ALL SHY OF CROKER

Invitations to Democratic Club's Banquet Bring Few Guests.

BIG PARTY LEADERS SEND REGRETS

Even Tammany's Small Fry Kick on the Expense.

OTHER GOTHAM GOSSIP

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star.

NEW YORK, March 16, 1899.

The dinner committee of the Democratic Club, so to speak, had a very hard time in getting a proposed dinner at the Metropolitan Opera House on April 13. Many of the district leaders, it is asserted, have mustered up courage enough to tell Richard Croker that the proposed feast is hurting Tammany Hall in the crowded East and West side districts, where many of the poor have to depend upon charity for coal and simple articles of food. The proposition to spend $10 on a dinner does not meet with any favor in these districts. Curiously enough the dinner does not seem to find much favor with the Tammany office holders. "Half of us," says a Tammany man, "have our salaries mortgaged to money brokers. This dinner will cost each of us about $20, and this is a big sum to many. We are compelled to spend both time and money at the Democratic Club and all agree that Mr. Croker is the most expensive leader for the boys we have ever had."

Outside of Tammany Hall there is also dissent. The letters of William J. Bryan and Chairman Jones, declining to attend the dinner unless Tammany should declare for the Chicago platform, is not nearly so disturbing to Mr. Croker and his friends as the evident intention of Tammany to state to boycott the affair. The leaders of the Erie county democrats, including Norman E. Mack, have decided that they will not attend, and have also written to the leading men in the western part of the state not to accept invitations. Norman E. Mack says: "Mr. Croker has not done the party any good, and that the dinner will do more harm. While the dinner committee has decided to invite former Gov. Hill, it is known that the statesman will not attend, which he made last Sunday to a prominent Brooklyn democrat. The inference has been drawn that the dinner is a waste of money of many notable men throughout the state."

McCallum on Havana Police Force.

Former chief of police John McCallum arrived here Wednesday from Havana.

"My work in Havana," says the chief, "has been highly satisfactory and personally gratifying. On March 1 I turned over to local authorities a well-uniformed, equipped and intelligent and efficient police force of 1,000 men, under the direction of General Moncel, the new chief of police. If they adhere to the teachings imparted and the rules of government I have given them, they will soon compare favorably with any like body of men in the country. When I reached Havana they had no police stations, no police headquarters, nor any suggestion of a system. When a man was arrested he would be taken to the house of the captain and get a hearing before a well-disciplined force, a headquarters and a station in each of the twelve districts into which I divided the city. One hundred and four miles of streets are now patrolled and policed as well as New York, and there are 200 night posts. On the 1st day of March my little army, all uniformed and drilled and perfected for their work after months of hard labor, paraded before the astonished and wondering gaze of all Havana. They were welcomed by all the civil and military dignitaries, and they formally turned the whole outfit over to the city and prepared to come home, leaving Detective Crowley behind to complete some details of the detective bureau."

Secrecy of Small Bills.

For a number of weeks past there has been a secrecy in New York banks of small bills, of the denominations principally $1, $2, $5 and $10. A bank which uses large amounts in these denominations has been offered to pay express charges on small bills which its western and southern correspondents can spare. A Boston bank recently wrote for $100,000 in small bills but was able to secure only $10,000. Other New York banks have not yet felt the effects of this scarcity, while that during the coming six months, when the flow of currency will be westward, some difficulty will be experienced. Unless some premium is offered to draw it back, there is a great deal of silver will have to be paid out. The inconvenience of all concerned. For the past two weeks and more, although the natural movement should have been outward from New York, Chicago exchange on New York is selling at 50 cents discount and Boston exchange on New York at 25 cents discount.

Demand for Obsolete Stamps.

