"MY ADVICE TO MY DAUGHTER." KEEP UP TO DATE AND GROW BOTH IN SPIRIT AND BODY

Miss Gordon and her daughter reading a newspaper.

By KITTY GORDON.

Dear Vera:

The old-time days when a woman didn't know anything about baseball or politics and only read the society and home cooking departments in the daily newspapers, are dead and buried.

Remember this, my dear, and whatever else you do keep right up-to-date.

The best way to keep up-to-date and to know what's doing and why it's doing is by reading the daily newspapers.

Pay particular attention to the business departments in the paper. Every woman nowadays must be more or less of a business woman.

If she is a housewife she has to be a good business woman to make her household money buy the most it is possible capable in these days of high prices. If she is an office worker she has to be familiar with business routine, with the methods of filing correspondence and many other details of business. If she is on the screen she must be familiar with contracts and all that sort of stuff. So you see, my dear, how essential it is for a modern woman to be familiar with business operations.

Keeping up-to-date keeps one young, too. People who continually live in the past, who are always reminiscing about the dear old days, rapidly lose interest in the present. And, once having lost interest in the present, one soon comes to feel that the best of life has been lived. And that means you're getting very, very old in spirit if not in body.

Keep up-to-date. It is one of the very best ways to get the utmost out of life.

Your devoted mother, KITTY.

(In her next letter Miss Gordon will advise her daughter—"Don't be cynical—but watch your step.")

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Wednesday of Miss Lascelle J. Meserve and Nicholas de Basilly, counselor of the Russian embassy in Paris, was cabled from Paris. The engagement of Mr. and Mrs. de Basilly was announced to their friends in Washington the middle of last month, but no date announced for the wedding, so the event comes as a surprise to their friends here. The wedding ceremony was performed at the Russian embassy church in the presence of a number of prominent Americans and of the Russian colony in Paris.

Mr. Meserve and his daughter, whose death occurred a short time ago in Paris, are closely identified with Washington society, their home on R street.

HOW TO GET THERE By DOROTHY DIX. The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer. (Copyright, 1919, The Wheeler Syndicate.)

A young woman who is just starting out in business asked a very successful business man the other day if he would point out to her the way to success.

"What must a girl do to get on in a business office?" she asked. "Some girls stay put at the same salary and in the same position year after year," he said, "while other girls climb up to private secretariats, and to being heads of departments, and places of importance with good salaries. When I talk it over with the girls they always speak of pull and favoritism, and hint at scandals between the boss and the favored one. I don't believe this, and what I want to know is what a girl must do in order to advance herself. What qualities is it in her that attracts her employer's favorable notice?"

"There is no royal road to success," replied the man, "and this is true of a woman just as much as it is of a man. There is no sex in work, and fitness is the only thing that enables a girl to get a good place and hold it."

"She must know her job down to the bottom. She must be reliable and dependable, and show that she has energy and grit and determination."

"Aside from the fundamentals of business, however, there are a lot of points that are worth the consideration of every girl in business because they score for her or against her."

"The first of these is time. The girl who works with her eye on the clock never gets to the top of the ladder. In my office, out of the forty girls I employ there are thirty-nine who never get in until the last minute."

"The forty-first girl's work is really no better than that of several of the other come-late-and-go-early girls, but I have advanced her over all of their heads."

"Another point I would call to the attention of the girls is the necessity of working while they work, and giving their whole attention to their job, instead of half working and using only half of their minds."

"A third point that I would implore girls to consider is the necessity of accuracy, and of establishing a record of reliability."

"Another point that I would call the girls' attention to is the fact

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JENNIE'S MUMPS.

By HOWARD R. GARIS. (Copyright, 1919, The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily started off through the woods after taking Grandpa Goosey Gander a lemon pie, toward his hollow stump bungalow, and he was wondering what would happen when all of a sudden he heard a rustling in the bushes and there was the bad old Pipseswah.

Yes, there he was, as bold and unpleasant as ever, and he grinned, trying to look cheerful like he saw Uncle Wiggily.

"Again we meet, I see!" he cried, as he caught the bunny by the ears.

"Yes, and I am sorry for it," spoke Mr. Loonzers. "What are you going to do with me?"

"I shouldn't think you'd have to ask!" gurgled the Pip. "You ought to know by this time! I'm going to take you off to my den and trim all the house off your ears. I haven't had any in a long time, and the last time I tried to catch you, why, you got away."

Just then, all at once, there was another rustling noise in the bushes.

