Borden, the millionaire condensed milk manufacturer, who was "kidnapped" from a New Jersey sanatorium last Wednesday, was restored to her father at the Hotel Touraine today by Detective Raymond J. Burns, of the Burns' Detective Agency in New York.

The girl was kidnapped by two women, Mrs. W. J. White, wife of the chewing gum manufacturer, and by another woman, believed to be Mrs. T. T. Backe, of New York. They were traced through four States by the Burns detectives and a four-day chase ended when Raymond Burns knocked on the door of a room in the Hotel Vendome and his summons was answered by Miss Borden herself.

Mrs. White, who brought the girl to Boston, fled from the city and left Miss Horden alone, after learning that they had been traced. Where Mrs. White is now is not knwn.

Women Ask for Girl.

The underlying motive of the kidnap-ping is found in a strange tale of the fascination of a woman for a girl. Mr. Borden said this afternon: "I believe Mrs. White had a hypnotic influence over my daughter."

Certainly the history of the woman's pursuit of the millionaire's daughter cannot be explained except on the ground that there was a strong bond of friend-ship between the two. Miss Borden when found was in an extremely nervous condition. She and her father will spend Sunday with a friend in one of the suburbs of Boston, and Monday will return to New York. Mr. Borden is undecided where he will put his daughter to protect her from Mrs. White's persecution. Neither has he de-cided whether to prosecute Mrs. White for her abduction
