Gilmore's remarks: I went to Richmond with the Rev. Colonel Jaques, and went with the hope of making negotiations which might result in peace. If we should succeed, we thought that the consciousness of having served our country would pay our expenses. If we failed, we might still serve the country by letting the people of the North know what was the reason of our failure; for I went with propositions on the basis of which I might have made an arrangement for peace with Mr. Davis, and if we were unsuccessful, it would be useful for the country to know what propositions were rejected. We went to Richmond in an ambulance, and were three hours on the way after we entered the rebel lines. We entered Richmond at ten o'clk, and planted our white flag in the very heart of the rebel capital.

As we stopped, Judge Old, the rebel commissioner of exchange, directed Colonel Jacques to button up his overcoat, as it was dangerous to be seen with a blue uniform in the streets of Richmond. We were taken to a hotel, and shown up to "No. 60," a shabby room, with some fine furniture in very bad order. We were provided with supper, and directed how o apply for an interview with the President. The next morning we directed a note to Secreary Benjamin, asking an interview with the President, and were invited to call upon him, when we made an engagement to meet the President that evening, which was Sunday. On meeting our engagement, we were shown into the State Department, where we saw Mr. Benjamin, a small, plump, black-haired, blackeyed man, seated in his usual place, and at his right a pale, thin man, dressed in a suit of darkish gray, with a mouth and chin expres. sive of the greatest determination. We told him simply that we came without official authority, but knowing the opinions of our Government, to see on what terms peace might

Mr. Davis replied, quietly, withdraw your armies from our territory, and peace will follow of itself. We told him that the northern people would never agree to any plan which did not include the establishment of the Union. Mr. Davis said that we never could live in peace. The North had sowed such a bitterness between the two sections that we never could have peace in this generation.

We then urged upon him that it was his duty to use every effort to put an end to this mon-strous bloodshed. He acknowledged this, and declared that none of the blood shed in this war could he lay to his own charge. They, the South, were not fighting for slavery; they were fighting for independence, and independence or extermination they would have. We then tried to show him that the position of the rebel armies was such that it was better for them to give up the contest while they could do it with honor; but he was unwilling to admit that his armies were in such a desperate position. He laid the blame of the barbarity of this war entirely upon the North, utterly ignoring the instances of rebel barbarity which we brought to his notice. I then had a considerable conversation with Mr. Davis, in which I indirectly offered him the terms which I had been authorized to suggest; but as he did not show any disposition to meet me, I did not state them explicitly. These terms will be given in the newspapers in a short time. They were, in general, entire abolition, a general amnesty, no confiscation, the debts of the South to be ignored, the debts of the General Government to be borne by all the States. Mr. Davis declared that such terms could never be accepted by the Southern people, and rather than submit to them they would stake their whole property and their national existence.

Gray's Patent Molded Collars, Are universally pronounced the neatest and best fitting collars extant. The upper edge presents a perfect curve, free from the angles noticed in all other collars. The cravat causes no puckers on the inside of the turn-down collar; they are as SMOOTH INSIDE

AS OUTSIDE, and therefore rfeetly free and easy to the neck. The Garotte Collar has a smooth and evenly finished edge on bot, sides.

These Collars are not simply flat pieces of paper ent in the ferm of a collar, but are MOLDED AND SHAPED TO FIT THE NECK.

They are made in "Novelty," (or turn-down style;) in every half size from 12 to 17 inches, and in "Bureka," (or Garotte,) frem 13 to 17 inches; and packed in "solid sixes" in neat blue cartons. con aining 100 each; also in smaller ones of ten each—the latter a very handy package for travelers army and navy efficers.
