Christianity and War.

By REV. JOHN E. BRIGGS. It is doubtful if there is an active Christianity and War! There is much confusion concerning it in the public mind. Therefore every Chris-tian should study the matter in the hotel man in the United States who has more friends and acquaintances than George W. What shall we say of war? Is it right? Is it necessary? Is it Christian? Or is it everywhere unnecessary, un-Christian and wrong? The world gives a divided answer.

world gives a divided answer.

Jesus came not primarily to build up a state, but to create a new disposition in the hearts of non out of which future states should ome.

Jesus said to Pilate: "Ma kingdom is not of this world. To this end was I born into the world that I should bear witness to the truth."

Jesus was a teacher, not a state official. Men who follow Jesus must give up the savage principle of retailation. They must forgive their enemies and obey the golden law of love.

But is this the law of states?

Is it right to secure order and justice in Washington? What makes Washington a desirable place for decent people? Schools and church do, you say. Well, they help, but are not alone sufficient.

but are not alone sufficient.

We need schools and churches plus public opinion and police force. As things are now we could not live without policemen. Insane men, brutalized men, defective men, ruffians and desperadoes come here and these men would be kept from outrage and violence only by the iron hand of the law.

Take the police force from here

Take the police force from here and we would have pandemonium in twenty-four hours. What is a policeman but a soldier? His value lies in the fact that he is armed. lies in the fact that he is armed. Wherever he goes he carries a club and a gun. The club is made inconspicuous but it is a club—heavy enough to crack a man's skull. The gun, though shortened and carried in his pocket is a gun just the same and a gun that can kill.

toria, of New York, then the rendezvous of wealth and fashion. The very best people, using the term as indicating men and women of real accomplishment, made the Victoria their New York home. The large hotels farther up town made inroads, but as the business prospered, so did George Sweeney. He is now managing director of the Ansonia, and also of the Hotel Kimball, at Springfield; but his chief concern just now is to get the new Commodore ready for occupancy by next fall.

The Commodore will be the world's most commodious hostelry. With accommodation for thousands, with a service that will be unequaled, with furnishings that will challenge the admiration of all, with a central location in the heart of things doing, it will be the meeting place of the millions who go to New York.

rioters and mobs.

We must have State policemen. A Big Shopper.

Mr. Sweeney has been termed "the greatest shopper in the world," and his excellent taste for fine furnishings and appropriate settings is only equalled by his rare ability to buy. For instance, one order for silver alone was for 160,000 pieces, and totalled over $250,000.

We must have State policemen. A body of men under command of the government, everyone of whom is trained to shoot and capable of using steel in putting down frenzied mobs. If the State must protect itself so must the nation. Not one locality must be unguarded nor one citizen left exposed. In other words the nation was the nation when relievement and the protection of the state policemen. and totalled over $250,000.

Complete equipment to accommodate and serve 4,000 persons in one day has been installed. The laundry will turn out 75,000 pieces of flat work daily, and there will be over 1,250,000 pieces of linen necessary. Other figures that astonish are 86,000 yards of carpet; a telephone equipment with 200 trunk lines and fifty operators.

Picture to yourself a hotel with 2,000 rooms, every one with a bath. "Two and a half for a room and a bath" will be the commodore slogan. The ball room, the largest in the world, will when used for a banquet seat 2300 will when used for a banquet seat 2,200 persons. Every floor will have its own clerk. There will be running ice water in every room, and the temperature of the rooms will be regulated by the guest-and a thermometer.

Patience and Tact.

It takes a man of patience and tact and rare ability to run a big hotel nowadays. These qualifications are Mr. Sweeney's, but his greatest talent is an ability to select subordinates. Courtesy and efficiency are Sweeney slogans. He has installed in New York a welfare department which will have charge of all research work incidental to securing the service of the best available help.