Stamp collectors and dealers have exhausted the supply of sets of obsolete newspaper and periodical stamps sent to nearby first-class post offices from Washington to be sold at $5 a set. The sets allotted to the local post office were sold in two days. The post offices in Brooklyn, Jersey City, Newark, Paterson and Bridgeport quickly had their supplies all bought up, and word has come from Baltimore and other cities further away that none of these can be had at those places. Dealers report that there was a big demand for the stamps from Europe, which was not filled, as the American dealers to whom the European dealers wrote found that they themselves were not able to get all the sets that they desired. Many persons who are not systematic collectors of stamps bought these articles increased to such an extent that the number of sets to be sold was limited to 50,000. The purchases of this speculative nature ranged in different places from one to 100 sets. The sets are already being sold at a premium by the local stamp dealers. From $5.50 to $9 a set is charged for unselected sets, while for sets made up of especially fine selected copies $7.50 to $8 a set is asked. Fine copies are ones that have not been used, and are all four sides and are well centered; that is, the corners do not cut into the design of the stamp or approach it closely.

New Charity Scheme.

The newest thing in the charity line is a church setting up a new goods business. Calvary Episcopal Church of this city is about to undertake a novel experiment by the establishment of a store for the sale of dry goods in common use, such as gingham, checks and flannels. The purpose of the proposed parish store is to sell at reasonable rates goods which are in constant demand. It has been the custom of Calvary parish, in the scope of its operations among the poor under its care, to permit its parishioners to purchase at cost price certain articles from its stock of cloth provided for the regular work of the various organizations. The demand for these articles increased to such an extent that the idea of keeping a larger supply on hand was suggested, and naturally led to the plan of establishing a permanent store. Sales will be made on instalments, and no worthy person will be refused credit.

CONSIGNMENTS COMING

Many Quails for Breeding on the Way From the West.

Mr. Moreland Makes Some Valuable Suggestions About Their Care and How to Liberate Them.

Notifications are being received by Mr. Walter M. Moreland from his agents in Kansas that numerous consignments of live quails are about to be made to him, and the next two weeks will probably see all the orders filled. He expects to secure about 200 quails in pairs, and has already taken orders from sportsmen in this city and Maryland and Virginia for about 200 dozen. Mr. Randolph Rapley, who was the first to order birds, and who received his ten dozen last Saturday, liberating them next day on his father's country place, "Avenel," in Montgomery county, said today that the birds were as fine a lot as he ever saw, lively, active and plump, and he expected fine results.

Mr. Moreland is receiving inquiries from persons living as far north as New Jersey asking if he can secure quails for them for breeding purposes. Joseph Huff, deputy surrogate of Burlington county, N. J., wrote that the quail family was almost exterminated in that neighborhood, and that several farmers wanted birds. D. H. Mullin of the Danemara steel works, Philadelphia, also wrote to get birds.

How to Care for the Birds.

"I'll endeavor to fill all such orders," said Mr. Moreland, "and the birds are not until after I have supplied the wants of all our home folks and those near home. The Star seems to be read everywhere, because every letter I get speaks of The Star's articles. I wish you would make a suggestion to those who are going to get birds. Tell them, please, to prepare some kind of a place with earthen floor about 12 or 14 feet long and 6 or 8 feet wide, and to give guard in which to place the birds when released. The width of the enclosure makes the difference, as the birds like to run. I don't run like and Osgood Indian, and I don't run anything to beat one of these fellows. A bundle of wheat or rye straw should be put in the enclosure, so as to give the birds a chance to brush up against it and polish their plumage and clean it. They should be given plenty of water and fed with cracked corn and wheat."

Best Plan for Liberating.

"The best plan to follow in liberating the quails," continued Mr. Moreland, "is to put a pair of male and female, if they are to be released in couples, in a pasteboard box or a shoe box is good—and cut an opening in the end, which can be closed with the flap and easily torn off. After dark take the box out to the covered walk to release the birds in, and set it down, leaving off the flap at the end. Scatter some grain around the box, and if possible put a pile of rye or wheat straw nearby. In the morning the birds will peep out and seeing no one near will venture forth. They will find the grain and go to feeding and enter the straw and so on. They'll soon get used to the place. Keep away from the place for two or three days, only going at night to scatter more grain, and you'll find your birds will stay right there. The birds should be put out not less than 100 yards apart, and a longer distance would be better. Putting the birds in water before releasing them, as some people do, is simply brutal and does no good."

