friends are so alarmed that they are having him constantly guarded.

Mrs. Miller came here with her husband from Philadelphia about sixteen months ago. Her husband died soon after their arrival, and she has been since shown attentions by the railway official.

Three days ago she made an unsuccessful effort to kill herself after writing a letter, accusing the official of being responsible for her trouble. Now she says that she does not want to die until she has killed the official. She says that the official told her he was unmarried, and she never knew he had a wife until a few days ago.

COLONEL APPEARS IN KHAKI

Accompanied by Wife He Visits
Honeycomb Scene of Twenty-five Years Ago, Exchanges Courtesies, and Journey Is Resumed in Old-fashioned, Three-horse Carriage.

Rome, April 7.—The Spezia correspondent of the Tribune says that at 8:30 this morning Col. Roosevelt, clad in a rough rider overcoat of khaki, with the insignia of colonel, alighted from a saloon car at the Spezia station, accompanied by his wife.

The mayor and sub-prefect, who had been awaiting his coming, greeted him, and Col. Roosevelt accepted the mayor's carriage in which to drive to the Hotel Croce di Malta, while a special old-fashioned three-horse carriage, a replica of that used by the Roosevelts twenty-five years ago on their honeymoon, which had been made ready for their second honeymoon, conveyed their luggage.

Bells on Old Vehicle.

The old-fashioned vehicle, with musical bells on the horses' harness, afforded an unusual sight for Spezia, and attracted attention, making it impossible for Col. Roosevelt to preserve his incognito.

After breakfast in the public dining-room of the hotel and a visit to the bedroom occupied by Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt twenty-five years ago, Col. Roosevelt shook hands with all the Americans present and accepted a bouquet for Mrs. Roosevelt. Then they drove away in a cloud of dust, raised by their ancient equipage, while a jostling cracked his whip and the bells jangled merrily, awakening to unusual animation the sleepy town.

Route Is Picturesque.

The sensational pilgrimage to the Italian Riviera continued through Borghetto to Vars, where the first halt was made for lunch, and then to Rapallo, where the night will be spent. To-morrow the road to Chiavari and Genoa will be taken.

While in Spezia, Col. Roosevelt alluded to the money wasted on military armaments, and said he contemplated referring to the subject in his forthcoming lectures, when he will try to find a formula for the limitation of armaments.

Reid to Meet Roosevelt.

London, April 7.—It is understood that Ambassador Reid will meet Col. Roosevelt somewhere on the continent and will probably accompany him to England.

Miss Nellie Anheuser Objects to Enormous Dental Bill.

Chicago, April 7.—Miss Nellie Anheuser, member of the St. Louis brewing family and heiress to millions, whose pin money is said to be $50 a week, told to-day of her experience with bailiffs and lawyers who sought to collect a dental bill for Dr. Robert Good.

Some time ago Miss Anheuser had dental work done by Dr. Good. He charged her $3 an hour. The bill has never been paid.

When she came to Chicago last night to attend the opera, Dr. Good attached her trunks, including the one containing the gown she was to wear to the show. After frantic appeals for help, Edward F. Meyer gave bond to the bailiff.

Prohibition Ticket Entered.

Indianapolis, April 7.—The Indiana prohibitionists to-day adopted a platform and placed a ticket in the field. All the speeches were aimed at the Republican convention, which ignored the local option law. The orators prophesied that there would be large gains for the prohibitionists because the Republicans had shown the "white feather." The platform demands State-wide prohibition.

Pensacola, Fla., April 7.—Maintaining a speed of thirty-six miles an hour for four hours, the torpedo boat destroyer Reid established a new world's record for speed by a naval vessel to-day. The vessel was on her final speed test and carried a board of naval officers from Washington.

The Reid not only established a new world's record, but did so by over a mile an hour.

FIGHT ON NEGRO BILL.

Maryland Governor Importuned to Veto Measure.

Baltimore, April 7.—Great pressure is being brought upon the governor to veto the Digges election bill, which modifies the drastic provision in the bill by including a property qualification under which negroes could register, to go through. Democratic lawyers are confident that an election held under the proposed law would be set aside.

Already word has been received from Washington that Congress intends to amend the Federal statute so as to hasten consideration of the Maryland law in the Federal courts, with a view of bringing the case to the Supreme Court without delay. The governor has not yet signified his intention of signing the bill, but it is thought he is inclined to approve it.

