

U. S. MISSION SEES FILIPINOS IMPROVE SINCE FIRST TRIP
Visit Recalls Americans' Invasion of Island Back in 1903.
(Special Cable to The Washington Herald and Chicago Tribune.)
By PHILIP KINSLEY.
MANAO, P. I., Aug. 9.—Three American army officers, who came down a street in the Tamilaran the afternoon a cool gray mist from Lake Lanao, 2,000 feet above the sea, were looking at the Filipinos about their legs. Around them in the bright sunlight were the men in bright tunics crowded the windows and doorways. Down at the bottom of the hill, Leonard Wood and Wm. Cameron Forbes were holding a session on one of the old Spanish subways with the chiefs and daughters of the tribes.
Recalls 1903 Incident.
Walking through the rain, Col. McCoy pointed out a clump of trees to the Tribune's correspondent. In 1903, he said, the Americans came here with an infantry regiment and a troop of cavalry and several pieces of artillery. In every tree in the clump which he pointed out he said an enemy rifleman was concealed. The Americans had to fight bitterly for every foot of this territory.

As we walked along we could hear children in a nearby school and we stepped in. In one room two Filipino teachers had charge and they asked the children to read their lessons to the officers. If it were not for the dark-skinned youngsters one would almost have thought he was in a grade school at home. The school house was made from lumber obtained from an old army camp in the province.
This same officer had taken part in the fighting which the sultan of the district and 200 of his followers were killed. Now they return to peaceful countryside. This is a tangible result of American occupation. Similar results may be observed all through the province.
At Kolambagan we came across the first of a series of farm schools. Across the street from the school, a hill of old regime stood out in marked contrast to the spirit of progress as typified by the educational institution. There an old chief who had refused to become modernized lived in a small dirty cottage with his eight wives. Babies were everywhere. Two or three of his younger wives came out and furnished little musty for their visitors by beating a tontom and banging on metal pans. The women wore single piece garments which were always on the point of falling off. They had black belts and black black tied feet.
The mission met several Moro chiefs at Camp Keithley. They said they were getting along all right and that they liked their Filipino governor. What they really meant, they said, was independence for the Moros.

COWBOY'S LARIAT GETS NEGRO THIEF

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—One of the Wild West fiction writers, William Fitzpatrick, a cowboy for Swift and Company, and lassoed a negro bandit in a crowded street yesterday.
Fitzpatrick was returning to the stable from his lunch when he saw William Smith and Thomas Hill run out of a haberdashery with the powder following and shouting "Stop thief."
The cowboy spurred his horse through the crowd, swung his lariat and it fell on Smith, who stopped abruptly.
Then Fitzpatrick trotted to the nearest police station with Smith on the end of the rope. Hill followed Smith and Hill had attempted to rob the cash register.
FEDERAL ACTION ON KLAN FORESEEN
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Federal intervention to curb alleged activities of the Ku Klux Klan, if measures by State authorities fail, was forecast yesterday by the American Civil Liberties Union in a letter to the State government of Texas.
"We respectfully submit that if State governments are unable to cope with lawlessness of this character, Federal intervention will be inevitable," stated the letter, which called upon Texas authorities to "take drastic steps" to curb the "mob activities" of the Klan.

SAYS U. S. NEEDS IMMIGRANTS TO CULTIVATE MORE LAND

Gen. Badoglio, Italian Hero, Points to Danger in Rapid Growth of Cities.
CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The United States immigration law, which restricts the number of immigrants from Europe to a small number, is harmful to the interests of this country.
This is the view of Gen. Pietro Badoglio, chief of staff of the Italian army, expressed here today. Gen. Badoglio is one of Italy's most noted military experts, and is idolized by his countrymen for the part he took in bringing about the military collapse of Austria-Hungary, for which many historians of the war give him credit.
Sees Need of More Farming.
"American cities are growing at a remarkable rate," he said. "This growth must be checked at its source or it will become a hard time. At the same time there are great stretches of farm land which I have seen between here and New York. I noticed in a big moment of fact that workers grind away at one little detail of labor so hard they are unfit for anything else. One of the directors told me artificial amusements had to be installed to distract laborers' minds from their daily tasks. This would be impossible with the volatile Italian temperament."

