Third, Capacity sufficient to facet the requirements of the business of the post office. Only four buildings were named that, in the opinion of the committee, could be made suitable in any way for the purpose of a city post office. They were as follows: The Imperial hotel, on the north side of, E street, between 13th and 14th streets; the present Pension office, corner of 12th street and Pennsylvania avenue; the Lincoln hall building, corner of 9th and D streets, and the Seaton house, on Louisiana avenue, between 6th and 7th streets. All four buildings were rejected as being unsultable--the Seaton house being referred to as "of brick and wood, not fire-proof, of average construction, and seven stories high. The changes required to make this building suitable are impracticable." The committee recommended that a temporary fire-proof building, costing about $45,000, be erected on the open space at the Intersection of 7th street and Pennsylvania avenue, on the east side of 7th | EP street, or the purchase of a site in some other localty, and in conclusion said: "The question may be raised, why a permanent building should not be erected at once and avoid the outlay for a temporary one. Corcoran and fifteen hundred others (if. R. No. 71) authorizing the appointment of a commission to lease a building for a city post office in the city of Washington, D. C., was referred to the committee on public buildings and grounds and reported back on May 19th, and postponed until the st Monday in December of the same year. On May 20th a motion to reconsider was entered, and on the 23d of June the question of postponement was again taken up and the resolution as originally esented passed, and received the signature of the President on the 28th of June, 1879. Since my appointment as Postmaster six months ago, I have daily become more and more impressed Arlington. - Lieut, de Bodisco has returned from House yesterday to provide against fraud in the with the fact that the location of the city post office in the present building was a mistake, and that even if the immense business of the Washington Post Office could be accommodated at the time of its original occupancy, such business has grown so rapidly that it is to-day absolutely unfit for post office purposes. There is not a room in the building where the necessary work can be speedily and economically performed. The various divisions are parated in many parts of the building, and in ome cases a division has its work divided up in several puris. The registry division and money order division which should always be on the ground floor convenient to the public, are located on the second floor in inaccessible and out of the way places, it being necessary to pass through narrow dark haits to transact any business in these divisions, and, in fact, all the interior arrangements of the office are such that very little system, and hardly any personal supervision can be given to the work without much additional labor and time. The carrier division is so crowded and in receiving by her daughter, Miss Fleming, her cramped in the room assigned to it that it is impossible to accommodate the entire force of the office; one-fifth of the number of carriers being stationed at the branch offices at Capitol Hill and Georgetown, thus causing great delay, and unnecessary repetition in the handling of mail. The buildir has not a fire or burglar-proof vault, and the insuf-ficient number of safes allowed to the office makes t necessary to keep the entire stock of stamped enscribed by law for clerks of the circuit courts of the United States for like services and no more, and that no fee shall be demanded or received by said clerk from attorneys on their admission to practice in the Supreme Court, any rule order or custom to to meet the daily wants of the public and the de-partments, making it necessary to send frequent or-ders to the manufacturers. I believe the building to be absolutely unsuited in any way for a city post office, and further believe it to be unhealthy and injurious to the large number of persons constanly employed withinit, especially as thousands of pounds of waste material—condemned leather, jute and cotton sacks, besides the immense quantity of pouches and sacks necessary to keep quantity of pouches and sacks necessary to keep constantly on hand to supply other offices—are required to be stored in a damp and dark cellar. The three upper stories of the building are entirely unoccupied, but do not add in any way to the facilities of the office, as it is imperative that as much of the business as possible should be consolidated upon the main floor. The marriage of Miss Louise Taylor and Mr. Lyndon Stevens took place at the New-York-avenue Presbyterian church last evening at six o'clock, Rev. Dr. Bartlett officiating. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Harry Taylor, upon whose arm she entered the church. Her dress was of white Lyons satin, made with long train, over which fell the tulle veil. The entire front breadth was embroidered with leaves and flowers in white. Her jewelry was diamonds. Miss Taylor carried a large bouquet of white roses, loosely tied together with satin ribbon. The chancel of the church was filled with growing palms and ferns, about the reading desk. Upon the cushion on which the couple knelt were quantitles of roses and other cut flowers. The best man was Mr. Hood, of New York, who came over for the occasion. The ushers were Messrs Mc-Carty, Howard Goodrich, Theodore F. Dwight, J. E. Wilkins, Stanley Brown and E. S. Maunder. The most important fact that has been established is that the girl, with a German male companion, arrived in this city last Friday on a train. They visited two eating saloons in the vicinity of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western depot, and were closely observed by the proprietors. who identify the body quite positively. In an answer to questions the couple said they were from New York. The autopsy which was held yesterday afternoon by Drs. Way and Eldred revealed that the girl was in excellent health. Two wounds were found, one on the forehead and one back of the ear. which were calloused, would indicate that the de murder had been committed to hide another crime has been exploded by the result of the autopsy. The girl is said to have had a gold watch, go bracelets, a gold ring and some money. All of these were gone when the body was found. It is hardly possible that the deed was committed for purposes of robbery. The conductor of the "Wild Cat" train is likely to prove a very important witness, but he has not yet been found. The shoes worn by the deceased bore the mark of a New York manufacturer, whose goods are not handled in this General Foreign News by Cable. ROSA BONREUR WELL AGAIN.
