AUCTION.

On MONDAY, the TWENTY-SIXTH DAY OF MAY, 1884, at FIVE O'CLOCK, in front of the promises. I shall sell the following property: Part of square 73, subdivided into 14 lots: lots 1367, 1369 and 1361, improved by a hotel building, and lots G and H by a stone building, located as above. The three-st ry stable or barn on the east side is 77 feet long, 35 feet wide, and very substantial, and would make, with a little change, a fine machine shop, school-house, lecture or music hall. The yard is excavated six feet below the grade, and sawe-cost of d gging out basements. The sewerage facilities are the finest in the District, and is solely under the control of owner of the property. The drainage is complete, with splendid fall into the main sewer, which terminates on the premises. The location is the very center of business and thrift in West Washington, and where property is sought after for various kinds of mercantile pursuits and dwellings. It is also easy of access, being in close proximity to the street car kinds of mercantile pursuits and dwellings. It is also easy of access, being in close proximity to the street car lines. This property can be handled to great advantage in the hands of one person.

Terms: One-third cash; the balance in aix and twelve months, with notes bearing interest and secured by a deed of trust on the property sold. All conveyancing, &c., at purchaser's cost. Fifty dollars deposit required on each purchase at time of sale.

For plats of the property apply to the Auctioneer.

That the present sad condition of the interest which the convention represents is entirely due to adverse Congressional legislation, and that it will not again be prosperous until Congress reverses its action of last year and restores the tariff of 1867. The action of Congress last year was brought about by a few importers of foreign goods, who desired to use foreign productions as a whip to subdue and menace American producers. The address also attacks the policy of putting raw material on the free list.

The Post says:—The stock market was again weak, lower and unpromising during the entire forenoon, and by 12 o'clock all the active stocks showed declines ranging from 1 to 2½ per cent. The most conspicuous causes of depression are the further unsettlement of confidence in railroad management, generally by developments in consection with the generally by developments in connection with the Louisville and Nashville, the weakness of the London market for American securities and seiling here, both by the bears for short account and by some uneasy investors for long account. There was considerable buying of stocks in small amount at prices frequently higher than the general range, and this usually indicates investment buying on a small scale. But it was too small to have any effect on the market, to sustain prices. The mareffect on the market to sustain prices. The market for railroad bonds was only moderately active,

Telephone connection, 1029 7th street northwest, near L. Mr. Worthington answered that it had been shown JOSEPH C. LEE GOTTHER SONO, UNDERTAKER NO. 8 admission. The government expected to show that this man knew or must have known, that his wife was a public prostitute; that only a week or two before, when she came home late, he refused to let her in, and told her to go back and finish the night as she had commenced it, and she went to the station; that on one occasion he had in the presence of a party called her a —, and invited the man to use her. In addition, they would show that it was the custom of the woman to entice men from the street standing in her bay window, and throwing kisses at them, and even going so far as to embrace them on the street. They expected to show all this, and, further, that the derendant knew it.

Mr. Mackey said that it must be shown that these practices were connived at before they were relevant to the issue. It was necessary to show more than knowledge—connivance. He denied that any language attributed to Karcher could be construed into connivance, and said it was the language of rage. He denied that this testimony was admissible, for the defense was self-defense, and he further claimed that it must be shown that there was more than knowledge or connivance—that there was more than knowledge or connivance—that there was consent. The court said the point was one of much difficulty, and at the present time he could not rule the testimony inadmissible.