ASSEMBLY VS. GOMEZ.

What a Leading Havana Newspaper Has to Say on the Subject.

The following quotations from the Havana Advertiser, a leading paper of the Cuban capital, seem to show the general trend of public sentiment in that city with regard to the controversy between the so-called Cuban assembly and Gen. Maximo Gomez:

Gen. Gomez.
"There has been an attempt in some quarters to belittle Gen. Gomez, and very likely he does not conform in all respects to American standards. It must be remembered, however, that to the Cuban people Gomez is the great hero of the war for Cuban independence. He is rightly so regarded. The liberties which he has secured, and the evidence of his devotion to the cause of Cuba, and the fact that he insists on absolute independence for the island will outlast the more to liberty-loving American citizens."

Gen. Gomez has shown tact and good judgment which promise well for the future of the island. He is a man of war it is but natural to think that the Cuban people will want him to play an important part in the organization of the civil government. His military and political supervision, with the superior direction of the civil government of the island; as this would have put him in line for the execution of the laws, and the period of American military occupation.

"He should have been offered the presidency of the council of secretaries, provided that the council should be under his supervision, with the superior direction of the civil government of the island; as this would have put him in line for the execution of the laws, and the period of American military occupation."

Gen. Brooke's Instructions.

"Under instructions from Washington, Military Governor General Brooke has served formal notice upon the Cuban assembly that their acts will in nowise be recognized by the United States nor its representatives here, and that any loan the existing 'assembly' may attempt to float will be repudiated by the government of occupation and never with its consent approved by the Cuban provinces and municipalities."

"This will be a sad blow to Gen. Freyre-Adarade's political ambition, and a decided rebuke to those Cuban patriots who have been scheming to perpetuate the influence here of the Spanish Bank under a new name and reorganized upon the basis of a 'Cuba Libre' loan."

Gomez Aiding Us.

"Gomez, the patriot, general-in-chief, is holding cordial conferences daily with Military Governor General Brooke, and cheerfully co-operating with the United States authorities for Cuba's welfare. And the criticism of 'Cuban assembly' leaders does not worry him in the least."

Building Railways in China.
Minister Conger at Peking has transmitted to the State Department a copy of a decree issued by the Chinese government concerning the building of railways. The decree recites the decision of the government to build trunk lines first and branch lines afterward, and as it is found to be necessary, in view of the number of lines to be constructed, to make a designation of those to be first built, these roads are named: The Lu-Han and Hankan-Canton, first; next in importance, the Tientsin-Chiang line and Shanhaikwan and beyond; Moukden, Nieuchang, etc., strategic points. The officials are directed to hasten the construction of the lines, and notice is given that all requests for permission to construct branch lines will be refused.

THE FISHING SEASON

Work of Catching Shad and Herring is Begun.

RENEWAL OF ACTIVITY IN FISHTOWN

Observations of an Old Operator on Present Prospects.

SOME PROFITABLE SHORES

The spring fishing season has now fairly opened, and most of the big nets are in the water. "Fishtown," on the river front, is being done at the big shoring. Men who had so much idle time during the cold weather, when oysters were scarce, are now busily engaged in the fish traffic. For several weeks shad and herring will claim most of their attention.

These fish are now coming from the shores on the lower Potomac, and soon they will be more plentiful. The industry has given work to several hundred persons down the river, in addition to the many who are in business in this city. Not only are the fish sold in the markets by the regular dealers, but scores of hucksters sell them about the streets from wagons, and still others carry them about, exposing them to sale from door to door. Even the small boys who hang about the wharf pick up the small fish and dispose of them. There are always more or less small fish in the boats that bring the shad and herring to "Fishtown" from the shoring shore, and these fish are usually given away. It frequently happens that there are more boys about the wharf than there are fish of this variety, and the boys have a lively time scrambling for the limited supply.