"I believe the United States ought to admit them without reserve. If necessary a contract could be made between the individual immigrant and the United States before he leaves Europe pledging him to take up agricultural work here. Other immigrants who go to the cities undoubtedly should be restricted. Gen. Badoglio, who is a tall blond man, exactly the opposite of the type of the average Italian, also declared that the American workman is specializing too much in one branch of industry.
"I have been impressed by the terrific strain of work in American factories," he said. "To all intents and purposes you have forced labor to do a job of a lifetime. I noticed in a big moment of fact that workers grind away at one little detail of labor so hard they are unfit for anything else. One of the directors told me artificial amusements had to be installed to distract laborers' minds from their daily tasks. This would be impossible with the volatile Italian temperament."

BIG BLIMP ARRIVES AT LANGLEY FIELD

Mechanics Busy Assembling Huge Airship Purchased From Italy.
NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 9.—The world's largest blimp is being assembled at Langley Field in preparation for its trial flight under the guidance of United States navy pilots.
The Roma, recently purchased from the Italian government, reached the field late yesterday from its trip across the ocean by steamer. A huge force of mechanics and carpenters are busy assembling the huge "bird" and remodeling a special hangar that will house it.
One and three-quarter times as large as any other blimp the Roma has a displacement of 1,200,000 cubic feet. It is 125 meters long, 27 1/2 high and 25 wide. It carries 24 tons, or 15 tons over the weight of its engines and equipment. It has a cruising radius of 8,000 miles and a speed of sixty miles an hour. Six huge motors of a total horsepower of 2,400 propel it.
Although it was first stated trial flights might be made this week, officers in charge of assembling today said it might be two months before the initial trip would be made.
Maj. J. G. Pharnell will be in command.

$100,000 DIAMOND THEFT ON TRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Police of the New York Central Railway today hunted for M. Bender, of Brooklyn, who played cards with Max Levy, a Chicago jewelry merchant, shortly before Levy lost a brief case containing $100,000 in diamonds on the Twentieth Century limited yesterday. After the card game, Levy retired to his berth and tucked the brief under his pillows. He says it was gone when he awakened, the empty brief case was lying on the car floor and a small toilet case that had been stored inside was mysteriously returned to the berth while he was awakening the entire car with his lamentations over the theft.
An alleged theft of a trunk containing $75,000 worth of diamonds (belonging to Lazarus & Weil, Chicago diamond brokers, was revealed today with the arrest in Fond Du Lac, Wis., of Loren B. Houck, alias Peter J. Smith. The trunk disappeared yesterday from the station platform at Plymouth, Wis., and was in possession of Houck when he was arrested.

BRYCE REASSERTS TREATY CRITICISM BEFORE INSTITUTE

Englishman Discusses Instances, and Answers Tittoni.
WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 9.—Viscount Bryce, reasserting his belief in the existence of errors in the territorial provisions of the various treaties negotiated at Paris, but limiting his criticism to more specific points than in his first survey, undertook today before the Institute of Politics a general study of the causes of war.
Viscount Bryce took occasion, also, to reply courteously but firmly to Tommaso Tittoni, president of the Italian senate, who arrived in Williamstown the night after Lord Bryce's remarks on the territorial arrangement between Italy and Austria and lost not a moment in taking an eloquent issue with the English statesman. Signor Tittoni quoted Dante to make his point regarding the Tyrol. Lord Bryce invoked the spirit of axzini, and said that were that Italian patriot alive today he would confidently leave the decision to him.
Forgot Their Promises.
According to Lord Bryce, the powers represented at Paris seemed sometimes to forget the promises made to recognize the principles of nationality and self-determination, and by the treaties left some grievances unredressed and created other grievances that did not exist before, thus sowing the seed of future trouble.
Hungary, because of her age-old policy of isolation, was ill-prepared for international relations of any sort, least of all such as she was forced into by the world war, but is now ready to profit by past mistakes and to seek the co-operation of other nations, Count Paul Teleki, former premier of Hungary, said tonight in opening his lectures before the Institute of Politics.
Count Teleki expressed gratitude at the spirit of sympathy shown by the United States for Hungary, and said this policy had been a great encouragement to his people.
Geographers' Criticisms.
"I could enter upon a detailed and specific criticism of the peace treaty of the Trianon," said Teleki, "but I will refrain from doing so, though you can readily believe that it is a great temptation for me to do it, not only as a Hungarian, as you would naturally think, but even more so as a geographer whose business it is to deal with territorial and boundary questions."
"The unusual spirit which has dominated the diplomacy of the United States in Hungary since the armistice has been most gratifying and encouraging to us. The thoughts uppermost in the minds of your representatives have obviously been: 'Hostilities have ceased. What interests have we Americans in common with the Hungarians? Let us work earnestly together along those lines and arrange our differences later.'"