ALBAUGH, JR., DEAD.

Son of Baltimore Actor and Manager Ill Ten Days.

Baltimore, April 7.—John W. Albaugh, Jr., son of the late John W. Albaugh, actor and theatrical manager, died here to-night of acute Bright's disease, at the Union Protestant Infirmary. He came here March 23 to witness a performance at Albaugh's Theater, and complained of feeling badly. The next day he went to Old Point Comfort, but did not improve. Yesterday he returned and went to the hospital.

Mrs. Albaugh was with him when he died. She was his second wife, and before her marriage was Mrs. Henry Carleton. Her stage name was Olive May.

Mr. Albaugh was divorced by his first wife, who is now Mrs. Galtier, of this city. He inherited his talent for the stage from his father. His aunt is the famous Maggie Mitchell. His mother, Mary Mitchell, also won fame on the stage.

John W. Albaugh, Sr., who died on February 12, 1903, purchased the Lyceum Theater in 1890, where he started the stock company that afterward became famous. After some years the management was turned over to John W. Albaugh, Jr., who gave it up in 1900, since which time the theater has been called Albaugh's and has been leased to different companies.

New Orleans, April 7.—At a mass meeting to-night it was decided that Congress should be asked to hold the exposition to celebrate the completion of the Panama Canal in New Orleans.

A general committee of 500 was created, which will meet to-morrow to take out a charter and form a permanent exposition company.

It was the sense of the meeting that $1,000,000 should be raised by subscription and $5,000,000 by a special exposition tax. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars was subscribed as a preliminary fund to carry on at once the work of organization and publicity.

BIG LINE ABANDONED.

Pacific Company Refuses Terms of Secretary Dickinson.

San Francisco, Cal., April 7.—Bates and Chesbrough announced to-day that they are forced to abandon their plans for an independent steamship line to the Isthmus in competition with the Pacific Mail, owing to the refusal of Secretary of War Dickinson to guarantee that their cargoes would be received by the government over the Panama Railroad and the government steamship line on the Atlantic, after he had asked them to bond themselves to finish cargoes.

This kills the chance of a competing steamship line to the Isthmus. In answer to their telegram to Secretary Dickinson, offering to start service at once on the same terms enjoyed by the Pacific Mail, providing one-half the space of the Panama Steamship Company, both east and west bound, would be allotted to them, Bates and Chesbrough received to-day the following telegram from Secretary Dickinson:

"Will give you same terms and conditions as Pacific Mail. Will require efficient service and sailings from you at least every two weeks. Can make no arrangements relative to cargo space."

Mr. Bates said to-night: "No one could feel justified in putting on three steamships to haul cargo down there if he has not the assurance that it would be received."

Death Prevents Remarriage.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Covington, Va., April 7.—A telegram was received here this morning, stating that Dr. J. J. Ellis, a prominent dentist, died suddenly at St. Joseph Hospital, Philadelphia. Several years ago Dr. Ellis was divorced, and about two weeks ago a reconciliation had been effected. He left here with the intention of being remarried. He became ill en route.

TABLEAUX CHARM
SMART AUDIENCE
AT D. A. R. HALLDescendants Appear on Stage in Historic Dress.

SCENES ARE BRILLIANT

President and Mrs. Taft Accompanied by White House Party.

Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney's Artistic Efforts Noted in Posing of Characters, Color Scheme, and Beautiful Effect of Each and Every Picture—Display of Quaint Gowns, Coiffures Wonderful as Clothes.

Society, in its most gorgeous raiment, filled Continental Memorial Hall last night for the benefit of the House of Mercy, which is maintained through the benevolence and activity of a corps of women of means and philanthropy.

The entertainment was a beautiful one of twelve tableaux—scenes from historic incidents from the time that Pocahontas saved the life of John Smith to the birth of the Stars and Stripes by Betsy Ross. Ancestors distinguished in the republic were represented by their descendants, who wore the identical clothes of these famous men.

The President and Mrs. Taft, their house guests, Mrs. More, Mrs. Eakstein, and Miss Anderson, escorted by Capt. Butt and Lieutenant Commander Palmer, occupied seats in the front side row, and were appreciative spectators.