It is not an unusual sight to see a score or more boys strung along Water street early in the morning, waiting for the boats from the fishing shores. At this season of the year, however, when the weather is cool enough to preserve the fish for a long time, the boats come up the river at all hours. Later on an effort will be made to have the boats up during the part of the day that the weather is coolest. Most of the product is sold at auction on the wharf, but many shipments are made direct to local dealers. During the shad and herring season some other varieties of fish are scarce and others bring in small prices, so that the fishermen depend largely upon the shad and herring during this season, which closes early in the summer.

Shad and Herring Season.

"Both shad and herring are now very scarce," said an old fisherman to a Star reporter in "Fishtown" this morning. "Years ago these were extremely plentiful, and fishermen found spring fishing a profitable business. Now, however, it is entirely different. This is shown in the limited number of shores occupied and the prices paid. Not more than one-half the old fishing shores are now in operation."

This old fisherman explained that the prices that are now being paid are nothing to what they were paid in former years. He said, the White House fishery prices, sold for $1.00, while at present it is not even sold for "Fair Landing," which was noted as one of the best shores on the river, he said, has also been abandoned. This shore is owned by Mr. Wm. Netzey, who gave it up because of the scarcity of fish. Many other places that were well during former years have either been abandoned or are being fished at about one-fifth their former rental.

In Near-By Waters.

Most of the shad and herring caught for this market later in the season are taken from the water within fifty-five miles of the city. "Caywood's," on the Virginia side, is about that distance away. The shore requires about 200 fathoms of seine and employs about fifteen men. Within a few miles of this shore is what is known as "Windmill Point," a force about the size of that employed at "Caywood's," which Mr. Robert Adams is operating this season. "Windmill Point," situated at the mouth of the Potomac creek, is being operated by Mr. James Ewing. It requires about 1,000 fathoms of seine and two steam engines are used in hauling it. Mr. Joseph Gibson is conducting the fishing at the "Gums" this season. This shore is also a large one, requiring 1,000 fathoms of seine and the services of about forty men and eight boats. It is situated a short distance above Aquia creek.

Those mentioned are known as winter shores, for the reason that they open as soon as the winter is over and the nets can be taken out. They are not in the rock fish, with a fair percentage of big white perch, constitute the principal catches. The early shad and herring are also taken by the winter shores.

While these shores are already in operation, there are others that will not open for about a week or ten days, by which time it is expected shad and herring will be plentiful. One of these is known as "Waller's," because it is owned and operated by a man of that name. He uses about 1,000 fathoms of seine and forty men and eight horses. Ten miles this side of Waller's is Freestone Point, owned by the Fairfax estate and operated by Belknap & Gibson. This shore has been this was one of the best fishing on the river, bringing an annual rental of as much as $1,750. Six miles north of this point are the shores of "Stony Point," where the largest seine on the Potomac is used. Two powerful steam engines and seventy-five men are employed by Mr. Netzey, who has had the use of the shore for fully twenty years.

On Maryland Side.

On the Maryland side of the river the fishing places are not so numerous. What is known as "Chapman's Point" is only a few miles down the river. This shore is noted for its immense catches of what are known as late or glut herring. Three hundred fathoms of seine are used. Mr. Gale of Baltimore owns and conducts the business here. Mr. Landrum is operating this shore, with 400 fathoms of netting and twenty-five men and four horses. "Moxley's Point," which is in the Chesapeake Bay, is operated by Mr. Moxley. He has fished this season by Mr. Herron. He uses only about 300 fathoms of seine. Many successful catches of shad and herring have been made at this shore, and at present the United States fish commission has so many of it. It is about this place that so many fish eggs are obtained for propagating purposes. What is called "Pent Landing" is a short distance this side of River View. This is the fishing shore nearest to the city, and it is managed by the Messrs. Roams.

The foregoing are about all the principal fishing shores being worked this season. There are, however, a few smaller shores, and, as already stated, a large number of traps and stake nets in the river from the District line to the mouth of the stream.

Discharge of Regulars.

General Brooke has been called to proceed to the execution of the order providing for the discharge of all soldiers who enlisted in the regular army at the outbreak of hostilities, upon the cessation of the war, should they apply for such discharge. He will endeavor to re-enlist as many as possible, and will fill the vacancies remaining in the regular ranks from volunteers who care to transfer.