CARUSO'S ITALIAN ESTATE CENTER OF LEGAL BATTLE

Tenor's Will Bequeathing Tuscany Property Invalid, as Gloria Isn't Mentioned.
ROME, Aug. 9.—The beginning of what will probably be a long-drawn-out legal battle between Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso and others of the tenor's relatives who claim a share in the Caruso estate came today with the opening of the will found in Florence in the hands of Dr. Vecchietti, administrator of Caruso properties in Tuscany.
The will, it was discovered when the seal was broken in the presence of attorneys representing Giovanni Caruso and Caruso's eldest son, now in America, is merely a copy of the 1919 will, executed in triplicate, and one copy of which is deposited with a New York firm. It is said to be invalid under Italian law, since no provision is made for Gloria, Caruso's little daughter.
Favored Brother and Son.
The will constituted Giovanni Caruso, the tenor's brother, and the two sons as principal heirs to the estate.
Mrs. Caruso was not present at the ceremony today, and was not represented by counsel. She has, however, already filed an appeal against the terms of this will, in behalf of herself and Gloria.
A greater part of Caruso's estate, other than interest in future royalties on phonograph records, is in property in Italy. This property, it is apparent, will be distributed under the Italian law, which is very lenient on the side of the widow and children of the deceased.
Delay Inevitable.
A tedious delay will ensue before the legal difficulties arising from the fact that Caruso failed to correct his will and bring it up to date with the advent of Gloria, can be adjudicated.
Mrs. Caruso has announced that after trips to Florence and New York to settle the American estate, she will take up her permanent residence at Naples with Gloria, in order to be always near Caruso's tomb.

NEXT WAR DISTANT, SAYS GEN. PERSHING

Tells of Importance in Developing Reserves for Future Army.
CAMP GRANT, ROCKFORD, ILL., Aug. 9.—There will be no war tomorrow, next day, nor next year, no man knows when it will come again," said Gen. John J. Pershing, in an address to 1,200 young civilian soldiers in the citizens' military training camp here.
"The reserves to which you belong were a joke before the war," said the general. "The relationship between the National Guard and the regulars was not what it should have been but today we are trying to bring together the old units of the National Guard and the regular army of 150,000 men."
"The great part of our army of the future will be composed of young men like yourselves in the reserves followed by the National Guard and the regular army of 150,000 men."

COUNTY DEMOCRATS RAP RACE GAMBLING

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Aug. 9.—Several hundred Democratic men and women met in the town hall in Upper Marlboro today and passed resolutions vigorously opposing "the powerful and menacing race track gambling political machine" and pledging their opposition to the nomination and election of any candidate for the State senate or house of delegates known to be favorable to permitting this race track evil to continue. The resolutions declared in favor of putting Prince Georges County on a cash basis and condemned the administration of the law in regard to the collection of personal taxes in the county.
A clause in the method of management of the Democratic party in the county was advocated and a demand was made that the sheriff be paid a salary instead of fees.
Alexander Gude read the call signed by forty prominent Democrats of the county. Leroy Humphrey was made permanent chairman, with Ernest Smith, secretary. The committee on resolutions was headed by Frank M. Stephens.
A committee appointed to recommend candidates for the senate, house of delegates and State central committee is composed of Robert J. Nelson, Queen Annes district; Harry E. Lundy, Brandywine; J. C.
