Notary Public. The frequency of collisions and other disasters on the water, growing out of inadequate, mistaker or imperfectly understood signals, leads to the renection that it is time for the enforcement of more complete and reliable system of communication between vessels at night, in fogs, or under other dangerous conditions which are at any time likely to arise during a voyage. Indeed, it may be said that that time has existed from the very beginning of steam navigation, and that some nethod of asking and furnishing information which could neither fall nor be misunderstood under any exigency has not long since been devised and put use is little to the credit of those engaged or inerested in the carrying of passengers or traight might be somewhat difficult, though hardly impossible; but, happily, between these the case of vessels using steam. With the latter, however, there is no radical difficulty whatever and no decent excuse can be set up for the failure so far to invent and em-ploy a system which combines every element of ertainty in both transmission and interpretation. If no better means can be devised, it is perfectly easy to adapt the Morse alphabet system of electrie telegraphy to the uses of the steam whistle signal, and by that method to communicate as far as the sound can be heard and in a language that can not easily be misunderstood a message of any length or character. All, or nearly all tele raphie dispatches are now taken down from sound by the operators transcribing them, and it would be one of the simplest of matters to prepare a written formula establishing standard periods of actly as such characters are now communicated to and interpreted by the telegraph operator through the movement of the armature or action of the sounder" in the ordinary telegraph instrument.

the darkest night. The protectionist democrats receive cold comfort these days from the party. Thurman's ruggies against conviction on this point, that here will be no uncertainty as to the economic meaning of a democratic victory, and the confemnation of Representative Sowden by his constituents for his opposition to the Mills bill, indicates that the revenue tariff men mean, if possible, to hold the democratic party consistently to the policy of the President, and to beat down all opposition within the ranks. A new plan of camsign in the fisheries matter has been adopted by he Administration, and the lines between the two parties on this issue are at present somewhat E. G. In judging of the extent of the yellow fever ravages in Jacksonville and its neighborhood, it is vell to bear in mind that several of the cases which are reported may not be yellow fever strict-Whenever an epidemic settles upon a town embles it is called by its name, and timid persons, taken ill, mislead even their physicians by imagming symptoms which do not exist. Undoubtedly the yellow fever has got a foothold in Jackson ville which it will take time, patience and heroic measures to dislodge; but there is no cause for any widespread panic through the country o account of it. Meanwhile, the prudential measures adopted by the health authorities in cities even as far north as Washington are timely and wise, if for no other reason than that they remforce the public sense of security.

The correspondent who, in Saturday's STAR, called for a company of soldiers, in default of police, to patrol the section of the city south of G street and west of 25th street northwest, doubt less forgot that the city police force is, under the aw, made up of ex-soldiers and ex-sailors, and hat to demand soldiers is merely to dupilcate the cry for police. Perhaps the war veteran who may be imagined as protecting the section in ques tion is not yet sufficiently familiar with the city streets to cover his entire beat without risk of los ng himself, or perhaps the distance of the deserted section from headquarters is too great for nis aged limbs, to say nothing of the burly ruffians to be encountered there if the journey is made.

tings of Wall street look forward to the end of all things at a time when they are popularly supposed o have their minds wholly centered on the present. The Vanderbilt and Gould mausoleums ave been described at length in the newspaper and now Russell Sage is acquiring fresh fame from the size and beauty of the tomb he is preparing to build as the site of his final repose-or, to express the idea in the vernacular of Mr. Sage's own officewhere he can be "put" until Gabriel sounds his

THE EVENING STAR. "THE CAIM AFTER A STORM."

The roar of battle is over; there's a calm after a storm. We have time to look over the ground and to see the result of the battle. The Clothing Battle of April, May, June, July, and the best part of August has been fought, and, unlike the war of nations, all participants are business and finding favorable results; you, in the knowledge of satisfactory purchases and finding all our wares fully up to every representation made.

Just now we are busy preparing for the fall battle. Every train brings something new for us. Our buyers have all returned from their purchasing tours, and the result of their labors will soon be placed before you.