"I guess that's my friend, the Skeezicks!" said the Pip. "He'll be just in time to have some of your sauce, Uncle Wiggily. Hello, there, Mr. Skeezicks! Come and help me eat this bunny's sauce!" called the Pip.

But when the bushes parted, out came, not the tall and lanky Skeezicks, but little Jennie Chimpunk. There was a strange look about her, and Uncle Wiggily could not at first tell what it was. Jennie seemed pleased at seeing the bunny, but she appeared frightened when she noticed the Pip. But as for that bad chap, no sooner had he seen the little Chimpunk girl than he let go of Uncle Wiggily, and clapping his paws to his face the Pip cried:

"Oh, don't give 'em to me! Don't make me catch 'em! Oh, run along and take Uncle Wiggily with you! Don't come near me! I can stand anything but the mumps!" and with that the Pip jumped over backward into the bushes and was soon out of sight.

So everything came out all right, and if the piano doesn't try to hang its legs over the music rack and make believe it's dancing with the butter knife, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the snow flakes.

HOROSCOPE.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1919. (Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

For evil this day, according to astrology, for evil this day, according to astrology. In the evening Mercury is in benefic aspect.

It is a way under which to be careful in all matters of importance until toward sundown when the rule changes.

While this configuration prevails there is likely to be a recurrence of gossip of all sorts. Past rumors will be revived and new scandals promulgated. This adverse influence will reach the social, business and financial world.

The eastern part of the United States will be more affected by the bad influences than the west.

The rule is not a promising one for the peace and prosperity of manufacturers in cities near the Atlantic seaboard.

Danger of accidents in aerial navigation is supposed to be increased by this direction of the stars.

Persons of high-strung natures should safeguard their minds against a planetary government that inclines toward dependency and depression, which is not personal but universal.

The evening should be a most auspicious time for the signing of contracts and agreements, since Mercury is in a place that makes for justice and profit.

Clerks and bookkeepers have the best possible direction of the stars during the evening hours. The stars declare that there will be enormous demand for specialists who can carry heavy responsibilities.

There is a sign read as sinister, since it seems to forecast hunger and suffering among the poor, who will resort to desperate measures to escape starvation. America as well as foreign countries may be affected.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of much success in business affairs during the coming year. Those who are employed will benefit.

Children born on this day are likely to be clever, popular, industrious and successful. These subjects of Sagittarius often are rash and impulsive, but they generally succeed.

Virginia Lee's Personal Answers To Herald Readers' Questions

The Holiday season is upon us and everyone is seeking suggestions for Christmas remembrances, for this is the first real Christmas we've had for several years. The idea of saving seems to have swept off of the continent just as surely and rapidly as it swept over and people are saving their money to buy all sorts of lovely things.

Perhaps in realization of this, perhaps on account of the crowds that have thronged the gift-shops and departments heretofore, gift-carrying stores are appearing almost overnight. These, by the way, are furnished with a goodly store of some perfectly new and attractive moderately-priced gems which anyone would welcome for Christmas.

Pictures are again coming into their own as acceptable gifts and several of the newer standbys grace the windows and walls of many of the shops, some as low as $6.50 in the frames.

The florists have come to the realization that even though flowers will always head the list as the gift that is most often suitable, unique styles are acceptable. Have you seen any of the attractive little boutonnières fixed in paper holders and adorned with chic ribbon bows? No longer do we have to order flowers and search for a basket to hold them. Upon entering a florist's shop baskets of flowers are seen here and there and some very attractive ones far below the $5.00 mark.

Among the little shops coming to life, is one dealing with Indian novelties, one in odd bits of pottery, a toy shop and even a candy store is showing gift boxes containing perfume and fresh sweets.

If you are interested in any of the suggestions above send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will furnish you with the names of the stores referred to. Watch this page for shopper suggestions.

Dear Miss Lee—Can you tell me which side of the brain is supposed to control the movements of the right hand?—PLENCES.

The left side of the brain is supposed to control the movements of the right hand. You should consult a book on physiology or hygiene covering such matters.

2 Eggs, Yolks only
1 pint of Mazola
1 teaspoon of Mustard
1 dash of Pepper
1 teaspoon of Salt
4 tablespoons of Vinegar

Have all ingredients and mixing utensils cold. Mix dry ingredients. Add egg yolks and when well mixed, add 1/2 teaspoon of vinegar. Add Mazola drop by drop until the mixture begins to thicken, beating slowly. As soon as the mixture thickens, add the remainder of the vinegar a little at a time. Now beat in the remainder of the Mazola gradually until all is used. The mayonnaise should be thick enough to hold its shape. Put in a glass jar and cover close.