Beautiful Effect Produced.

Mrs. Barney's artistic hand was noted in the posing of characters, the color scheme, and the general beautiful effect of each and every picture. The display of quaint gowns, poke bonnets, lace faces, dainty old-fashioned silks and jewels was elaborate. The beauty of Washington seemed veritably on parade. At no time has there been so many handsome women and girls in one gathering. The coiffures were as wonderful as the clothes.

Miss Roberts Ames danced between the pictures. Her dancing was graceful and her costumes quaint and becoming. An improved curtain of artistic green was arranged across the large stage in front of the boxes.

The first tableau was preceded by a short explanation by Miss Jean Walsh and an introductory Indian dance given by Miss Ames. The subject was "Capt. John Smith Teaching the Little Pocahontas to Read, in 1577." It was arranged by Mrs. Andrews, nee Minnigrode, the well-known artist and wife of an equally noted painter. Its cast was as follows:

Capt. John Smith, Mr. Carl Rakemann; Pocahontas, Miss Mary Lord Andrews (a direct descendant of Pocahontas); Indian women, Miss Alice Reading, Miss C. C. Critcher, and Miss Harriet Douglas; an Indian maiden, Miss Charlotte Harding; an Indian brave, Mr. Spencer N. Nichols; Indian children, Miss Frances Hopkins and Miss Margaret Hooe.

A recitation by Miss Walsh described the next tableau, "The Last Meeting of Pocahontas with the Great Captain, in England, 1616." Its cast was as follows: Pocahontas, Miss Marjorie Skelting; the great captain, Mr. Carl Rakemann; ladies of the court, Mrs. Emmons, Mrs. Fremont-Smith, Miss Johnston, Miss Hinkley, and Miss Mason; Sir Walter Raleigh, Maj. Pierre Stevens, U. S. A.; John Rolfe, Mr. William Bowie Clarke; the Earl of Leicester, Lieut. Hall, U. S. A.; pages, Miss Fremont-Smith, Master Fremont-Smith, and Master Bell.

Gives Minuet Dance.

This was under the personal direction of Mrs. Barney and was an effective picture. It was followed by a minuet dance by Miss Ames. Another picture, under the personal direction of Mrs. Barney, was "Benjamin Franklin at the Court of Louis XVI," which was a brilliant scene. The cast was as follows:

Benjamin Franklin, Mr. Koehler; Louis XVI, Mr. Christian Hemmick; Marie Antoinette, Miss Jennings; ladies of the court, Mrs. David Porter, Mrs. John, Bidle, Mrs. Duryee, Miss Dorothy Williams, Miss Perkins, Miss McCloskey, Miss Mason, and Miss La Lande; courtiers, Mr. Robert Fleming, Lieut. Edgerton, U. S. A., and Lieut. E. P. Constein, U. S. N.

The fourth tableau was "Martha Washington's Reception," the story of which was read by Miss M. B. Henry and arranged by Mrs. Barbour Walker. The cast was as follows:

Martha Washington, Miss Dorothea Rich; Gen. Washington, Mr. Edgar Priest; Miss Chew, Miss Mary Chew; Nellie Custis, Miss Constance Kane; Miss Bingham, Miss Estelle Kane; Mrs. Sedgwick, Miss Virginia Le Seure; Sophia Chew, Miss Ruth Gardner; Mrs. Clinton, Miss Mary MacLennan; Mrs. Izard, Miss Frances Brooks; Mrs. Cutler, Miss Hulda Jacobs; Mrs. Otis, Miss Isabella Banks; Mrs. Rufus King, Miss Sally Thompson; Miss Whitthrop, Miss Phyllis Schuyler; Miss Haverham, Miss Ruth Reynolds; Mrs. Van Rensselaer, Miss Margaret Newcomb; Mrs. John Jay, Miss Effie Porter; Mrs. Robert Morris, Miss Rebecca Johnston; Thomas Jefferson, Mr. Karl Minnigrode; John Jay, Mr. Comstock; Jonathan Trumbull, Dr. Henry Henchels; Arthur Middleton, Mr. Van Law.

The story of the fifth scene was read by Miss Anna Vernon Dorsey. The subject was "The American Minister at the court of Napoleon." The part of James Monroe, afterward President of the United States, who was presented at the court of France by the American Minister, Robert
